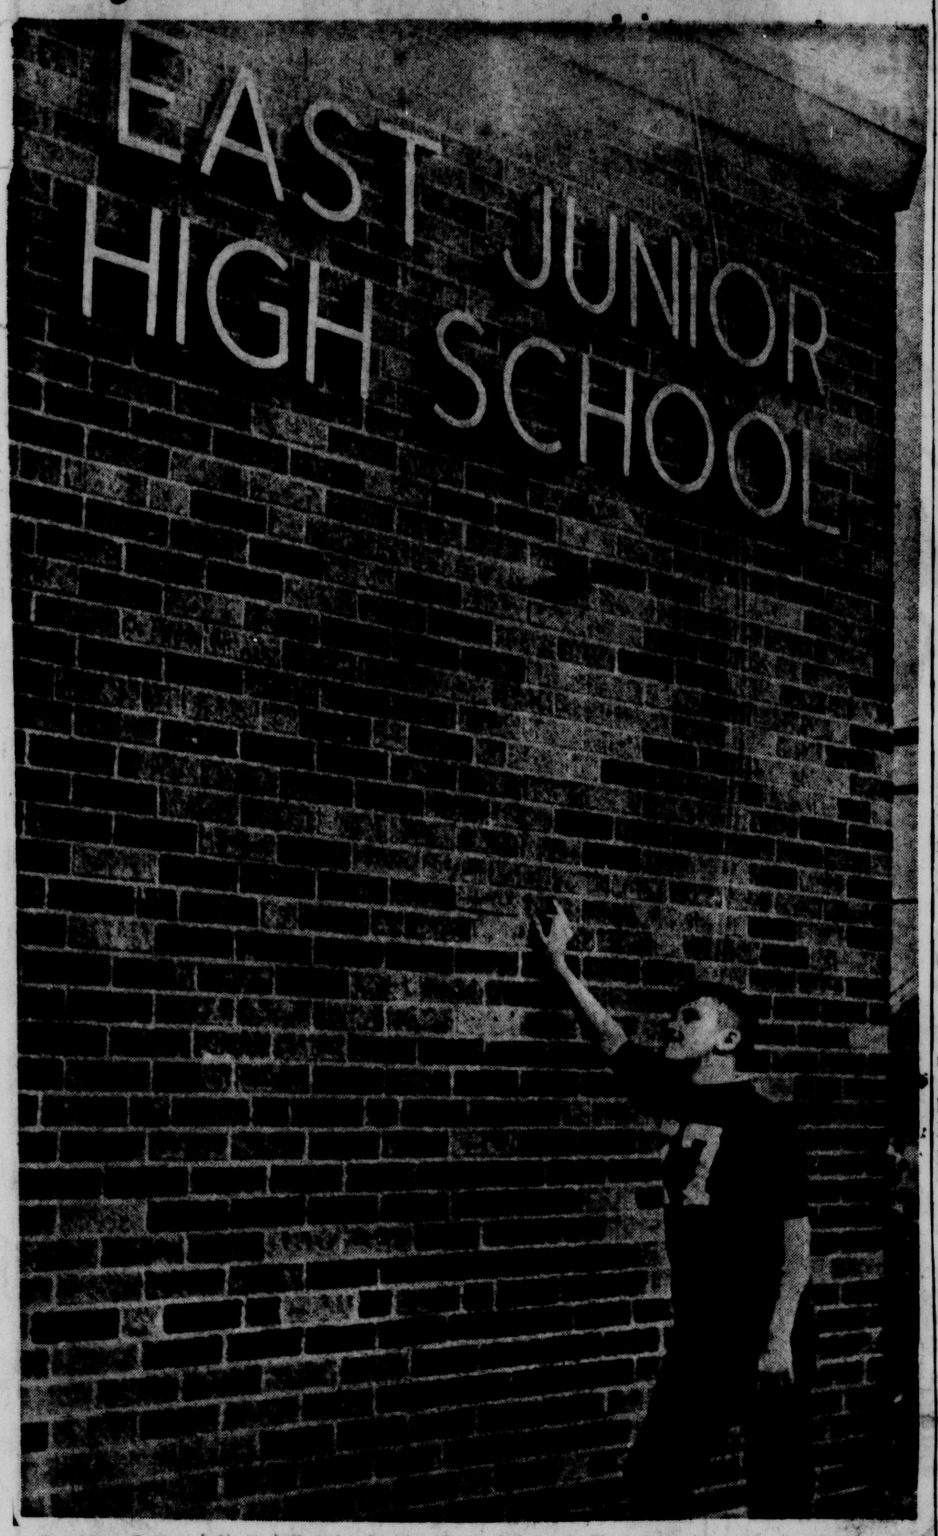
Days Or Daze? He Muses



In about three weeks it will be back to school for Charles Powell, East End youth, and thousands of other tri-state area students and teachers.

Charles, a 6th-grader and son of Mr. and Mrs. James Powell of 1224 Erie St., doesn't seem too enthusiastic about the end of summer's vacation, but, nevertheless, he and other young people are getting ready for the opening of the fall term.

Thousands of students will be returning to classes starting Aug. 31 in Hancock County and after Labor Day elsewhere.

For the first time in history, all Columbiana County schools — including East Liverpool, Wellsville and Lisbon and all parochial schools — will be starting and operating on the same calendar. Classes will begin Sept. 6.

The coordinated schedule was planned to facilitate bus transportation systems which will be carrying public school and parochial students.

Schools at Midland, South Side, Western Beaver in Beaver County and Stanton Local in Jefferson County will open Sept. 5.

Appeal Planned On Many Points Of Law

Jury Convicts Andrews Of Perjury In JFK Plot

Guilty on three of five perjury counts, the Criminal Dist. Court jury decided at 1:30 a.m., after deliberating two hours and 40 minutes.

"I really shouldn't complain," said Andrews with a heavy sigh moments before he was hustled off to jail. "If I didn't have bad luck, I wouldn't have any at all."

Defense attorney Harry Burglass immediately announced an appeal will be filed on many points of law.

Judge Frank J. Shea did not set a date for sentencing.

Burglass said Andrews, 44, will not be eligible for bond until he has been sentenced. Maximum sentence would be five years.

The case went to the jury before midnight after marathon debate for five days and included a Sunday session—so unusual the judge had to check the lawbooks to see if it was legal.

The trial was before a five-man jury because the charge of perjury is a misdemeanor under Louisiana law. Twelve-member juries are reserved for felony cases.

In final arguments, the state accused Andrews of trying "to play games" with the Orleans Parish grand jury which is probing an alleged assassination plot.

The prosecution said Andrews wound up trapped in lies.

On the contrary, said Burglass, what the state truly indicated to Andrews was: "Tell us what we want to hear, Dean, and then it's all right."

Five counts of perjury against Andrews, a lawyer who once advised Lee Harvey Oswald on minor legal matters, were filed primarily because he said he could not identify Clay L. Shaw

10 Miles From China Border

U.S. Planes Again Bomb Railway In North Viet

Major Span And Siding Are Targets

Air Raids Closest Yet Of Viet War To Red China Border

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck for the second straight day today at North Vietnamese targets just 10 miles from Red China's border, along the major railroad from China to Hanoi.

The attacks Sunday and today were closer to the Chinese border than any previous air raids in the Vietnam war.

Navy A6 Intruders and A4 Skyhawks from the carrier Constellation in the Tonkin Gulf raked the Lang Son railroad bypass bridge 63 miles north of Haiphong. Pilots reported dropping the southern span of the 360-foot, four-span structure.

A U.S. military spokesman said the bridge is half a mile east of the Lang Son railroad and highway bridge which was knocked out in raids near the Chinese border Sunday.

The Navy said the bridge was one of two bypass bridges being built by the North Vietnamese at Lang Son to link with the major rail line.

Other Navy pilots from the Constellation hammered a rail siding south of Lang Son and pilots said they cut the tracks in several places.

No planes were reported lost in the latest raids, but the U.S. Command announced that in Saturday's 151 attacks on the North, an F105 Thunderchief and an RF4C reconnaissance plane were shot down by ground fire. All three crewmen were listed as missing.

This brought to 641 the total of announced U.S. warplane losses over North Vietnam.

As the air war came closer to Communist China in what appeared to be a lifting of some target restrictions by President Johnson, sharp ground fighting flared in South Vietnam's northern 1st Corps area.

Elements of the 1st Brigade of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division, starting Operation Benton, ran into a withering barrage of small arms, automatic weapons, mortar and artillery fire from 100 to 150 Communist troops in a battle that raged from Sunday night until nearly dawn today.

The paratroopers said they counted 35 enemy dead on the battlefield southwest of coastal Tam Ky, about 340 miles northeast of Saigon. Two paratroopers were killed and 19 wounded. The U.S. troops also reported capturing 18 enemy weapons.

Another unit of the brigade suffered 12 wounded Sunday night in a 60mm mortar barrage fired by guerrillas.

About 40 miles to the north, Vietnamese rangers sweeping the ridges where they had battled an estimated 1,000 North Vietnamese regulars for two days west of Tam Ky said today they had killed 156 enemy soldiers and captured 45 weapons.

They reported they had suffered moderate casualties in the

Bombing By U.S. Near Red China Detonates New Blast By Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. bombing within 10 miles of Red China detonated sharp new criticism of the Vietnam war by a persistent critic of administration war policy and appeared likely to generate more debate on Capitol Hill.

"I think it's very dangerous and extremely stupid," said Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. But Senate preparedness subcommittee chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said the broadened bombing of North Vietnam reflects a more-pressure philosophy which he supports.

The new level of bombing came on the eve of Senate debate on President Johnson's foreign aid program. Debate opening today already had been expected to bring fresh attacks on Johnson politices in Vietnam and elsewhere in the world.

Whether one variety of recent congressional criticism—that bombing was too sparing—affected Johnson's decision to add new targets could not be determined as the White House fended off questions on the shift in tactics.

But it was learned that Stennis' subcommittee heard secret testimony last week from Adm. Ulysses S. G. Sharp, Pacific commander, that Johnson had agreed to some extension of warplanes' options to strike what one subcommittee member called "lucrative targets."

Strikes Sunday against North Vietnamese rail yards 10 miles from Red China and Friday against Hanoi's Doumer bridge came after Johnson lifted temporarily two major target restrictions.

Pentagon sources say the administration will continue those restrictions except on certain key, vital missions. The restricted areas are a 30-mile diameter circle around Hanoi, penetrated two or three times previously, and a 15-to-20-mile-wide buffer zone along the North Vietnam-Red China boundary.

Fulbright said the bombing near Red China "is directly contrary to what was the established policy of the government in 1964 and it will lead the country directly into the most disastrous consequences."

Fulbright's committee, including members already troubled over Vietnam, cut Johnson's $3.4 billion foreign aid request by $736 million.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, a foe of increased bombing, said he hopes to hold the line against further cuts in the bill but added: "I expect it will be tough going."

He told a newsman he expects "all kinds of amendments to be offered."

The Senate warmed up to it latest Vietnam tussle Friday when a battery of members questioned how fairly the South Vietnamese elections will be run.

Clark Clifford, a Johnson emissary, said Sunday he gave South Vietnamese leaders earlier this month the President's warning a rigged presidential election would cost South Vietnam the support of the American people.

He and Gen. Maxwell Taylor visited South Vietnam chief of state Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, a candidate for president, and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, Thieu's running mate for vice president.

"We took a personal message from President Johnson to Ky and Thieu on this subject and said, as bluntly as it can be said, that if there was any one act on their part which would be calculaed to alienate the American people, it would be to have

NEW CUMBERLAND — A New Cumberland man received severe injuries when his motorcycle and a car hit head-on on Route 2 north of the Weirton city limits Sunday night.

Clay District Constable William Webster said George H. Hawkins, 47, of New Cumberland RD 2 was southbound on the motorcycle when involved in the crash with the sedan driven by Howard F. Fields, 67, also of RD 2.

The cyclist was listed "critical" today at Weirton General Hospital with multiple lacerations and fractures and a possible punctured lung.

Fields has been charged with crossing into the face of oncoming traffic. He will face a hearing Monday before Squire John D. Herron.

Court Asked To Kill Plea In Water Rift

LISBON — Columbiana County commissioners today asked Probate Court to dismiss the appeal six St. Clair Township residents filed 10 days ago over the proposed St. Clair water system.

Prosecuting Atty. J. Warren Bettis filed the motion for dismissal on grounds the St. Clair residents and their counsel, Alfred L. Fitch of Salem, did not give the commissioners notice of appeal as required by statute.

The St. Clair litigants appealed from the commissioners' July 27 action to proceed with construction of the $620,000 water system.

They claim the cost of the improvement will exceed the benefits and asked the court to review the facts and declare the improvement unnecessary.

Hint 'Struggle Movement'

Buddhists Will Protest Rival Faction's Approval

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's militant Buddhists vowed today to stage protests against the government's recognition of a rival faction as the country's official Buddhist Church and hinted at a "struggle movement."

In a strongly worded statement, the leadership also denounced the current presidential campaigne and called for "drastic changes."

They avoided saying what form the protests would take, but questions about "struggle movements" or "demonstrations," brought wild cheers and applause from the more than 800 Buddhist followers at a news conference.

The "struggle movements" of extremist Buddhists have in the past been able to help topple governments and bring thousands of demonstrators into the streets. But their power is believed to have greatly diminished following their clash with Premier Nguyen Cao Ky last year.

The militant Buddhists held their news conference at the An Quang pagoda, Saigon headquarters of their leader, Thich—Venerable—Tri Quang. The Buddhists cheered as their leaders accused the government, and specifically Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu, of trying to "suppress and destroy Buddhism."

Thieu signed a charter the last week of July which set up Saigon's Buddhist Institute, the Vien Hoa Dao, as the official Buddhist church of South Vietnam and squeezes the An Quang Buddhists from control of the Unified Buddhist Church.

The Viet Hoa Dao and the An Quang Buddhists have been fighting bitterly for months for control of the Unified Buddhist Church which is unified in name only.

"Truly, in regard to Buddhism, Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu has shown himself both malignant and reckless," a communique from the An Quang Buddhists said.

Thich Thien Minh, a spokesman at today's news conference said, "If Thieu pushes the An Quang Buddhists against the wall, we Buddhists will have to struggle."

Minh also said "We won't have a fair election unless drastic changes are made."

Ohio Legislators Start Extended Work Schedule

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio lawmakers embark on an extended work schedule today in the hope of beginning a long-awaited summer vacation 10 days from now.

Leaders hope to call a recess until November after securing passage of pressing legislation this week and next.

The Senate returns today at 4 p.m. and the House at 7 p.m. Both usually begin their weeks with 8 p.m. sessions. Plans call for the Senate to meet through Thursday afternoon, and the House may hold an unusual Friday session, House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess R-4 Wood said.

Normally the legislature quits about noon on Thursdays.

Kurfess and Senate Majority Leader Theodore M. Gray R-3 Miami planned the stepped-up schedule in a bid to bring down the curtain, for all practical purposes, on the session now in the middle of its eighth month. The November session, which probably will last about two weeks, will be for cleaning up purposes.

Committee sessions this week hold the key as to whether the usually slow-moving general assembly can meet the schedule.

The House Education, Taxation, and Finance committees hope to agree no later than Thursday on the administration's omnibus bill increasing taxes to raise about $300 million more for education in the 1967-69 biennium. The committees have been studying their respective sections of the Senate-passed measure which must be approved in full by the Taxation Committee. Action this week would make a floor vote possible next week.

Other matters demanding prompt attention include major banking law revisions, increases in workmen's and unemployment compensation, a one-year moratorium in payments by municipalities into the newly created state police and firemen's pension, the omnibus highway safety bill, and a legislative apportionment plan for the November ballot.

Bargain Buying In Reverse

It seems a little odd that with all the useless chatter going on in Congress and committee meetings, no one has much to say when the topic of federal price bungling comes up.

Otis G. Pike (D-N.Y.) would like to know more about those cases where federal purchasing agents bought a 50-cent stainless steel rod for $25.55.

He also wonders about the small gear that carries a list price of $3.43 but when nine were purchased by the Defense Construction Supply Center, they cost $194.30 each.

Rep. Pike brought the questions up when the House was approving the military construction authorization bill of more than $2 billion. His was one of two votes cast against it.

Rep. Pike was upset because he had evidence, later confirmed by the General Accounting Office, of five cases where military hardware had been purchased at prices from 400 to 500 per cent greater than manufacturers' catalog price.

Rep. Pike had reason to be upset.

The foolish buying practices are enough to upset any dedicated congressman but when the wasteful practice can't even get a House airing, something is rotten — and not in Denmark either.

Rep. Pike is on the House Armed Services Committee and knows what he is talking about.

In some cases, he was referring to single items that were highly over-priced but not in all cases. The seriousness of the accusations cannot be minimized on the ground these were minor oversights.

As a matter of fact, Rep. Pike said the high-priced buying was blamed on a computer.

If small mistakes are possible, aren't large ones also possible?

It is as much the duty of every congressman to cut out waste in government as it is to vote tax increases whenever they are needed.

Not Harrisburg's Duty

Gov. Raymond Shafer's veto of the proposed restriction on foreign steel for Pennsylvania public projects was a disappointment for the state's steel manufacturers and union members, but it was a logical and legal answer to a knotty issue. 3

First there was the question of the constitutionality of such a ban by a state law. Secondly, there was the question of a state's jurisdiction in trade regulations, a jurisdiction which belongs rightfully to the federal government.

Thirdly, there was the issue of Pennsylvania's own trade status which could have seriously been jeopardized by counter measures from other nations affected by the steel curbs.

A survey last week revealed that Pennsylvania leads the nation in overseas construction and research contracts — $54 million in 1966 and $47 million so far in 1967, with iron and steel mill products, railroad and electrical power equipment and industrial and construction machinery the big items the state has produced. The state has other significant export businesses.

The answer to the import of foreign steel lies not with the legislature at Harrisburg, but with the Congress and the White House and other federal authorities who must recognize the need for restrictions on some practices of foreign steel importers and action to place them in the proper relationships with domestic producers.

Three Little Words

Today's "Back To School" edtion is a reminder of the approaching start of the fall term.

"Back to School" are not the three most dreaded words all third and fourth graders can hear. Despite their protests, many youngsters have begun to find summer's slow - moving days a little trying, and are ready for the camarderie and challenge of the classroom.

Most teachers are thinking of the weeks ahead with professional interest in what can be done and better ways of doing it.

The education process will soon become one of the main pivots on which family and community life revolve. "Back to School" will signal the beginning of a busy time schedule for the kids, mother, dad, the dog, the cat—just about everyone.

Meanwhile, those three words are not the most fearful dreaded in the younger generation's vocabulary. They've been supplanted by three other words — "year 'round classes."

RAYMOND MOLEY

Active Battleship At Last

After months and years of pleading by high-ranking Navy officers, Secretary Robert S. McNamara has finally and lately ordered the great battleship New Jersey recommissioned for action off Vietnam. No one seems to know the reason for the deplorable delay. Even military affairs chairman Sen. Richard Russell, said in April, "For the life of me, I cannot understand the adamant position of the Department of Defense against this additional capability." And if he didn't know, all the rest of us can only guess.

Four-and-a-half years ago, in January 1963, Vice Adm. John S. McCain argued for the use of this immense source of fire power in the U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings. In 1965 George Fielding Eliot argued for naval gunfire in the same journal. Also in that year, Lt. Col. J. B. Soper of the U.S. Marine Corps contributed an article on the subject. And a year ago Soper reiterated his argument at length in the Proceedings journal. Last March a former chief of Naval operations told me that the reactivation of battleships was to be decided at the Guam conference. In April, Sen. Russell argued for the battleship in a Senate speech.

BUT APPARENTLY only the familiar "cost-effectiveness" study was ordered by McNamara, and that prompted Hanson Baldwin to write in the New York Times in May that the New Jersey was to be reactivated. There was little need for such a long "study." The Navy people knew what was needed, and if work had been started the ship could be in action in three months. As it is, nine months will elapse before the big-16-inch guns will be pounding at targets in Vietnam—500 to 600 of which are within range.

In Soper's article in September 1966 one reason for the delay is suggested. Apparently the McNamara "experts" have been planning a new super rocket ship, the landing Fire Support ship (LFS), with all the research, development, and experimental costs involved. In effect, it would combine the capabilities of the present rocket ship and the cruiser. But it is still only partially planned. Meanwhile, the battleship with its proven effectiveness has been idle.

A battleship of the Iowa class will need only the removal of its plastic cocoons and oils, the addition of supplemental wiring systems and modern radar equipment to make it ready for service. It is bought and paid for, and there is plenty of ammunition. In such a ship a full complement of personnel is not necessary, for it would in effect be a floating battery and would not need to be equipped to fight comparable ships of the enemy.

The New Jersey is equipped with nine 16-inch guns; 16 five-inch rifles, and anti-aircraft power. The big guns can hurl 2,000-pound projectiles more than 24 miles, and Sen. Russell says that some experts declare that with modern propellents this range can be 40 miles.

UNLIKE AIRCRAFT, the battleship is deterred neither by bad weather nor night. By taking over targets now under air attack, the terrible and continuous loss of air crews and planes could be greatly lessened.

A glance at the map shows that a battleship standing off the coast of Vietnam could smash almost all the vital roads and railway lines from the North, for much of the narrow neck of Vietnam would be exposed to 16-inch fire power.

The "experts" are planning complicated ships for tomorrow. But the long guns of the New Jersey are needed in Vietnam—today.

'You Know, The Way Things Are Going, Neither Of Us Is Going To Make It.'

Pinch - Her Movement

By Art Buchwald

While Art Buchwald is taking a few days off, we are printing some of the memorable moments of his life when he was in Europe.

ROME

There were many ways to see the 1960 Olympic games. One of the most interesting ways, but also the most dangerous, was to go to one of the events with Miss Elizabeth Taylor.

Art Buchwald

The actress stopped off in Rome with her then husband, Mr. Eddie Fisher, and her doctor, Rex Kennamer. Although the Italians love sports, they love women more and Miss Taylor received her share of admiration from the hot-blooded Romans.

Because of the heat, she only had been attending the evening events, mostly water polo. It wasn't that Miss Taylor was a great water polo enthusiast. It was just that by the time she got ready, water polo was the only sport still going on.

One night I was invited to attend the water polo matches with her. It was quite an event—not the water polo, but going with her.

When we arrived at the swimming stadium the crowds immediately recognized her and surged forward. Helpful hands reached out and touched her and Miss Taylor shouted to Mr. Fisher, "Someone touched my chest!"

"Who?" Mr. Fisher wanted to know.

We moved forward slowly and suddenly Miss Taylor yelled again, "Someone is pinching me!"

Mr. Fisher shouted, "Who?"

"I don't know!" she shouted. "I'm being pinched in the back!"

"Where?" the doctor wanted to know.

"You know where," Miss Taylor said.

"Bella! bella!" the Italians shouted.

Mr. Fisher yelled to me, "You protect her in the back, I'll protect her in the front, and the Doc can take the flanks."

The flanks at this point were the most vulnerable, and not only the Italians, but players from Spain and France had joined the sport.

The scoring, I figured out later, went something like this: a pinch on the the lower part of Miss Taylor's flanks was worth one point. On the lower part of her back was three points and on her chest, which in Italy is the equivalent of a touchdown, was worth six points.

Since I was covering the rear, I had the job of being the goalie. In a sport of this kind, it is considered the toughest position on the field. Several fingers intended for Miss Taylor pnched me instead. "You are not allowed to pinch the goalie!" I cried in pain. But the officials were looking at Miss Taylor and paying no attention to me.

SLOWLY WE MADE our way forward. The Italians had sent in substitutes and Miss Taylor screamed again, "They're still pinching me!"

"Walk sideways," I suggested.

But this didn't work either, and the Italians were scoring all over the place.

At this point the photographers joined in and they kept stopping us so that they could take pictures of the event — which was certainly an Olympic pinching record.

It must have been 25 minutes before someone finally blew a whistle. It turned out to be a policeman, and the game was over.

The final score, Mr. Fisher told me the next morning after making the tally, was 334 pinches and 12 touchdowns against the Americans, the worst beating the United States has ever taken from Italy since the Olympic games started.

VICTOR RIESEL

Vietnam Rebuilds A Nation

During recent conversations with the Vice President and some of his staff I asked what intrigued Mr. Humphrey most — aside, of course, from the inner, off-the-record international diplomacy in which all heads of state have had to engage for centuries.

In reply to my query, the nation's second-in-command, drawing on the experiences of his recent trips, wrote the following exclusively for this column:

WASHINGTON — Americans read a great deal about the military battles going on in Vietnam. But they hear too little about the patient process of nation-building that is going forward at the same time in the midst of turmoil and violence.

Victor Riesel

Nation-building, as I had the opportunity to observe when I was in Vietnam last year, includes the establishment, in agriculture and industry, of an economic base strong enough to sustain South Vietnam's independence. It means also the creation of a democratic political system. We see this happening in the election of the Constituent Assembly last year, the writing and adoption of a constitution, the village and hamlet elections this spring, and the presidential election to be held this September.

IT ALSO — and most importantly — means the building of nongovernmental organizations, controlled by their members and responsible to them. These democratic organizations include farmers' associations, cooperatives and credit unions. One of special importance is the Confederation of Vietnamese Workers (CTV), the 300,000-strong free labor movement of Vietnam.

This organization cuts across the religious and ethnic divisions of Vietnam. Its membership includes Buddhists and Catholics and members of the national minotiries (Cambodians, Chinese, Montagsards) as well as ethnic Vietnamese. It includes plantation workers, tenant farmers and fishermen, as well as urban workers on the docks and in the textile mills.

Staunchly democratic, firmly anti-Communist, the Confederation carries on the normal work of a trade union in defending the workers' interests and living standards, including strike action when absolutely necessary and when it can be taken without handicaping the war effort. Sometimes it can be perilous and even fatal for a trade union official to stand up for his members. When the leader of a plantation workers' local recently protested the "cut" the Viet Cong was taking from his members' wages, they executed him on the spot.

BACK IN 1965, when the Viet Cong had blocked most of the roads and made land transport almost impossible, the fishermen's union mobilized over 400 junks and sampans to move essential supplies to the villages along the coast and up the rivers.

The Confederation's concerns go beyond wages and hours. They maintain welfare centers, both in Saigon and in the principal provincial towns. Located in working-class slums, where the people who need them live, these centers offer medical services and primary education. They are open to all children, whether or not their fathers are union members.

The tenant farmers' union is a vigorous advocate of land reform. It acts as a distributing agent to make fertilizer available to its members at reasonable prices. The fishermen's union is launching a credit union to free its members from the grip of moneylenders.

The Confederation, like the AFL-CIO, has a policy of political independence, but it urges its members to take an active part in local and national elections. Several of its members were elected to the Constituent Assembly last year, and a number have won office in this year's village and hamlet elections.

THE CONFEDERATION is no rubber stamp for the government. It does not hesitate to criticize it. For example, it has demanded that the government abolish press censorship, in accordance with the guarantees for freedom of the press which the new constitution provides — a demand subsequently made by the Constituent Assembly itself.

The American labor movement knows that there can be no free trade unions — indeed, so freedom — under communism. That is why, in an overhwelming majority, it supports the American effort in Vietnam.

But it also maintains that a strong free labor movement is essential to the vigor and even the survival of democracy. That is why it deeply sympathizes with Vietnamese labor in its struggle, and has helped it with food, medical equipment and supplies, and in many other ways.

As for myself, I consider nation-building in Vietnam, including the building of a strong and free labor movement essential to the establishment of a viable democratic society. Without that no military progress can be permanent or even possible.

Uneasiness

By James Marlow

Viet Picture Grows More Cloudy

WASHINGTON

There is more uneasiness now about the American position in South Vietnam than at any time since President Ngo Dinh Diem's ouster and assassination in 1963, with solutions looking less easy.

In the closing days of Diem's regime it became clear to the Kennedy administration, although it seemed clear to a lot of people before then, that he was more hindrance than help to resistance against the Communist push.

He lived in his own little, thoroughly undemocratic world, running a dictatorship, unmindful of the masses of the peasantry, jealous of his power.

As a result of his isolation from the people and their needs the Viet Cong helped themselves to the countryside, a position from which they have not been dislodged since.

AFTER HIS death there were a number of successors as the Vietnamese generals maneuvered among themselves for power. This country managed to do business with all of them.

Finally Nguyen Cao Ky as premier and Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu as chief of state emerged and managed to repress some of the internal disorders, like the protests of the Buddhists.

This gave the impression of stability although the country was being run by a military junta. But the United States claimed to be fighting the war, to prevent a Communist takeover, so the people could determine their own future.

The best evidence that the people were moving toward some semblance of self-determination would be elections. They have been arranged for next month.

Thieu is running for president and Ky for vice president on the same ticket. There are other candidates for the presidency, 11 in all, and hundreds of candidates for other offices. This makes it all look democratic.

But now there are serious doubts about it, with complaints about rigging and fears that if Thieu and Ky don't win, the military junta will throw out the election victors anyway — or undercut them until they are meaningless.

If the elections turn out to be a farce the American government will have less excuse for staying involved than it did at the time of Diem's death. That time this country could argue the people had no chance to choose a government.

There can't be that excuse now if the elections are fraudulent, although it could be argued this might be expected in a country which never had a freely chosen government and was still stumbling in that direction.

THERE'S AN answer to that: How long will the United States have to defend South Vietnam before its people learn to act responsibly and legitimately? Butt here is something else adding to American discontent and uneasiness.

The South Vietnamese are making at this time a sorry contribution to their own defense and future. As time proceeds, this country is bearing most of the burden.

As all this hangs over the head of President Johnson — who meanwhile has promised to send another 50,000 Americans into the war — who is being hit with congressional demands that range from stepping up the bombing to reappraising the American presence in Vietnam to withdrawal of American forces and leaving the Vietnamese to settle their own problems.

Johnson has stepped up the bombing, but, until the elections are over next month, the best he can hope for now is that they won't be a mess. If they are, he will have more problems about Vietnam, and more American discontent, than he faced since he took office in 1963.

He knows, from public opinion polls which show a dwindling confidence in the way he is handling the war, that the slow-paced, dawdling course of the conflict is hurting him, with the U.S. presidential elections just over the horizon.

Through The Years

THIRTY YEARS AGO — The Rev. C. W. Lindeman assumed his duties as pastor of the Chester Church of the Nazarene, replacing the Rev. Robert W. Wellmon.

The streets and roads committee of the Chamber of Commerce disclosed plans for the construction of a Horn Switch highway cutoff between Dresden Ave. and Jefferson St. at W. 8th St.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Mr. and Mrs. John W. Barrett observed their silver anniversary with an open house at their home on Ohio Ave.

TEN YEARS AGO — Erection of a platform at Chester City Park's football field for scoreboard operators, spotters and cameramen was authorized during a meeting of the Purple and Gold Club.

An East End woman crawled out of her smashed 1950 sedan uninjured after a spectacular accident on the River Rd. Her car struck another and then plowed into an Ohio Power Co. pole, snapping a 22,000-volt transmission line and a 4,000-volt distribution line.

Bargain Buying In Reverse

It seems a little odd that with all the useless chatter going on in Congress and committee meetings, no one has much to say when the topic of federal price bungling comes up.

Otis G. Pike (D-N.Y.) would like to know more about those cases where federal purchasing agents bought a 50-cent stainless steel rod for $25.55.

He also wonders about the small gear that carries a list price of $3.43 but when nine were purchased by the Defense Construction Supply Center, they cost $194.30 each.

Rep. Pike brought the questions up when the House was approving the military construction authorization bill of more than $2 billion. His was one of two votes cast against it.

Rep. Pike was upset because he had evidence, later confirmed by the General Accounting Office, of five cases where military hardware had been purchased at prices from 400 to 500 per cent greater than manufacturers' catalog price.

Rep. Pike had reason to be upset.

The foolish buying practices are enough to upset any dedicated congressman but when the wasteful practice can't even get a House airing, something is rotten — and not in Denmark either.

Rep. Pike is on the House Armed Services Committee and knows what he is talking about.

In some cases, he was referring to single items that were highly over-priced but not in all cases. The seriousness of the accusations cannot be minimized on the ground these were minor oversights.

As a matter of fact, Rep. Pike said the high-priced buying was blamed on a computer.

If small mistakes are possible, aren't large ones also possible?

It is as much the duty of every congressman to cut out waste in government as it is to vote tax increases whenever they are needed.

Not Harrisburg's Duty

Gov. Raymond Shafer's veto of the proposed restriction on foreign steel for Pennsylvania public projects was a disappointment for the state's steel manufacturers and union members, but it was a logical and legal answer to a knotty issue. 3

First there was the question of the constitutionality of such a ban by a state law. Secondly, there was the question of a state's jurisdiction in trade regulations, a jurisdiction which belongs rightfully to the federal government.

Thirdly, there was the issue of Pennsylvania's own trade status which could have seriously been jeopardized by counter measures from other nations affected by the steel curbs.

A survey last week revealed that Pennsylvania leads the nation in overseas construction and research contracts — $54 million in 1966 and $47 million so far in 1967, with iron and steel mill products, railroad and electrical power equipment and industrial and construction machinery the big items the state has produced. The state has other significant export businesses.

The answer to the import of foreign steel lies not with the legislature at Harrisburg, but with the Congress and the White House and other federal authorities who must recognize the need for restrictions on some practices of foreign steel importers and action to place them in the proper relationships with domestic producers.

Three Little Words

Today's "Back To School" edtion is a reminder of the approaching start of the fall term.

"Back to School" are not the three most dreaded words all third and fourth graders can hear. Despite their protests, many youngsters have begun to find summer's slow - moving days a little trying, and are ready for the camarderie and challenge of the classroom.

Most teachers are thinking of the weeks ahead with professional interest in what can be done and better ways of doing it.

The education process will soon become one of the main pivots on which family and community life revolve. "Back to School" will signal the beginning of a busy time schedule for the kids, mother, dad, the dog, the cat—just about everyone.

Meanwhile, those three words are not the most fearful dreaded in the younger generation's vocabulary. They've been supplanted by three other words — "year 'round classes."

RAYMOND MOLEY

Active Battleship At Last

After months and years of pleading by high-ranking Navy officers, Secretary Robert S. McNamara has finally and lately ordered the great battleship New Jersey recommissioned for action off Vietnam. No one seems to know the reason for the deplorable delay. Even military affairs chairman Sen. Richard Russell, said in April, "For the life of me, I cannot understand the adamant position of the Department of Defense against this additional capability." And if he didn't know, all the rest of us can only guess.

Four-and-a-half years ago, in January 1963, Vice Adm. John S. McCain argued for the use of this immense source of fire power in the U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings. In 1965 George Fielding Eliot argued for naval gunfire in the same journal. Also in that year, Lt. Col. J. B. Soper of the U.S. Marine Corps contributed an article on the subject. And a year ago Soper reiterated his argument at length in the Proceedings journal. Last March a former chief of Naval operations told me that the reactivation of battleships was to be decided at the Guam conference. In April, Sen. Russell argued for the battleship in a Senate speech.

BUT APPARENTLY only the familiar "cost-effectiveness" study was ordered by McNamara, and that prompted Hanson Baldwin to write in the New York Times in May that the New Jersey was to be reactivated. There was little need for such a long "study." The Navy people knew what was needed, and if work had been started the ship could be in action in three months. As it is, nine months will elapse before the big-16-inch guns will be pounding at targets in Vietnam—500 to 600 of which are within range.

In Soper's article in September 1966 one reason for the delay is suggested. Apparently the McNamara "experts" have been planning a new super rocket ship, the landing Fire Support ship (LFS), with all the research, development, and experimental costs involved. In effect, it would combine the capabilities of the present rocket ship and the cruiser. But it is still only partially planned. Meanwhile, the battleship with its proven effectiveness has been idle.

A battleship of the Iowa class will need only the removal of its plastic cocoons and oils, the addition of supplemental wiring systems and modern radar equipment to make it ready for service. It is bought and paid for, and there is plenty of ammunition. In such a ship a full complement of personnel is not necessary, for it would in effect be a floating battery and would not need to be equipped to fight comparable ships of the enemy.

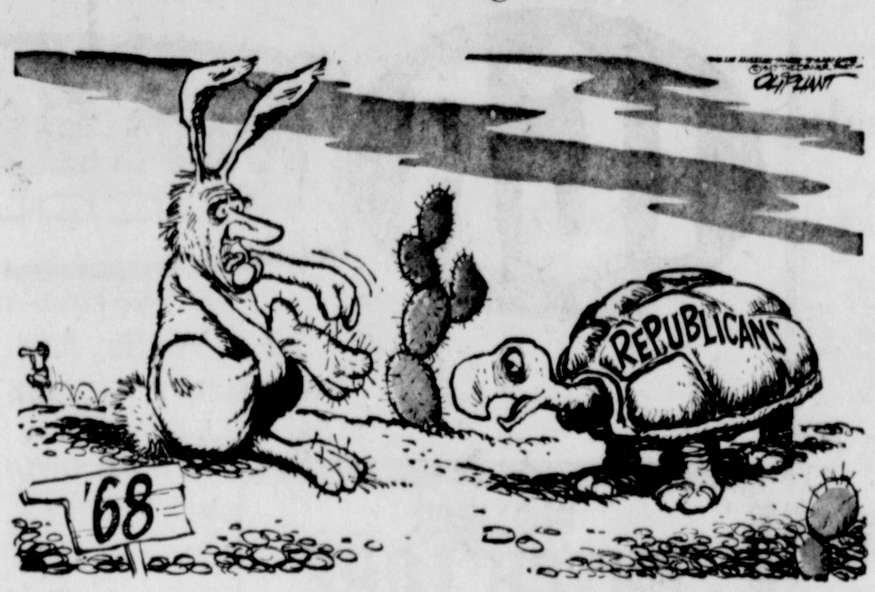
The New Jersey is equipped with nine 16-inch guns; 16 five-inch rifles, and anti-aircraft power. The big guns can hurl 2,009-pound projectiles more than 24 miles, and Sen. Russell says that some experts declare that with modern propellents this range can be 40 miles.

UNLIKE AIRCRAFT, the battleship is deterred neither by bad weather nor night. By taking over targets now under air attack, the terrible and continuous loss of air crews and planes could be greatly lessened.

A glance at the map shows that a battleship standing off the coast of Vietnam could smash almost all the vital roads and railway lines from the North, for much of the narrow neck of Vietnam would be exposed to 16-inch fire power.

The "experts" are planning complicated ships for tomorrow. But the long guns of the New Jersey are needed in Vietnam—today.

'You Know, The Way Things Are Going, Neither Of Us Is Going To Make It.'



Pinch - Her Movement

By Art Buchwald

While Art Buchwald is taking a few days off, we are printing some of the memorable moments of his life when he was in Europe.

ROME

There were many ways to see the 1960 Olympic games. One of the most interesting ways, but also the most dangerous, was to go to one of the events with Miss Elizabeth Taylor.

Art Buchwald

The actress stopped off in Rome with her then husband, Mr. Eddie Fisher, and her doctor, Rex Kennamer. Although the Italians love sports, they love women more and Miss Taylor received her share of admiration from the hot-blooded Romans.

Because of the heat, she only had been attending the evening events, mostly water polo. It wasn't that Miss Taylor was a great water polo enthusiast. It was just that by the time she got ready, water polo was the only sport still going on.

One night I was invited to attend the water polo matches with her. It was quite an event—not the water polo, but going with her.

When we arrived at the swimming stadium the crowds immediately recognized her and surged forward. Helpful hands reached out and touched her and Miss Taylor shouted to Mr. Fisher, "Someone touched my chest!"

"Who?" Mr. Fisher wanted to know.

We moved forward slowly and suddenly Miss Taylor yelled again, "Someone is pinching me!"

Mr. Fisher shouted, "Who?"

"I don't know!" she shouted. "I'm being pinched in the back!"

"Where?" the doctor wanted to know.

"You know where," Miss Taylor said.

"Bella! bella!" the Italians shouted.

Mr. Fisher yelled to me, "You protect her in the back, I'll protect her in the front, and the Doc can take the flanks."

The flanks at this point were the most vulnerable, and not only the Italians, but players from Spain and France had joined the sport.

The scoring, I figured out later, went something like this: a pinch on the the lower part of Miss Taylor's flanks was worth one point. On the lower part of her back was three points and on her chest, which in Italy is the equivalent of a touchdown, was worth six points.

Since I was covering the rear, I had the job of being the goalie. In a sport of this kind, it is considered the toughest position on the field. Several fingers intended for Miss Taylor pnched me instead. "You are not allowed to pinch the goalie!" I cried in pain. But the officials were looking at Miss Taylor and paying no attention to me.

SLOWLY WE MADE our way forward. The Italians had sent in substitutes and Miss Taylor screamed again, "They're still pinching me!"

"Walk sideways," I suggested.

But this didn't work either, and the Italians were scoring all over the place.

At this point the photographers joined in and they kept stopping us so that they could take pictures of the event — which was certainly an Olympic pinching record.

It must have been 25 minutes before someone finally blew a whistle. It turned out to be a policeman, and the game was over.

The final score, Mr. Fisher told me the next morning after making the tally, was 334 pinches and 12 touchdowns against the Americans, the worst beating the United States has ever taken from Italy since the Olympic games started.

VICTOR RIESEL

Vietnam Rebuilds A Nation

During recent conversations with the Vice President and some of his staff I asked what intrigued Mr. Humphrey most — aside, of course, from the inner, off-the-record international diplomacy in which all heads of state have had to engage for centuries.

In reply to my query, the nation's second-in-command, drawing on the experiences of his recent trips, wrote the following exclusively for this column:

WASHINGTON — Americans read a great deal about the military battles going on in Vietnam. But they hear too little about the patient process of nation-building that is going forward at the same time in the midst of turmoil and violence.

Victor Riesel

Nation-building, as I had the opportunity to observe when I was in Vietnam last year, includes the establishment, in agriculture and industry, of an economic base strong enough to sustain South Vietnam's independence. It means also the creation of a democratic political system. We see this happening in the election of the Constituent Assembly last year, the writing and adoption of a constitution, the village and hamlet elections this spring, and the presidential election to be held this September.

IT ALSO — and most importantly — means the building of nongovernmental organizations, controlled by their members and responsible to them. These democratic organizations include farmers' associations, cooperatives and credit unions. One of special importance is the Confederation of Vietnamese Workers (CTV), the 300,000-strong free labor movement of Vietnam.

This organization cuts across the religious and ethnic divisions of Vietnam. Its membership includes Buddhists and Catholics and members of the national minotiries (Cambodians, Chinese, Montagsards) as well as ethnic Vietnamese. It includes plantation workers, tenant farmers and fishermen, as well as urban workers on the docks and in the textile mills.

Staunchly democratic, firmly anti-Communist, the Confederation carries on the normal work of a trade union in defending the workers' interests and living standards, including strike action when absolutely necessary and when it can be taken without handicaping the war effort. Sometimes it can be perilous and even fatal for a trade union official to stand up for his members. When the leader of a plantation workers' local recently protested the "cut" the Viet Cong was taking from his members' wages, they executed him on the spot.

BACK IN 1965, when the Viet Cong had blocked most of the roads and made land transport almost impossible, the fishermen's union mobilized over 400 junks and sampans to move essential supplies to the villages along the coast and up the rivers.

The Confederation's concerns go beyond wages and hours. They maintain welfare centers, both in Saigon and in the principal provincial towns. Located in working-class slums, where the people who need them live, these centers offer medical services and primary education. They are open to all children, whether or not their fathers are union members.

The tenant farmers' union is a vigorous advocate of land reform. It acts as a distributing agent to make fertilizer available to its members at reasonable prices. The fishermen's union is launching a credit union to free its members from the grip of moneylenders.

The Confederation, like the AFL-CIO, has a policy of political independence, but it urges its members to take an active part in local and national elections. Several of its members were elected to the Constituent Assembly last year, and a number have won office in this year's village and hamlet elections.

THE CONFEDERATION is no rubber stamp for the government. It does not hesitate to criticize it. For example, it has demanded that the government abolish press censorship, in accordance with the guarantees for freedom of the press which the new constitution provides — a demand subsequently made by the Constituent Assembly itself.

The American labor movement knows that there can be no free trade unions — indeed, so freedom — under communism. That is why, in an overhwelming majority, it supports the American effort in Vietnam.

But it also maintains that a strong free labor movement is essential to the vigor and even the survival of democracy. That is why it deeply sympathizes with Vietnamese labor in its struggle, and has helped it with food, medical equipment and supplies, and in many other ways.

As for myself, I consider nation-building in Vietnam, including the building of a strong and free labor movement essential to the establishment of a viable democratic society. Without that no military progress can be permanent or even possible.

Uneasiness

By James Marlow

Viet Picture Grows More Cloudy

WASHINGTON

There is more uneasiness now about the American position in South Vietnam than at any time since President Ngo Dinh Diem's ouster and assassination in 1963, with solutions looking less easy.

In the closing days of Diem's regime it became clear to the Kennedy administration, although it seemed clear to a lot of people before then, that he was more hindrance than help to resistance against the Communist push.

He lived in his own little, thoroughly undemocratic world, running a dictatorship, unmindful of the masses of the peasantry, jealous of his power.

As a result of his isolation from the people and their needs the Viet Cong helped themselves to the countryside, a position from which they have not been dislodged since.

AFTER HIS death there were a number of successors as the Vietnamese generals maneuvered among themselves for power. This country managed to do business with all of them.

Finally Nguyen Cao Ky as premier and Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu as chief of state emerged and managed to repress some of the internal disorders, like the protests of the Buddhists.

This gave the impression of stability although the country was being run by a military junta. But the United States claimed to be fighting the war, to prevent a Communist takeover, so the people could determine their own future.

The best evidence that the people were moving toward some semblance of self-determination would be elections. They have been arranged for next month.

Thieu is running for president and Ky for vice president on the same ticket. There are other candidates for the presidency, 11 in all, and hundreds of candidates for other offices. This makes it all look democratic.

But now there are serious doubts about it, with complaints about rigging and fears that if Thieu and Ky don't win, the military junta will throw out the election victors anyway — or undercut them until they are meaningless.

If the elections turn out to be a farce the American government will have less excuse for staying involved than it did at the time of Diem's death. That time this country could argue the people had no chance to choose a government.

There can't be that excuse now if the elections are fraudulent, although it could be argued this might be expected in a country which never had a freely chosen government and was still stumbling in that direction.

THERE'S AN answer to that: How long will the United States have to defend South Vietnam before its people learn to act responsibly and legitimately? Butt here is something else adding to American discontent and uneasiness.

The South Vietnamese are making at this time a sorry contribution to their own defense and future. As time proceeds, this country is bearing most of the burden.

As all this hangs over the head of President Johnson — who meanwhile has promised to send another 50,000 Americans into the war — who is being hit with congressional demands that range from stepping up the bombing to reappraising the American presence in Vietnam to withdrawal of American forces and leaving the Vietnamese to settle their own problems.

Johnson has stepped up the bombing, but, until the elections are over next month, the best he can hope for now is that they won't be a mess. If they are, he will have more problems about Vietnam, and more American discontent, than he faced since he took office in 1963.

He knows, from public opinion polls which show a dwindling confidence in the way he is handling the war, that the slow-paced, dawdling course of the conflict is hurting him, with the U.S. presidential elections just over the horizon.

Through The Years

THIRTY YEARS AGO — The Rev. C. W. Lindeman assumed his duties as pastor of the Chester Church of the Nazarene, replacing the Rev. Robert W. Wellmon.

The streets and roads committee of the Chamber of Commerce disclosed plans for the construction of a Horn Switch highway cutoff between Dresden Ave. and Jefferson St. at W. 8th St.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Mr. and Mrs. John W. Barrett observed their silver anniversary with an open house at their home on Ohio Ave.

TEN YEARS AGO — Erection of a platform at Chester City Park's football field for scoreboard operators, spotters and cameramen was authorized during a meeting of the Purple and Gold Club.

An East End woman crawled out of her smashed 1950 sedan uninjured after a spectacular accident on the River Rd. Her car struck another and then plowed into an Ohio Power Co. pole, snapping a 22,000-volt transmission line and a 4,000-volt distribution line.

Pope Paul Opens Door Of Conservative Curia

VATICAN CITY (AP) — With little fanfare, Pope Paul VI is opening the doors of the conservative Roman Curia to direct influence by national conferences of Roman Catholic bishops around the world.

This may turn out to be the most significant move in his developing program to make the Curia, the central administration of the Church, more democratic and modern.

The move was announced Saturday with publication of a signed decree stipulating that diocesan bishops would be made full members of the 12 congregations, the major Curia agencies.

Seven bishops will be named to each of the 12 congregations plus three heads of orders to the Congregation of the Religious.

This means 84 bishops from various conferences will come to the Vatican each year to attend the congregations' plenary meetings dealing with policy and major decisions.

The bishops in effect will be representatives of bishops in their homelands, exercising for the first time a direct say on Curia actions from the bishops in the field.

The influence can be considerable, depending on how many cardinals are already members.

In the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, for example, there are now 11 Curia cardinals—headed by conservative Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani—and 3 cardinals from the outside. With the bishops, the lineup will be 11 Curia cardinals and 10 other prelates.

In the consistorial Congregation, which deals with the selection and discipline of bishops, the present lineup is 16 Curia cardinals and 11 from the outside.

The new lineup will be 16 and 18, giving outside prelates a majority.

Up to now appointments to top Curia posts have practically amounted to life terms. The bishops coming in from the dioceses will serve for five years, then be replaced. This means a regular turnover of people and ideas, the new blood that progressive church circles have been calling for.

It is especially significant that the national conferences of bishops will do the selecting for the new Curia posts.

Pope Paul will make the formal appointments, but at his order the names of candidates will be drawn up by the conferences and submitted to Rome.

Potteries 'Disinterested,' Festival Plans Are Dropped

The Pottery Festival which had been planned for Labor Day by the Wellsville Jaycees has been called off, William J. Telzrow, president, announced today.

"We contacted every pottery and pottery outlet in the area," Telzrow explained, "but only three responded."

Two potteries — the Taylor, Smith & Taylor Co. and the W. C. Bunting Co. — said they would have installed a booth displaying their wares at the festival, Telzrow said, and another firm indicated disinterest in the project.

"The balance didn't even answer our letter," he continued.

In lieu of the festival, the Jaycees will hold their normal Labor Day program.

Case Continued, Fines Levied In Others By Judge

The case of Elmer Sylvester Call of 1230 Ceramic St., was continued until Thursday in Municipal Court this morning at the request of Call's attorney, George Aronson. Call is charged with drunken driving after an accident on Dresden Ave. Friday. He has posted $307.50 bond.

Ray C. Grable Jr. of 1009 Anderson Ave., Wellsville, was fined $25 and costs for speeding. He was arrested Aug. 5 by the Ohio highway patrol, but failed to appear Friday morning before the judge. The judge, after learning Grable had been out of the city, reinstated his bond.

Albert J. Baker of 627 Railroad St. forfeited $32.50 bond on an intoxication charge filed Saturday morning by city police. Chertoff ordered a bench warrant issued for Baker's arrest.

Francis Fetty of 843 Sophia St., also charged with intoxication was fined $50 and costs and sent to the County Jail at Lisbon. He was charged about 9 a. m. Saturday by police here.

Thomas Ross Pinkerton of 1018 St. Clair Ave. paid $25 and costs for riding his motorcycle without a muffler. He was arrested Saturday night on E. 2nd St.

Thomas M. Ash of 906 Neptune Ave., Chester, forfeited a $17.50 bond on a speeding charge.

Glen McCoy of Grimms Bridge RD 3 had his case continued until Aug. 21. He is charged by the patrol with driving while his license is under suspension. He was arrested at 11:15 a.m. Saturday on St. Clair Ave.

Allen Joseph Sandgren, 18, of 214 N. River Ave., Toronto, was ordered to pay court costs after he pleaded guilty to driving an unsafe vehicle. He was arrested on Route 45 Friday, about 7:40 p.m. by the patrol. The officer listed nine items as being either out of order or unsafe on the defendant's car. Sandgren told the judge he has repaired nearly all of the faulty parts.

Elijah Milton Coley of Youngstown was fined $10 and costs for changing lanes without signaling. He was arrested Friday on Route 7, at 1:15 p. m.

World's largest claims are found in the coral reefs of Australia and the East Indies. They reach a length of four feet and a weight of 500 pounds.

Gambling and wagering activities continue to be widespread in the state, according to the federal records at Parkersburg.

The Internal Revenue Service records surveyed by The Associated Press show 182 applications have been made by individuals and clubs for 150 federal wagering stamps.

The survey also shows that one of every eight West Virginia private clubs holding a state liquor license also has applied for the $250 federal gambling stamp.

Gambling is illegal in the state, but merely holding a gambling stamp is not against the law.

The private club liquor law calls for revoking licenses of those private clubs convicted of being involved in gambling activities.

As a practical matter, county prosecutors have had trouble winning gambling convictions because the law is vague in definitions of modern gaming devices.

The Associated Press survey of IRS records show 609 persons or groups in the state have applied for the gaming stamps for the 1967-68 fiscal year. That is a sharp drop from recent years, when more than 1,000 applications were filed with the IRS.

Among them, 66 also are among the 512 private clubs which have received 1967-68 private club liquor licenses. This total does not include the additional club licenses issued by the state late last week as the new licenses were not included in the survey.

Most of the club licensees applying for gaming device stamps are in the Class A category, covering nationally affiliated, nonprofit fraternal or veterans organizations.

Those groups applying for the gambling stamps in the names of the organizations or through individuals at the same addresses included: 14 Elks lodges, 12 American Legion posts, 10 Veterans of Foreign Wars posts, 7 Moose lodges, 6 Eagles clubs and 2 Owls clubs.

Nearly 33 per cent of the licensed clubs applying for gaming stamps are in the Northern Panhandle, where three counties account for 173 applications.

Among them Marshall County has the largest with 67. Others are Brooke with 56 and Hancock with 50.

A drastic change was recorded in Ohio County, where only one gaming stamp application was filed. In recent years there have been more than 150 holders of the stamps in this county alone.

One possible explanation has been the administration of the private club liquor law. Alcohol Beverage Control Commissioner Clarence C. Elmore said in the outset of administering the law that no liquor licenses would be given to clubs with gambling devices.

The 182 wagering stamps were applied for by individuals in 18 counties. Marion County had the most applicants with 35, followed by Hancock County with 26, Harrison with 17, Ohio and Cabell with 15 each, McDowell with 13 and Wood with 12.

Judge Fines Area Driver

A Chester youth was fined and given a suspended 10-day jail sentence after a hearing today in Municipal Court.

Dennis Seth Smith, 20, pleaded guilty to a charge of drag racing.

Patrolman L. E. Richard, who witnessed the incident on the River Rd. early today, told Judge Samuel Chertoff he had just checked an oil firm on the stretch and saw two cars sitting in the middle of the roadway with a man between them.

Richard said he watched as the man lowered his arms and the two vehicles sped off. Smith got only about 400 feet down the road, Richard added, when his car broke down.

Richard said he tried to chase the other driver but the car was going faster than he cared to drive on the highway.

Chertoff fined Smith $100 and costs and ordered him sent to jail. However, Chertoff said later, he decided to suspend the sentence on condition the youth not drive in East Liverpool again. The judge noted Smith was leaving for Korea within 30 days for assignment with the Signal Corps.

Pope Paul Opens Door Of Conservative Curia

VATICAN CITY (AP) — With little fanfare, Pope Paul VI is opening the doors of the conservative Roman Curia to direct influence by national conferences of Roman Catholic bishops around the world.

This may turn out to be the most significant move in his developing program to make the Curia, the central administration of the Church, more democratic and modern.

The move was announced Saturday with publication of a signed decree stipulating that diocesan bishops would be made full members of the 12 congregations, the major Curia agencies.

Seven bishops will be named to each of the 12 congregations plus three heads of orders to the Congregation of the Religious.

This means 84 bishops from various conferences will come to the Vatican each year to attend the congregations' plenary meetings dealing with policy and major decisions.

The bishops in effect will be representatives of bishops in their homelands, exercising for the first time a direct say on Curia actions from the bishops in the field.

The influence can be considerable, depending on how many cardinals are already members.

In the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, for example, there are now 11 Curia cardinals—headed by conservative Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani—and 3 cardinals from the outside. With the bishops, the lineup will be 11 Curia cardinals and 10 other prelates.

In the consistorial Congregation, which deals with the selection and discipline of bishops, the present lineup is 16 Curia cardinals and 11 from the outside.

The new lineup will be 16 and 18, giving outside prelates a majority.

Up to now appointments to top Curia posts have practically amounted to life terms. The bishops coming in from the dioceses will serve for five years, then be replaced. This means a regular turnover of people and ideas, the new blood that progressive church circles have been calling for.

It is especially significant that the national conferences of bishops will do the selecting for the new Curia posts.

Pope Paul will make the formal appointments, but at his order the names of candidates will be drawn up by the conferences and submitted to Rome.

Potteries 'Disinterested,' Festival Plans Are Dropped

The Pottery Festival which had been planned for Labor Day by the Wellsville Jaycees has been called off, William J. Telzrow, president, announced today.

"We contacted every pottery and pottery outlet in the area," Telzrow explained, "but only three responded."

Two potteries — the Taylor, Smith & Taylor Co. and the W. C. Bunting Co. — said they would have installed a booth displaying their wares at the festival, Telzrow said, and another firm indicated disinterest in the project.

"The balance didn't even answer our letter," he continued.

In lieu of the festival, the Jaycees will hold their normal Labor Day program.

A free band concert will be held Sept. 3 at the post office parking lot in Wellsville, beginning at 7 p.m.

On Labor Day, Sept. 4, a picnic and baby contest is set for 1:30 p.m., at the Roadside Park on Route 45 and 7.

The beauty pageant to name Miss Wellsville Jaycee will be held at the high school auditorium at 8 p.m.

24 Hours Of Terror In Well

'Thought I Was A Goner,' Youth Says After Rescue

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (AP) — An odd job to earn money for school clothes almost cost 15-year-old Leonard Boyce his life. He climbed into a neighbor's water well on a cleaning project, then faced 24 hours of deathly terror.

Tons of rock and earth collapsed on the youth 14 feet underground Friday evening and it took some 40 rescue workers using shovels, bare hands and earth moving equipment until Saturday evening to pull him free.

"I thought I was a goner for sure," recalled Boyce from his hospital bed here, where he was reported in good condition today after two nights of good sleep.

Boyce, of Parsley's Bottom near this southwestern West Virginia community close to the Kentucky border, was trapped up to his chest and went without food except for some water and hot chocolate during the 24 hours that workers frantically tried to set him free.

Cave-in after cave-in frustrated rescue efforts and for awhile some workers feared the well would collapse and entomb the youth.

After the boy was pulled free the rescue trenches and the well, in the sloping front yard of Willard Howell, were filled in by a bulldozer.

Smiling from his hospital bed, but still able to eat only soft foods, Boyce said "Praying helped pull me through."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Boyce along with dozens of other relatives and well-wishers visited him Sunday.

"I never would have lasted two hours in a place like that," said the father. "He has more spunk than the rest of the family put together," referring to the youngster's 10 brothers and sisters.

"That's why I never gave up hope," the elder Boyce said.

"It's a horrible thing to be 15 feet away from a boy and not be able to give him your hand when he wants it," he continued.

Leonard will be a sophomore in Lenore High School this fall. His father, a former coal miner, receives about $250 monthly from the state Welfare Department.

Mrs. Howell, who remained sleepless as the rescue workers met one setback after another, said later, "I don't believe I could have taken it for another night."

She said she was "afraid they would start pulling him out and the whole well would cave in."

Boyce, attempting to climb out of the well, knocked loose a couple of large rocks, that triggered the cave-in, and he was trapped.

Rescue operations were hampered by the loose soil and because he was trapped a ittle more than halfway down the 21-foot well. Trenches were dug deep alongside the well and Boyce was pulled free from below at 5:07 p.m. Saturday.

Minor Accidents Are Listed Here

Three accidents — all minor, including two involving hit-skip cases — were reported to police over the weekend.

Earl Taylor of 703 Oakland Ave. reported someone backed into his truck, got out, inspected the damage and then drove away, about 7:04 p.m. Sunday. The vehicle was parked at Chaffin St. and Canavan Alley.

Randy Bowersock, 17, of 529 Wedgewood St. said he parked the auto there between 3:50 and 4:45 p.m.. and noticed the dam age when he drove to a nearby service station.

William C. Williams, 16, of 745 Garner Ave. said he backed into a parked vehicle owned by Frank Hull of 2621 St. Clair Ave., on a service station lot at the corner of St. Clair and Cain St. about 8:08 p.m. Saturday.

No injuries resulted from any of the accidents and no charges were filed.

Station Curbs Power For Antenna Project

Start of installation of a new antenna at WIIC television station (Channtl 11) at Pittsburgh has brought a temporary reduction of power of the station signal in the tri-state area while an auxiliary antenna is used.

The auxiliary antenna is 300 feet lower than the regular one, authorities said, and the period of reduced coverage is expected to last about two weeks. The effect of the reduced power is expected in remote areas where CATV systems are utilized, officials said.

Body Recovered In Lake Believed Victim Of Crash

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — The Coast Guard recovered a badly decomposed body in Lake Erie Sunday a few miles east of here and authorities believe it is one of the victims from a plane crash last December.

It is the third body recovered from the lake in less than three weeks.

Ashtabula County sheriff's deputies say they believe the body is that of Anthony F. Farinacci, 32, of Madison, owner of a single-engine plane that disappeared last Dec. 19 while returning from Port Erie Airport in Pennsylvania. The plane was never found.

There were four persons aboard the missing plane and the bodies of two of the victims have been recovered—Marie Nevels, 21, of Munich, Germany, and Harry Bissel III, 27, of Painesville Township, Lake County.

Moore Hits W.Va Democrats For 'Century Of Mediocrity'

WELCH (AP) — Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr. R-W.Va., accused the Democrats in West Virginia of thrusting "a century of mediocrity upon our shoulders."

In remarks introducing Rep. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio, at a Republican rally here Sunday, Moore said neighboring states have a yearly economic growth rate ranging from 23 to 28 per cent while the West Virginia administration boasts of a 3 per cent increase.

Moore, who has often been mentioned as a Republican candidate for governor next year, said "West Virginians are tired of a tired administration, of an administration that can not generate a spark to induce new industry to join hands with it in developing the state."

Turning to the hibhways in West Virginia, Moore said "We are miserably behind on completion of the Appalachian Highway, 435 miles have been allocated in West Virginia but only 12 have even been graded."

On the interstate program, Moore said, "Of interstate highway mileage allocated West Virginia since 1956, the state has completed only about 12 per cent."

When Taft spoke, he called Moore "a bright star" in the Republican delegation in Congress.

Taft described the national administration as "an exhausted executive department and a congressional majority without answers to America's many domestic and foreign probblems."

Taft said the solution "will only come from increasing Republican power at all levels of government."

He said, "We are becoming aware that a tired administration cannot meet today's challenges. She is beginning to worry about what will happen tomorrow."

Taft charged the Johnson administration with being unable to meet the crises in Vietnam, the Middle East and the problem of foreign aid.

"At home," Taft said, "the administration cannot meet the challenges of maintaining a stable economy. The proposed Johnson tax increase may spiral us into a depression, while at the same time a failure to slice federal spending accelerates the problem of inflation."

24 Hours Of Terror In Well

'Thought I Was A Goner,' Youth Says After Rescue

WILLIAMSON, W.Va. (AP) — An odd job to earn money for school clothes almost cost 15-year-old Leonard Boyce his life. He climbed into a neighbor's water well on a cleaning project, then faced 24 hours of deathly terror.

Tons of rock and earth collapsed on the youth 14 feet underground Friday evening and it took some 40 rescue workers using shovels, bare hands and earth moving equipment until Saturday evening to pull him free.

"I thought I was a goner for sure," recalled Boyce from his hospital bed here, where he was reported in good condition today after two nights of good sleep.

Boyce, of Parsley's Bottom near this southwestern West Virginia community close to the Kentucky border, was trapped up to his chest and went without food except for some water and hot chocolate during the 24 hours that workers frantically tried to set him free.

Cave-in after cave-in frustrated rescue efforts and for awhile some workers feared the well would collapse and entomb the youth.

After the boy was pulled free the rescue trenches and the well, in the sloping front yard of Willard Howell, were filled in by a bulldozer.

Smiling from his hospital bed, but still able to eat only soft foods, Boyce said "Praying helped pull me through."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Boyce along with dozens of other relatives and well-wishers visited him Sunday.

"I never would have lasted two hours in a place like that," said the father. "He has more spunk than the rest of the family put together," referring to the youngster's 10 brothers and sisters.

"That's why I never gave up hope," the elder Boyce said.

"It's a horrible thing to be 15 feet away from a boy and not be able to give him your hand when he wants it," he continued.

Leonard will be a sophomore in Lenore High School this fall. His father, a former coal miner, receives about $250 monthly from the state Welfare Department.

Mrs. Howell, who remained sleepless as the rescue workers met one setback after another, said later, "I don't believe I could have taken it for another night."

She said she was "afraid they would start pulling him out and the whole well would cave in."

Boyce, attempting to climb out of the well, knocked loose a couple of large rocks, that trigered the cave-in, and he was trapped.

Rescue operations were hampered by the loose soil and because he was trapped a ittle more than halfway down the 21-foot well. Trenches were dug deep alongside the well and Boyce was pulled free from below at 5:07 p.m. Saturday.

Minor Accidents Are Listed Here

Three accidents — all minor, including two involving hit-skip cases — were reported to police over the weekend.

Earl Taylor of 703 Oakland Ave. reported someone backed into his truck, got out, inspected the damage and then drove away, about 7:04 p.m. Sunday. The vehicle was parked at Chaffin St. and Canavan Alley.

Randy Bowersock, 17, of 529 Wedgewood St. said he parked the auto there between 3:50 and 4:45 p.m.. and noticed the damage when he drove to a nearby service station.

William C. Williams, 16, of 745 Garner Ave. said he backed into a parked vehicle owned by Frank Hull of 2621 St. Clair Ave., on a service station lot at the corner of St. Clair and Cain St. about 8:08 p.m. Saturday.

No injuries resulted from any of the accidents and no charges were filed.

Station Curbs Power For Antenna Project

Start of installation of a new antenna at WIIC television station (Channtl 11) at Pittsburgh has brought a temporary reduction of power of the station signal in the tri-state area while an auxiliary antenna is used.

The auxiliary antenna is 300 feet lower than the regular one, authorities said, and the period of reduced coverage is expected to last about two weeks. The effect of the reduced power is expected in remote areas where CATV systems are utilized, officials said.

killed In Glacier National Park

Lightning Cited As Cause Of Bears Attack On Girls

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) — The superintendent of Glacier National Park says lightning may have goaded two grizzly bears into killing two 19-year-old girls early Sunday in as they slept in sleeping bags in this rugged wilderness.

Killed in the separate incidents 20 miles apart in the mountainous park on the Montana-Canada border were Julie Helgeson of Albert Lea, Minn., and Michele Koons of San Diego, Calif. Roy Ducat, 18, of Perrysburg, Ohio, was seriously injured by the bear that killed Miss Helgeson.

Forest rangers pressed a search for the killer animals.

Park Supt. Keith Neilson said his only theory on the attacks was that lightning strikes in the park alarmed the normally shy, near-sighted grizzlies into attacking.

Lightning started 14 forest fires in the park Saturday and Sunday. More than 400 firefighters tried to control them. The park has had no rain since June.

"There seems to be an association between the lightning and the attacks," Neilson said, "but we can't be sure. There is no scarcity of natural food and the grizzly is an unusually shy animal. It's strange for them to attack."

Neilson said he has had several reports of bears nudging people in sleeping bags this summer, but they ran when the campers screamed.

The bear that killed Miss Koons sniffed at four other sleeping bags while the occupants lay frozen with fear, then attacked Miss Koons, Neilson said.

All three victims were employed for the summer in park hotels. Miss Koons worked in the gift shop at Lake McDonald Lodge. Miss Helgeson worked in the laundry at East Glacier Lodge and Ducat was a busboy at East Glacier. They were on outings on their days off.

The two girls were the first people reported killed by bears since the park opened in 1910, although several have been injured.

Neilson said Glen Cole, Park Service biologist from Yellowstone National Park, had been summoned to try to figure out why the bears attacked.

Park rangers armed with rifles combed the Granite Park Chalet area where Miss Helgeson was attacked and the Trout Lake area 20 miles west where Miss Koons was killed. All trails in the area were closed to campers and hikers.

Ducat, who was recovering in a Kalispell hospital, told rangers that the bear attacked Miss Helgeson first, then pounced on him in his sleeping bag nearby. He said he escaped and the bear went back to Miss Helgeson.

Ducat staggered bleeding and in shock to a nearby campsite and other campers helped him to a chalet a quarter mile away.

Killed In Glacier National Park

Lightning Cited As Cause Of Bears Attack On Girls

WEST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) — The superintendent of Glacier National Park says lightning may have goaded two grizzly bears into killing two 19-year-old girls early Sunday as they slept in sleeping bags in this rugged wilderness.

Killed in the separate incidents 20 miles apart in the mountainous park on the Montana-Canada border were Julie Helgeson of Albert Lea, Minn., and Michele Koons of San Diego, Calif. Roy Ducat, 18, of Perrysburg, Ohio, was seriously injured by the bear that killed Miss Helgeson.

Park Supt. Keith Neilson said his only theory on the attacks was that lightning strikes in the park alarmed the normally shy, near-sighted grizzlies into attacking.

Lightning started 14 forest fires in the park Saturday and Sunday. More than 400 firefighters tried to control them. The park has had no rain since June.

"There seems to be an association between the lightning and the attacks," Neilson said, "but we can't be sure. There is no scarcity of natural food and the grizzly is an unusually shy animal. It's strange for them to attack."

Neilson said he has had several reports of bears nudging people in sleeping bags this summer, but they ran when the campers screamed.

The bear that killed Miss Koons sniffed at four other sleeping bags while the occupants lay frozen with fear, then attacked Miss Koons, Neilson said.

All three victims were employed for the summer in park hotels. Miss Koons worked in the gift shop at Lake McDonald Lodge. Miss Helgeson worked in the laundry at East Glacier Lodge and Ducat was a busboy at East Glacier. They were on outings on their days off.

The two girls were the first people reported killed by bears since the park opened in 1910, although several have been injured.

Neilson said Glen Cole, Park Service biologist from Yellowstone National Park, had been summoned to try to figure out why the bears attacked.

Park rangers armed with rifles combed the Granite Park Chalet area where Miss Helgeson was attacked and the Trout Lake area 20 miles west where Miss Koons was killed. All trails in the area were closed to campers and hikers.

Ducat, who was recovering in a Kalispell hospital, told rangers that the bear attacked Miss Helgeson first, then pounced on him in his sleeping bag nearby. He said he escaped and the bear went back to Miss Helgeson.

Ducat staggered bleeding and in shock to a nearby campsite and other campers helped him to a chalet a quarter mile away.

1 Coal Miner Killed, 14 Trapped In Blast

MIERES, Spain (AP) — An explosion killed at least one coal miner, critically hurt another and trapped 14 or 15 in a mine near Mieres today.

One body was removed from the pit at mid-morning and a critically injured miner was rescued about two hours after the blast.

Seveteen miners were first reported trapped but mine officials said later they were not certain of the number.

Ambulances, medical equipment and rescue parties were rushed to the mine, but efforts to contact the trapped miners have been unsuccessful so far.

Jacqueline Hopper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hopper of 7th Ave., LaCroft, said she has not received official notification of the incident.

The couple was married June 11 while he was on a 30-day leave.

Craft was taken to the battalion hospital for drainage of the shoulder, removal of shrapnel and treatment for infection. His letter, dated Aug. 7, said he will be taken back to Cu Chi, where he had earlier been stationed, for further recuperation and reassignment.

"I felt God was with me," the soldier wrote, "and feel lucky that no one was with me when the shell exploded."

He said his pup tent, constructed before the mission, "looked like a vegetable colander" when he returned, with holes from sniper fire and grenades.

Craft said he will be awarded a Purple Heart by the Army.

He entered the service in 1966 after attending the Kent State Academic Center here for one year. Craft is a 1965 graduate of East Liverpool High School.

1 Coal Miner Killed, 14 Trapped In Blast

MIERES, Spain (AP) — An explosion killed at least one coal miner, critically hurt another and trapped 14 or 15 in a mine near Mieres today.

One body was removed from the pit at mid-morning and a critically injured miner was rescued about two hours after the blast.

Seveteen miners were first reported trapped but mine officials said later they were not certain of the number.

Ambulances, medical equipment and rescue parties were rushed to the mine, but efforts to contact the trapped miners have been unsuccessful so far.

Jacqueline Hopper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hopper of 7th Ave., LaCroft, said she has not received official notification of the incident.

The couple was married June 11 while he was on a 30-day leave.

Craft was taken to the battalion hospital for drainage of the shoulder, removal of shrapnel and treatment for infection. His letter, dated Aug. 7, said he will be taken back to Cu Chi, where he had earlier been stationed, for further recuperation and reassignment.

"I felt God was with me," the soldier wrote, "and feel lucky that no one was with me when the shell exploded."

He said his pup tent, constructed before the mission, "looked like a vegetable colander" when he returned, with holes from sniper fire and grenades.

Craft said he will be awarded a Purple Heart by the Army.

He entered the service in 1966 after attending the Kent State Academic Center here for one year. Craft is a 1965 graduate of East Liverpool High School.

a rigged election in South Vietnam," said Clifford.

He added: "It is my private view that they will do all in their power to make them fair and honest elections, because I think they understand very clearly the result that will take place in this country in the loss of support for South Vietnam if they are not that way."

Taylor said everything he saw "indicates that the government is insistent on an honest election. They are making every effort, under the conditions of war, to obtain conditions where campaigning is possible and with a maximum participation of the voters.

Clifford said he is sure the Thieu-Ky government would relinquish power if an opposition ticket wins the election Sept. 3.

He said also "there is a general feeling there that whichever ticket is elected...some gesture will be made by the new government of South Vietnam to see if it can, by direct contact with Hanoi, start some sort of negotiations.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said in an interview unless Johnson acts soon to insure honest campaigning and elections, senators who doubt Ky's and Thieu's sincerity will return to the attack.

initial engagement Saturday. Two reinforcing battalions reported light casualties.

Vietnamese militia defending the Huong Dien subsector post on the coast 10 miles north of Hue reported killing 52 guerrillas in a six-hour battle Sunday. The defenders suffered light casualties, an army spokesman said.

Government troops said they later captured three automatic rifles, six rocket launchers and 100 quarter-pound packages of TNT which the guerrillas apparently had planned to use against the outpost.

Reports from Cao Lanh, a provincial capital 72 miles west of Saigon, said Communist mortars killed seven dependents of South Vietnamese troops and wounded 12 others.

In an accident near Da Nang, two 60mm mortar rounds fired by U.S. Marines landed in a Navy Seabee compound, wounding 21 men.

The intensified air raids on North Vietnam appeared to reflect the Johnson administration's announced policy of increasing pressure on the Communists.

as the mysterious Clay Bertrand.

Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison contends that Shaw, 54, a wealthy New Orleans businessman, used "Bertrand" as an alias to plot the murder of Kennedy.

"He told them the truth," said Burglass. "But he's got a jivey way of doing it. He told them Clay Shaw was not Clay Bertrand, but they say he lied.

"Most of us live humdrum lives. But something exciting happened to Dean—Bertrand. Up until that time, he didn't have an enemy in the world. He was on TV, he was here, he was there. He got swirled up into something a lot bigger than anything he had ever dreamed".

A desire for attention, said Asst. Dist. Atty. James Alcock, is not an excuse for lying to the grand jury trying to determine whether there was a conspiracy to kill a president.

Alcock stressed that Andrews, at his second grand jury appearance, identified Bertrand as Eugene Davis, a French Quarter bar owner—and when asked why he hadn't said so before, replied:

"So I lied. So I committed perjury. I don't know what I said."

a rigged election in South Vietnam," said Clifford.

He added: "It is my private view that they will do all in their power to make them fair and honest elections, because I think they understand very clearly the result that will take place in this country in the loss of support for South Vietnam if they are not that way."

Taylor said everything he saw "indicates that the government is insistent on an honest election. They are making every effort, under the conditions of war, to obtain conditions where campaigning is possible and with a maximum participation of the voters.

Clifford said he is sure the Thieu-Ky government would relinquish power if an opposition ticket wins the election Sept. 3.

He said also "there is a general feeling there that whichever ticket is elected...some gesture will be made by the new government of South Vietnam to see if it can, by direct contact with Hanoi, start some sort of negotiations.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said in an interview unless Johnson acts soon to insure honest campaigning and elections, senators who doubt Ky's and Thieu's sincerity will return to the attack.

initial engagement Saturday. Two reinforcing battalions reported light casualties.

Vietnamese militia defending the Huong Dien subsector post on the coast 10 miles north of Hue reported killing 52 guerrillas in a six-hour battle Sunday. The defenders suffered light casualties, an army spokesman said.

Government troops said they later captured three automatic rifles, six rocket launchers and 100 quarter-pound packages of TNT which the guerrillas apparently had planned to use against the outpost.

Reports from Cao Lanh, a provincial capital 72 miles west of Saigon, said Communist mortars killed seven dependents of South Vietnamese troops and wounded 12 others.

In an accident near Da Nang, two 60mm mortar rounds fired by U.S. Marines landed in a Navy Seabee compound, wounding 21 men.

The intensified air raids on North Vietnam appeared to reflect the Johnson administration's announced policy of increasing pressure on the Communists.

Andrews

as the mysterious Clay Bertrand.

Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison contends that Shaw, 54, a wealthy New Orleans businessman, used "Bertrand" as an alias to plot the murder of Kennedy.

"He told them the truth," said Burglass. "But he's got a jivey way of doing it. He told them Clay Shaw was not Clay Bertrand, but they say he lied.

"Most of us live humdrum lives. But something exciting happened to Dean—Bertrand. Up until that time, he didn't have an enemy in the world. He was on TV, he was here, he was there. He got swirled up into something a lot bigger than anything he had ever dreamed".

A desire for attention, said Asst. Dist. Atty. James Alcock, is not an excuse for lying to the grand jury trying to determine whether there was a conspiracy to kill a president.

Alcock stressed that Andrews, at his second grand jury appearance, identified Bertrand as Eugene Davis, a French Quarter bar owner—and when asked why he hadn't said so before, replied:

"So I lied. So I committed perjury. I don't know what I said."

Pennsylvania Legislature Heads Eye Tax Program

HARRISBURG (AP) — Legislative leaders were set to open negotiations today in an attempt to break the two-month deadlock over Gov. Shafer's proposed $267 million tax program.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders said they were hopeful they would be able to smooth out their differences and reach a compromise.

No time was set for the leadership meeting. The House and Senate both were scheduled to convene at 3 p.m.

Shafer called on the legislative leaders for help on his budget problems last week. The governor's proposed $1.79 billion budget is bottled up in the Senate and his tax program has bogged down in the House.

House leaders have indicated that a reduced tax package — perhaps $200 million — would be certain of passage. That leaves such major questions to be resolved as how much the budget can be cut and what new taxes will be needed to balance it.

Shafer has consistently argued that his budget has been trimmed to the bone and further cuts would imperil services the people of Pennsylvania want and need.

However, House Minority Leader Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia, says he still believes Shafer's tax proposal can be cut.

"I've said all along that we'll need new taxes to some extent," Fineman said, "but certainly not the $267 million proposed by the administration."

House Majority Leader Lee A. Donaldson Jr., R-Allegheny, said he was hopeful an agreement could be reached through negotiations.

"But, of course," Donaldson added, "we can't tell what is going to happen before we actually sit down and discuss our differences."

Other leaders who will be sitting at the conference table are Senate Majority Leader Stanley G. Stroup, R-Bedford, and Senate Minority Leader Ernest P. Kline, D-Beaver.

Reportedly, House Democrats would be willing to accept $114 million in new business taxes and a 5-cent boost in the cigarette tax that would bring in $66 million.

That, plus $13 million that could be gained by retaining the cent-a-pack Korean Veterans Bonus tax on cigarettes, would bring in $193 million in new tax dollars — far less than the administration wants.

There also were reports that the House Ways and Means Committee was considering still more new tax proposals.

The downtown pumper was delayed while en route to the home by a train at the Broadway crossing, firemen said.

Firemen were summoned to Broadway and 2nd St. Sunday at 4:57 p. m. when the wiring started burning in a 1961 model car owned by Helen Harris of 72(St. Clair Ave. A short circuit had developed and firemen disconnected the battery.

Twins Nudge White Sox Lead American League

Tigers, Angels Also Win As Race Gets Tighter

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Eddie Stanky must have thought it was all a bad dream.

Here was Minnesota tip-toeing away with the American League lead and using a pitch and putt attack more characteristic of Stanky's Chicago White Sox to do it.

So, with first place slowly drifting away, Stanky decided to put up a fight. And all that strategy got him was an early shower. About two outs early.

The Twins were nursing a 3-2 lead built on a Chicago-type rally of two singles, a double steal, an intentional walk, and a force play. When Tommie Agee opened the ninth with a long double, Stanky thought he was back in business.

But Agee, trying to stretch his hit, was thrown out at third on a close play. Stanky rushed umpire Bill Valentine, tossed his cap, jawed nose to nose and was invited to leave early. Two outs later, the rest of the White Sox followed.

The 3-2 victory moved the Twins into the league lead, ½ game in front of Chicago. Detroit, which beat Baltimore 3-2, is third, one game back. California took fourth place, 1½ games behind, by beating Boston 3-2. The Red Sox are fifth, 2½ games out.

In other American League games, New York outslugged Cleveland 15-11 and Washington blanked Kansas City 2-0.

The Twins' victory was their fourth straight and completed an 8-2 home stand. "Now we've got to have a good road trip to make it stick," said Manager Cal Ermer.

Stanky locked the clubhouse door for 30 minutes after the game and wouldn't discuss the play at third base on Agee. "We got beat 3-2," he said. "That's all I've got to say."

The Twins pushed the winning run across in the eighth. Cesar Tovar and Tony Oliva opened with singles and worked the double steal after Harmon Killebrew struck out.

Bob Allison was intentionally walked and then Don Buford deflected Rich Rollins' bouncer to Ron Hansen, who forced Killebrew at second as Tovar scored.

Rollins drove in all three Minnesota runs and Agee homered for the White Sox.

Detroit got a three-run homer from light-hitting Ray Oyler to beat the Orioles. Oyler, batting .206, tagged his first homer of the season in the second inning after Al Kaline doubled and Jim Price walked.

Paul Blair and Curt Blefary touched winner Earl Wilson, 16-9, for homers. Rookie Fred Lasher finished up for the Tigers.

California won its fourth straight, with home runs by Jose Cardenal and Roger Repoz the big blows. Cardenal's inside the-park shot led off the game for the Angels and Repoz connected against loser Jim Lonborg, 16-6 in the second inning.

Rico Petrocelli had a two-run shot for Boston with two out in the ninth, but Bill Kelso, the third Angel pitcher, came on to get the final out.

Bob Tillman drove in six runs —three on a ninth inning homer —and Horace Clarke and Ruben Amaro smacked four hits apiece as the Yankees beat the Indians. Max Alvis rapped a pair of home runs for Cleveland.

Frank Bertaina pitched a five-hitter as the Senators reached .500 again by beating the Athletics. Rick Monday's second inning error and singles by Bernie Allen and Ed Brinkman, provided all the runs Bertaina needed.

The Senators, in sixth place, are only six games behind the league leading Twins, and how's that for a pennant race?

Browns Trounced 42-14 By 49ers

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)— Kezar Stadium is in the heart of San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury hippie section, where LSD is fairly common stuff. The Cleveland Browns were at the stadium Sunday and they definitely had a bad trip—a 60-minute downhill ride.

It was an exhibition football game with the San Francisco 49ers and these warmups are sometimes called tune-ups. The 49ers made it an overhaul with a 42-14 mugging, the Browns' second straight exhibition loss.

The 49ers lost all five of their National Football League exhibition games last season and Coach Jack Christiansen said of this one:

"We're way ahead of this time a year ago . . . We played well, and also got the breaks."

The breaks included five Cleveland fumbles and the 49ers got three of them.

Browns Coach Blanton Collier put it this way: "We made too many mistakes, particularly on the speciality teams."

The 49ers rushed for 148 yards and had 245 yards gained through the air.

Fullback Ken Willard opened the scoring with a one - yard plunge and the 49ers had a 14-0 lead after John Brodie passed 14 yards to Dave Parks. The touchdown was set up when Bob Windsor recovered the 49ers kickoff on the Cleveland 18-yard line.

Cleveland made it 14-7 on a 22-yard touchdown pass from Frank Ryan to Clifton McNeil, and that was as close as the Browns got. Bill Tucker plunged one yard for another touchdown and San Francisco scored two more in the third quarter for a 35-7 lead.

Dave Wilcox picked up a Leroy Kelly fumble and carried six yards for a touchdown and Brodie later connected on a 61-yarder to Kay McFarland for another.

Dave Kopay scored from the two-yard line in the final period after McNeil scored again, on a three yard pass from Gary Lane.

Sore-Armed Unitas Connects On 9 Of 14

BOSTON (AP) — Johnny Unitas, the Baltimore Colts' sharpshooter who won a top share of the National Football League's passing records, still is bothered by a sore arm, but rivals had better beware.

"Sure, the arm still bothers me," the 12-year NFL quarterback said with a shrug Sunday after helping the Colts to a 33-3 victory over the Boston Patriots of the rival American Football League.

Unitas, handicapped by a knee injury and tendonitis in his right shoulder and elbow the past two years, indicated he was a man ready and willing to live with a little pain.

He completed nine of 14 passes for 91 yards and broke out of a trap to rush for eight yards as the Colts built a 19-3 first half lead. Then he retired to the sidelines as Baltimore posted its 13th straight exhibition triumph.

The victory evened the 16-game preseason series between the two leagues at one game each. However, Detroit, a 13-7 upset victim against Denver's AFL Broncos, attempts to break the deadlock tonight as host to the Buffalo Bills, last year's AFL Eastern champs, in the only game scheduled.

The only other game Sunday produced a minor surprise as San Francisco clobbered the Cleveland Browns 42-14 at San Francisco in an all-NFL exhibition.

In the NFL Saturday, Los Angeles whipped Dallas 20-6, Green Bay bounced Pittsburgh 31-20, New Orleans upset St. Louis 23-14, Minnesota trounced Philadelphia 34-0 and the New York Giants and Atlanta played to a 10-10 tie.

In the AFL, Kansas City easily handled the New York Jets 30-17, San Diego nudged Miami 20-19 and Oakland cruised by Houston 24-7.

U.S. Leads Wightman Tennis 3-1

By RICHARD H. SMITH

CLEVELAND (AP) — Texan Nancy Richey and Mrs. Billie Jean King of California both were favored to score their second Wightman Cup tennis singles victories today, but only one needs to conquer her British opponent to give the cup to the Americans for the seventh straight year.

Miss Richey, who performed brilliantly Saturday in upsetting the No. 1 British star, Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones, 6-2, 6-2, gets the first chance to clinch the trophy for the United States for the 33rd time in its 39-year history. She will oppose Virginia Wade, whom she defeated in Wightman Cup play in England last year.

In today's second singles, Mrs. King, 23-year-old world queen of tennis, renews an old rivalry with Mrs. Jones. They will be meeting in Wightman Cup singles for the sixth time in seven years, and Mrs. Jones' only triumph was here two years ago.

Mrs. King, who defeated Miss Wade 6-3, 6-2 Saturday, teamed with 19-year-old Rosemary Casals of San Francisco Sunday for a doubles victory that put the U.S. team ahead 3-1. They overcame Britain's No. 1 doubles team of Jones-Wade 10-8, 6-4.

Christine Truman came from behind to beat Miss Casals 3-6, 7-5, 6-1 in Sunday's opener for the first and only point the British team has scored so far. The duel between the 5-foot-2 Rosie, playing her first Wightman Cup singles, and the 6-foot-1 Miss Truman, who said this eighth appearance in the classic probably is her last, drew repeated applause from 5,837 fans.

Ken Holtzman Tops Phils, Bucs Drop Pair To Mets

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Over in Vietnam, somebody will undoubtedly be glad that Pvt. Ken Holtzman gave a couple of pints of blood last week. Back in Philadelphia, they may wish he wasn't all that civic-minded.

Holtzman, on his first pass from the Army in nearly three months, pitched well enough for 5 1-3 innings for the Chicago Cubs to beat the Phillies 6-2. They took the nightcap, too, 1-0 behind Ferguson Jenkins.

Holtzman, who went into the Army for six months with a 5-0 record on May 20, hopes to make his weekend pitching a regular thing now that he's out of basic training and learning to be a combat medic at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

"I won't know until Friday if I'm going to get a pass," he said. "This weekend I got one by giving two pints of blood. I've got enough left if they say give some more, but I'm not doing it just to get a pass. It goes to Vietnam. I know how much it's needed."

Maybe it was the long layoff or maybe the missing blood, but Holtzman says he began to tire in the fifth and Manager Leo Durocher took the 21-year-old lefty out, though he gave up just four hits, striking out four and walking two.

Bill Stoneman finished up and Ron Santo's 25th homer sparked a three-run fourth inning. Jenkins stopped the Phils on four hits in the second game, winning his 16th game, and Don Kessinger drove in the only run of the game.

In other National League contests Sunday, New York swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 3-0 and 11-9, Cincinnati shut out Los Angeles 3-0, St. Louis edged San Francisco 2-1 and Atlanta crushed Houston 8-4.

Holtzman admitted he "felt a little like a rookie again" when he faced his first major league batter in 85 days, but added, "once I started throwing I had no flutters."

Tom Seaver threw a four-hit shutout in the first game for the Mets, who scored three times in the eighth inning to beat the Pirates. Ed Kranepool's two-out single drove in the only run New York needed.

In the second game, the Pirates took an 8-6 lead into the eighth, but the Mets fought back for five runs on two singles, a sacrifice fly and a force out. Ron Swoboda homered for New York and Willie Stargell and Bob Rodgers connected for the Pirates.

Sammy Ellis made it two shutouts in a row for the Reds over the Dodgers, stopping Los Angeles on three hits. Lee May hit a two-run homer for Cincinnati. Saturday, Milt Pappas blanked the Dodgers on six hits.

The Cardinals scored both their runs in the third inning on a walk, a single by Lou Brock and a double by Alex Johnson. Dick Hughes, with relief help from Joe Hoerner, was the winner. Willie McCovey tripled in the fourth for the Giants and scored on Jim Hart's single.

Rico Carty, Mack Jones and Hank Aaron hit homers for the Braves who won their fifth consecutive game as the Astros dropped their 10th straight and fell into the National League cellar.

Many Records Broken At AAU Swim Meet

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Most of America's brilliant young aquatic stars who made a record-breaking shambles of the National AAU outdoor swim meet last weekend today were pointed towards an autumn display of their talents in Japan or Europe.

A notable exception is Don Schollander, 1964 Olympic star from Saratoga, Calif., who smashed one world record—seven world marks, existing or pending, fell in all—and anchored a world record-matching 800-meter free style relay victory.

Because of prior commitments, Schollander was not included on the 19-man squad named for the World Student Games at Tokyo, Aug. 26-Sept. 5, or the eight-man unit visiting England and West Germany Sept. 27-Oct. 9.

Sensational Mark Spitz, 17, Santa Clara, Calif., who again broke listed world records in the 100 and 200-meter butterfly in the three-day AAU meet, is too young for the Tokyo Games.

But the USA's brightest swim hope for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City is on the team touring England and West Germany.

Schollander: Spitz; breaststroke star Ken Merten of Pacoima, Calif.; backstroker Charles Hickcox, Phoenix, Ariz., and diver Keith Russell of Mesa, Ariz., all were double winners in the AAU meet in which seven American marks and 10 meet AAU marks also were shattered.

Ryun Leads Track Rout Of Britain

By RODNEY PINDER

In a race billed as the Mile of the Century, world record holder Ryun turned in an effortless 3:56.0, well outside his best of 3:51.1. The Kenyan policeman was 1.4 seconds behind.

Britain's toiling Alan Simpson was clocked in 4:00.4 for third on a dull, windy day.

The United States walloped the British 139-84 and one sports writer said today that it reminded him of an old movie featuring "clowns going backward."

Ryun said Saturday the mile was his last of the season. He left with the U.S. team for Dusseldorf, Germany, today for a two-day meet against West Germany Wednesday and Thursday.

"I may run the 1,500 meters in Dusseldorf and the 5,000 meters in Italy," he said. The team visits Italy and Spain for meets Saturday and Sunday.

British sports writers blamed fatalism among the nation's top track stars and lethargy among its controlling officials for the disappointing result. They called for a shakeup of both to avoid humiliation in Mexico.

Roger Bannister, the first runner in the world to break the four-minute mile barrier, declared as he watched the mile finish: "This is really too bad. The fellow looks scarcely out of breath. When I scraped through I cannot remember finishing."

Twins Nudge White Sox, Lead American League

Tigers, Angels Also Win As Race Gets Tighter

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Eddie Stanky must have thought it was all a bad dream.

Here was Minnesota tip-toeing away with the American League lead and using a pitch and putt attack more characteristic of Stanky's Chicago White Sox to do it.

So, with first place slowly drifting away, Stanky decided to put up a fight. And all that strategy got him was an early shower. About two outs early.

The Twins were nursing a 3-2 lead built on a Chicago-type rally of two singles, a double steal, an intentional walk, and a force play. When Tommie Agee opened the ninth with a long double, Stanky thought he was back in business.

But Agee, trying to stretch his hit, was thrown out at third on a close play. Stanky rushed umpire Bill Valentine, tossed his cap, jawed nose to nose and was invited to leave early. Two outs later, the rest of the White Sox followed.

The 3-2 victory moved the Twins into the league lead, ½ game in front of Chicago. Detroit, which beat Baltimore 3-2, is third, one game back. California took fourth place, 1½ games behind, by beating Boston 3-2. The Red Sox are fifth, 2½ games out.

In other American League games, New York outslugged Cleveland 15-11 and Washington blanked Kansas City 2-0.

The Twins' victory was their fourth straight and completed an 8-2 home stand. "Now we've got to have a good road trip to make it stick," said Manager Cal Ermer.

Stanky locked the clubhouse door for 30 minutes after the game and wouldn't discuss the play at third base on Agee. "We got beat 3-2," he said. "That's all I've got to say."

The Twins pushed the winning run across in the eighth. Cesar Tovar and Tony Oliva opened with singles and worked the double steal after Harmon Killebrew struck out.

Bob Allison was intentionally walked and then Don Buford deflected Rich Rollins' bouncer to Ron Hansen, who forced Killebrew at second as Tovar scored.

Rollins drove in all three Minnesota runs and Agee homered for the White Sox.

Detroit got a three-run homer from light-hitting Ray Oyler to beat the Orioles. Oyler, batting .206, tagged his first homer of the season in the second inning after Al Kaline doubled and Jim Price walked.

Paul Blair and Curt Blefary touched winner Earl Wilson, 16-9, for homers. Rookie Fred Lasher finished up for the Tigers.

California won its fourth straight, with home runs by Jose Cardenal and Roger Repoz the big blows. Cardenal's inside the-park shot led off the game for the Angels and Repoz connected against loser Jim Lonborg, 16-6 in the second inning.

Rico Petrocelli had a two-run shot for Boston with two out in the ninth, but Bill Kelso, the third Angel pitcher, came on to get the final out.

Bob Tillman drove in six runs —three on a ninth inning homer —and Horace Clarke and Ruben Amaro smacked four hits apiece as the Yankees beat the Indians. Max Alvis rapped a pair of home runs for Cleveland.

Frank Bertaina pitched a five-hitter as the Senators reached .500 again by beating the Athletics. Rick Monday's second inning error and singles by Bernie Allen and Ed Brinkman, provided all the runs Bertaina needed.

The Senators, in sixth place, are only six games behind the league leading Twins, and how's that for a pennant race?

Fullback Ken Willard opened the scoring with a one - yard plunge and the 49ers had a 14-0 lead after John Brodie passed 14 yards to Dave Parks. The touchdown was set up when Bob Windsor recovered the 49ers kickoff on the Cleveland 18-yard line.

Cleveland made it 14-7 on a 22-yard touchdown pass from Frank Ryan to Clifton McNeil, and that was as close as the Browns got. Bill Tucker plunged one yard for another touchdown and San Francisco scored two more in the third quarter for a 35-7 lead.

Dave Wilcox picked up a Leroy Kelly fumble and carried six yards for a touchdown and Brodie later connected on a 61-yarder to Kay McFarland for another.

Sore-Armed Unitas Connects On 9 Of 14

BOSTON (AP) — Johnny Unitas, the Baltimore Colts' sharpshooter who won a top share of the National Football League's passing records, still is bothered by a sore arm, but rivals had better beware.

"Sure, the arm still bothers me," the 12-year NFL quarterback said with a shrug Sunday after helping the Colts to a 33-3 victory over the Boston Patriots of the rival American Football League.

Unitas, handicapped by a knee injury and tendonitis in his right shoulder and elbow the past two years, indicated he was a man ready and willing to live with a little pain.

He completed nine of 14 passes for 91 yards and broke out of a trap to rush for eight yards as the Colts built a 19-3 first half lead. Then he retired to the sidelines as Baltimore posted its 13th straight exhibition triumph.

The victory evened the 16-game preseason series between the two leagues at one game each. However, Detroit, a 13-7 upset victim against Denver's AFL Broncos, attempts to break the deadlock tonight as host to the Buffalo Bills, last year's AFL Eastern champs, in the only game scheduled.

The only other game Sunday produced a minor surprise as San Francisco clobbered the Cleveland Browns 42-14 at San Francisco in an all-NFL exhibition.

In the NFL Saturday, Los Angeles whipped Dallas 20-6, Green Bay bounced Pittsburgh 31-20, New Orleans upset St. Louis 23-14, Minnesota trounced Philadelphia 34-0 and the New York Giants and Atlanta played to a 10-10 tie.

In the AFL, Kansas City easily handled the New York Jets 30-17, San Diego nudged Miami 20-19 and Oakland cruised by Houston 24-7.

U.S. Leads Wightman Tennis 3-1

By RICHARD H. SMITH

CLEVELAND (AP) — Texan Nancy Richey and Mrs. Billie Jean King of California both were favored to score their second Wightman Cup tennis singles victories today, but only one needs to conquer her British opponent to give the cup to the Americans for the seventh straight year.

Miss Richey, who performed brilliantly Saturday in upsetting the No. 1 British star, Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones, 6-2, 6-2, gets the first chance to clinch the trophy for the United States for the 33rd time in its 39-year history. She will oppose Virginia Wade, whom she defeated in Wightman Cup play in England last year.

In today's second singles, Mrs. King, 23-year-old world queen of tennis, renews an old rivalry with Mrs. Jones. They will be meeting in Wightman Cup singles for the sixth time in seven years, and Mrs. Jones' only triumph was here two years ago.

Mrs. King, who defeated Miss Wade 6-3, 6-2 Saturday, teamed with 19-year-old Rosemary Casals of San Francisco Sunday for a doubles victory that put the U.S. team ahead 3-1. They overcame Britain's No. 1 doubles team of Jones-Wade 10-8, 6-4.

Christine Truman came from behind to beat Miss Casals 3-6, 7-5, 6-1 in Sunday's opener for the first and only point the British team has scored so far. The duel between the 5-foot-2 Rosie, playing her first Wightman Cup singles, and the 6-foot-1 Miss Truman, who said this eighth appearance in the classic probably is her last, drew repeated applause from 5,837 fans.

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Seven games were scheduled for today's opening round of the annual Ohio American Legion Baseball Tournament with teams from Euclid and Cincinnati among the favorites.

The double elimination tournament ends Saturday when a new state champion will emerge. Last year's champion, Grove City, was eliminated in this year's district play.

Fourteen teams are entered, with Cincinnati Bentley and Euclid showing the best records. Bentley was 37 - 4 this year, Euclid 39-3.

Ken Holtzman Tops Phils, Bucs Drop Pair To Mets

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Over in Vietnam, somebody will undoubtedly be glad that Pvt. Ken Holtzman gave a couple of pints of blood last week. Back in Philadelphia, they may wish he wasn't all that civic-minded.

Holtzman, on his first pass from the Army in nearly three months, pitched well enough for 5 1-3 innings for the Chicago Cubs to beat the Phillies 6-2. They took the nightcap, too, 1-0 behind Ferguson Jenkins.

Holtzman, who went into the Army for six months with a 5-0 record on May 20, hopes to make his weekend pitching a regular thing now that he's out of basic training and learning to be a combat medic at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

"I won't know until Friday if I'm going to get a pass," he said. "This weekend I got one by giving two pints of blood. I've got enough left if they say give some more, but I'm not doing it just to get a pass. It goes to Vietnam. I know how much it's needed."

Maybe it was the long layoff or maybe the missing blood, but Holtzman says he began to tire in the fifth and Manager Leo Durocher took the 21-year-old lefty out, though he gave up just four hits, striking out four and walking two.

Bill Stoneman finished up and Ron Santo's 25th homer sparked a three-run fourth inning. Jenkins stopped the Phils on four hits in the second game, winning his 16th game, and Don Kessinger drove in the only run of the game.

In other National League contests Sunday, New York swept a doubleheader from Pittsburgh 3-0 and 11-9, Cincinnati shut out Los Angeles 3-0, St. Louis edged San Francisco 2-1 and Atlanta crushed Houston 8-4.

Holtzman admitted he "felt a little like a rookie again" when he faced his first major league batter in 85 days, but added, "once I started throwing I had no flutters."

Tom Seaver threw a four-hit shutout in the first game for the Mets, who scored three times in the eighth inning to beat the Pirates. Ed Kranepool's two-out single drove in the only run New York needed.

In the second game, the Pirates took an 8-6 lead into the eighth, but the Mets fought back for five runs on two singles, a sacrifice fly and a force out. Ron Swoboda homered for New York and Willie Stargell and Bob Rodgers connected for the Pirates.

Sammy Ellis made it two shutouts in a row for the Reds over the Dodgers, stopping Los Angeles on three hits. Lee May hit a two-run homer for Cincinnati. Saturday, Milt Pappas blanked the Dodgers on six hits.

The Cardinals scored both their runs in the third inning on a walk, a single by Lou Brock and a double by Alex Johnson. Dick Hughes, with relief help from Joe Hoerner, was the winner. Willie McCovey tripled in the fourth for the Giants and scored on Jim Hart's single.

Rico Carty, Mack Jones and Hank Aaron hit homers for the Braves who won their fifth consecutive game as the Astros dropped their 10th straight and fell into the National League cellar.

Many Records Broken At AAU Swim Meet

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Most of America's brilliant young aquatic stars who made a record-breaking shambles of the National AAU outdoor swim meet last weekend today were pointed towards an autumn display of their talents in Japan or Europe.

A notable exception is Don Schollander, 1964 Olympic star from Saratoga, Calif., who smashed one world record—seven world marks, existing or pending, fell in all—and anchored a world record-matching 800-meter free style relay victory.

Because of prior commitments, Schollander was not included on the 19-man squad named for the World Student Games at Tokyo, Aug. 26-Sept. 5, or the eight-man unit visiting England and West Germany Sept. 27-Oct. 9.

Sensational Mark Spitz, 17, Santa Clara, Calif., who again broke listed world records in the 100 and 200-meter butterfly in the three-day AAU meet, is too young for the Tokyo Games.

But the USA's brightest swim hope for the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City is on the team touring England and West Germany.

Schollander; Spitz; breaststroke star Ken Merten of Pacoima, Calif.; backstroker Charles Hickcox, Phoenix, Ariz., and diver Keith Russell of Mesa, Ariz., all were double winners in the AAU meet in which seven American marks and 10 meet AAU marks also were shattered.

Ryun Leads Track Rout Of Britain

By RODNEY PINDER

In a race billed as the Mile of the Century, world record holder Ryun turned in an effortless 3:56.0, well outside his best of 3:51.1. The Kenyan policeman was 1.4 seconds behind.

Britain's toiling Alan Simpson was clocked in 4:00.4 for third on a dull, windy day.

The United States walloped the British 139-84 and one sports writer said today that it reminded him of an old movie featuring "clowns going backward."

Ryun said Saturday the mile was his last of the season. He left with the U.S. team for Dusseldorf, Germany, today for a two-day meet against West Germany Wednesday and Thursday.

"I may run the 1,500 meters in Dusseldorf and the 5,000 meters in Italy," he said. The team visits Italy and Spain for meets Saturday and Sunday.

British sports writers blamed fatalism among the nation's top track stars and lethargy among its controlling officials for the disappointing result. They called for a shakeup of both to avoid humiliation in Mexico.

Roger Bannister, the first runner in the world to break the four-minute mile barrier, declared as he watched the mile finish: "This is really too bad. The fellow looks scarcely out of breath. When I scraped through I cannot remember finishing."

Victory 50th For Palmer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer, the 37-year-old millionaire golfing great, was as happy as a kid Sunday after winning the $100,000 American Golf Classic.

It wasn't the 20,000 check or just another triumph in an ever growing list that had Palmer grinning radiantly.

It was professional victory No. 50, a long sought milestone which was becoming more evasive with every attempt.

The $20,000 vaulted Palmer to $138,189 for the year to keep him well ahead of the pack, boosted his official career earnings to $892,640 and put him over the $1 million mark in unofficial earnings.

"The 50th win has been an obstacle I've been thinking of for a long time," said Palmer, who had not scored a triumph since the Tucson Open last February.

"When you go any length of time without a win, it seems to become all the harder to win again. Right now my game is good but I was becoming cautious of not having won a tournament in many months."

"No, no, I didn't mean it like that," said Palmer, whose victory was forged in typical fashion. "It just gets you wondering. When I came up to No. 14 and saw the pin placement in the back corner, I wondered if I could still make that shot."

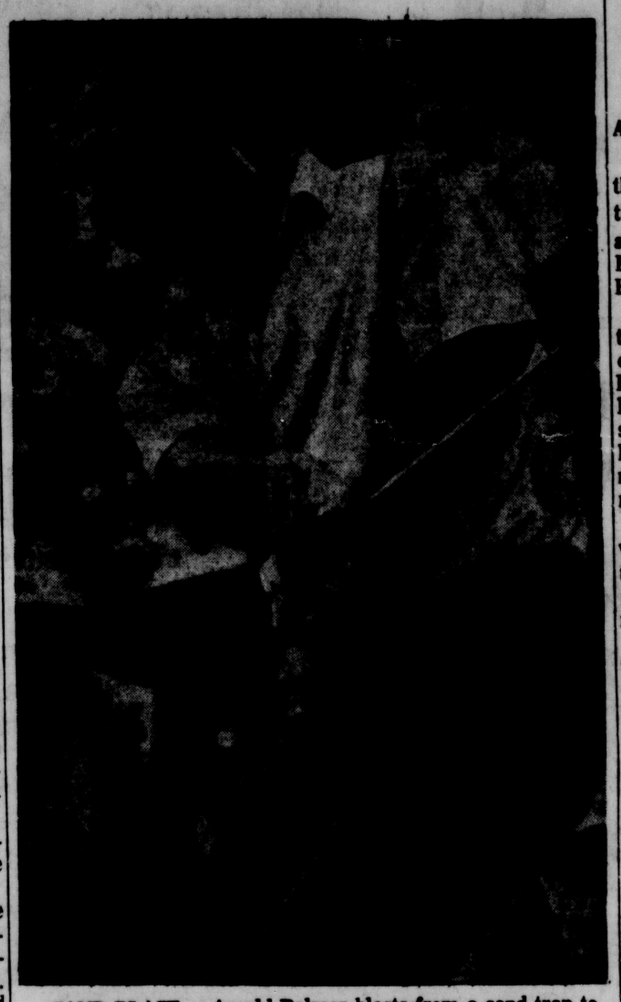
Palmer not only attempted but made the shot only to miss a birdie putt by inches.

He started the final round Sunday tied with Jack Nicklaus, one stroke behind a relatively unknown trio of leaders—Jack McGowan, Allan Henning and Kermit Zarley.

Doug Sanders, who was in the running until he bogeyed No. 14, finished with a one-under par 34-35—69 and a 279 total to take second money of $12,000.

Palmer's final round of 34-33—67 gave him a four-under-par 276 total, one shot over the Firestone Country Club record set by Ken Venturi in the 1964 Classic.

McGowan with 36-36—72, Zarley with 38-34—72 and Nicklaus with 37-34—71 finished in a third place tie at 280 and collected $5,600 each.



SAND BLAST — Arnold Palmer blasts from a sand trap to within 3 feet of the pin on the final hole of the American Golf classic at Firestone Country Club in Akron yesterday. Palmer parred the hole and won the tournament with a 276 total.

Hero Bud Grant Vikings Coach

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — To the outside world Bud Grant of the Minnesota Vikings may be as much of a stranger as Cal Ermer of the Minnesota Twins. But not in Minnesota.

Grant is close to a legend in the Land of the Lakes where his career as coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian League was noted with the same pride that greeted his earlier feats as an athletic superman at the University of Minnesota.

When this strong silent man was introduced as the successor to fiery Norm Van Brocklin as coach of the Vikings there were no Bud Who questions in this area. He was the first choice for the job before Van Brocklin came to Minnesota and he was a popular choice as Dutch's successor.

"I never heard Bud raise his voice in anger," said one long time associate. But there is an iron will to this man with the piercing eyes and devotion to detail.

The Vikings discovered quickly that Grant is a stickler for detail. In a practice session, Grant stepped in quickly and stopped the action.

"Fasten that chin strap," he said to split end Paul Flatley. The drill continued when Flatley fastened the strap.

"We pay attention to the little things to become accustomed to cultivating good habits," said Grant. "A good team must have mental discipline. It must do everything right all of the time. Green Bay is a good example of a team with mental discipline. It paid off with a championship when somebody on Dallas made a mistake last year and moved offsides."

Grant has his work cut out for him because he must go into the tough Central Division of the National Football League with a quarterback who has thrown only 137 passes in four years.

Vandy has been waiting in the wings ever since he startled the pro world with a brilliant fourth quarter for Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl. Nobody drafted Vandy but five clubs got on the long distance phone after the game, ruining Grant's hopes of spiriting the quarterback away to his Winnepeg Bombers.

Barring an unlikely trade, VanderKelen will be the quarterback this year, backed by Bob Berry of Oregon and John Hankinson of Minnesota.

A fine draft, made possible by the Tarkenton trade, has brought the Vikings such highly-rated prospects as running back Clint Jones and receiver Gene Washington of Michigan State, defensive end Alan Page of Notre Dame and flanker-defensive back Bob Grim of Oregon State.

Jones eventually may be the replacement for Tommy Mason at running back but he will have to oust Dave Osborn. Washington will have to beat out Red Phillips at flanker. Page moves into a regular job due to the injury to Carl Eller, who underwent knee surgery. Grim will get a look at flanker and corner back on defensive.

Bill Brown at fullback is unchallenged. Paul Flatley at split end and ex-Ram Marlin McKeever at tight end are set although rookie John Beasley of California has looked good at tight end.

Jerry Shay has moved to offense to fight with Larry Bowie, Milt Sunde and Jim Vellone for the guard jobs. Mick Tingelhoff, all-pro, is the center and Grady Alderman and Doug Davis the offensive tackles.

Grant hopes Page will add a little to the Vikings' weak pass rush. Jim Colvin was picked up from Dallas as a backup tackle after Eller was hurt. Jim Marshall at end and Gary Larsen and Paul Dickson at tackle are the holdover regulars.

Texas Stars Whip Big 33 On Passes

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Bobby Layne says this year's Texas High School All-Stars squad, which trounced Pennsylvania's Big 33 Saturday, was the best balanced football team of the four he has coached.

"There may have been more individual greatness on the 1965 team, which featured the passing talents of Bill Bradley, but this is a better balanced team," Layne told newsmen after his Texas team's 45-14 victory at Hershey Stadium..

The win was the third consecutive victory for Texas in the four-game series. Pennsylvania won the opener in 1964.

Dick Lynch, Pennsylvania's defensive coach, said the devastating aerial attack staged by Texas made the difference.

"We had the defense to stop everything they ran," Lynch said. "The Texas quarterbacks had more time to throw than we would have liked to allow them. That extra time and some fine receiving on the part of Texas made the difference.

Layne singled out for special praise quarterback Bill Montgomery of Carrollton, who completed nine of 17 passes for 106 yards.

Romulus Hanover Wins Adios

The Meadows harness track put up its biggest purse ever—$85,510—for the premiere of the Adios. And gimpy-legged Romulus Hanover came up with a performance just this side of never-never land Saturday.

But only 5,552 people showed up to watch. The turnout was about the size of an average racing night. The crowd for the evening races which closed out the track's season was about 3,000 bigger.

The afternoon handle was a disappointing $232,011.

And on the track gallant Romulus Hanover limped faster than the other horses could trot and took the best-of-three feature after losing the first heat to Best of All, last year's 2-year-old champion.

Driver Bill Haughton said he was ready to scratch his colt as the field moved out for the second heat. Romulus Hanover had been nursing an inflamed tendon for weeks.

But with his post position moved up from No. 9 to No. 4, Romulus Hanover managed to take the lead at the quarter pole and spurt to a blistering 1:57 3-5, just 1-5 off the track record.

Romulus Hanover and Best of All had the track all to themselves for the showdown heat, and Romulus Hanover was never headed, turning a 2:03.

Victory 50th For Palmer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer, the 37-year-old millionaire golfing great, was as happy as a kid Sunday after winning the $100,000 American Golf Classic.

It wasn't the 20,000 check or just another triumph in an ever growing list that had Palmer grinning radiantly.

It was professional victory No. 50, a long sought milestone which was becoming more evasive with every attempt.

The $20,000 vaulted Palmer to $138,189 for the year to keep him well ahead of the pack, boosted his official career earnings to $892,640 and put him over the $1 million mark in unofficial earnings.

"The 50th win has been an obstacle I've been thinking of for a long time," said Palmer, who had not scored a triumph since the Tucson Open last February.

"When you go any length of time without a win, it seems to become all the harder to win again. Right now my game is good but I was becoming cautious of not having won a tournament in many months."

"No, no, I didn't mean it like that," said Palmer, whose victory was forged in typical fashion. "It just gets you wondering. When I came up to No. 14 and saw the pin placement in the back corner, I wondered if I could still make that shot."

Palmer not only attempted but made the shot only to miss a birdie putt by inches.

He started the final round Sunday tied with Jack Nicklaus, one stroke behind a relatively unknown trio of leaders—Jack McGowan, Allan Henning and Kermit Zarley.

Doug Sanders, who was in the running until he bogeyed No. 14, finished with a one-under par 34-35—69 and a 279 total to take second money of $12,000.

Palmer's final round of 34-33—67 gave him a four-under-par 276 total, one shot over the Firestone Country Club record set by Ken Venturi in the 1964 Classic.

McGowan with 36-36—72, Zarley with 38-34—72 and Nicklaus with 37-34—71 finished in a third place tie at 280 and collected $5,600 each.

SAND BLAST — Arnold Palmer blasts from a sand trap to within 3 feet of the pin on the final hole of the American Golf classic at Firestone Country Club in Akron yesterday. Palmer parred the hole and won the tournament with a 276 total.

Hero Bud Grant Vikings Coach

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — To the outside world Bud Grant of the Minnesota Vikings may be as much of a stranger as Cal Ermer of the Minnesota Twins. But not in Minnesota.

Grant is close to a legend in the Land of the Lakes where his career as coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian League was noted with the same pride that greeted his earlier feats as an athletic superman at the University of Minnesota.

When this strong silent man was introduced as the successor to fiery Norm Van Brocklin as coach of the Vikings there were no Bud Who questions in this area. He was the first choice for the job before Van Brocklin came to Minnesota and he was a popular choice as Dutch's successor.

"I never heard Bud raise his voice in anger," said one long time associate. But there is an iron will to this man with the piercing eyes and devotion to detail.

The Vikings discovered quickly that Grant is a stickler for detail. In a practice session, Grant stepped in quickly and stopped the action.

"Fasten that chin strap," he said to split end Paul Flatley. The drill continued when Flatley fastened the strap.

"We pay attention to the little things to become accustomed to cultivating good habits," said Grant. "A good team must have mental discipline. It must do everything right all of the time. Green Bay is a good example of a team with mental discipline. It paid off with a championship when somebody on Dallas made a mistake last year and moved offsides."

Grant has his work cut out for him because he must go into the tough Central Division of the National Football League with a quarterback who has thrown only 137 passes in four years.

Vandy has been waiting in the wings ever since he startled the pro world with a brilliant fourth quarter for Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl. Nobody drafted Vandy but five clubs got on the long distance phone after the game, ruining Grant's hopes of spiriting the quarterback away to his Winnepeg Bombers.

Barring an unlikely trade, VanderKelen will be the quarterback this year, backed by Bob Berry of Oregon and John Hankinson of Minnesota.

A fine draft, made possible by the Tarkenton trade, has brought the Vikings such highly-rated prospects as running back Clint Jones and receiver Gene Washington of Michigan State, defensive end Alan Page of Notre Dame and flanker-defensive back Bob Grim of Oregon State.

Jones eventually may be the replacement for Tommy Mason at running back but he will have to oust Dave Osborn. Washington will have to beat out Red Phillips at flanker. Page moves into a regular job due to the injury to Carl Eller, who underwent knee surgery. Grim will get a look at flanker and corner back on defensive.

Bill Brown at fullback is unchallenged. Paul Flatley at split end and ex-Ram Marlin McKeever at tight end are set although rookie John Beasley of California has looked good at tight end.

Jerry Shay has moved to offense to fight with Larry Bowie, Milt Sunde and Jim Vellone for the guard jobs. Mick Tingelhoff, all-pro, is the center and Grady Alderman and Doug Davis the offensive tackles.

Texas Stars Whip Big 33 On Passes

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Bobby Layne says this year's Texas High School All-Stars squad, which trounced Pennsylvania's Big 33 Saturday, was the best balanced football team of the four he has coached.

"There may have been more individual greatness on the 1965 team, which featured the passing talents of Bill Bradley, but this is a better balanced team," Layne told newsmen after his Texas team's 45-14 victory at Hershey Stadium..

The win was the third consecutive victory for Texas in the four-game series. Pennsylvania won the opener in 1964.

Dick Lynch, Pennsylvania's defensive coach, said the devastating aerial attack staged by Texas made the difference.

"We had the defense to stop everything they ran," Lynch said. "The Texas quarterbacks had more time to throw than we would have liked to allow them. That extra time and some fine receiving on the part of Texas made the difference.

Stock Car Hits, Kills NASCAR Official, 45

PLEASANTVILLE, N.J. (AP) —A stock car struck and killed a NASCAR official at Atlantic City Speedway Saturday night. He was identified as Howard Betts, 45, of Georgetown, Del.

The car, driven by Jack Hart of Chester, Pa., was traveling about 80 miles per hour.

Romulus Hanover Wins Adios

The Meadows harness track put up its biggest purse ever—$85,510—for the premiere of the Adios. And gimpy-legged Romulus Hanover came up with a performance just this side of never-never land Saturday.

But only 5,552 people showed up to watch. The turnout was about the size of an average racing night. The crowd for the evening races which closed out the track's season was about 3,000 bigger.

The afternoon handle was a disappointing $232,011.

And on the track gallant Romulus Hanover limped faster than the other horses could trot and took the best-of-three feature after losing the first heat to Best of All, last year's 2-year-old champion.

Driver Bill Haughton said he was ready to scratch his colt as the field moved out for the second heat. Romulus Hanover had been nursing an inflamed tendon for weeks.

But with his post position moved up from No. 9 to No. 4, Romulus Hanover managed to take the lead at the quarter pole and spurt to a blistering 1:57 3-5, just 1-5 off the track record.

Romulus Hanover and Best of All had the track all to themselves for the showdown heat, and Romulus Hanover was never headed, turning a 2:03.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

DEAR HELOISE: I went to a yard party and found the most unique idea I have ever seen.

Know what they did?

The hostess used aluminum colanders, sprayed on the outside with a flat paint, to cover the light bulbs strung across the patio. The colanders, placed under the bulbs, were tied onto the light cord with pieces of string.

The point is, that as most colanders come with a design like stars, etc., it made the lights twinkle and took away the glare.

Wasn't that cute? They were a real hit!

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: We have four girls asd I sew most of their clothes. After I make a dress that has buttons, I sew the extra buttons to a matching scrap of material and this scrap goes into my button can.

When it is necessary to replace a button, I simply match the material. This is much easier than trying to locate the button. It also keeps me from using my extra buttons on another garment.

JOAN MILLER.

DEAR HELOISE: Nothing cleans out the lint, etc., from the bottom of your purse faster and better than the nozzle of your vacuum cleaner. Try it!

C. C.

I did — and it does! Just be sure you have everything out of your purse that you don't want to see disappear up that vacuum hose.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: Here's another use for your nylon net that I discovered by accident.

While cleaning the clothes dryer of accumulated lint, we found the long corrugated pipe to the outside vent almost plugged. Ours is a good eight or ten feet long. How to clean it?

We used a plumber's snake tool with a big gob of net fastened to one end, dropped the other end through the pipe and pulled it through a couple of times.

It cleaned it out slick as a whistle.

DEAR HELOISE: When I get disgusted and tired doing the dishes I glance at the following little verse I have hanging in my kitchen:

Thank God for dirty dishes,

With home, health and happiness, I shouldn't fuss,

MRS. B. ROBINSON.

DEAR HELOISE: Does your little girl have that very slippery straight hair in which no bobby pins, barrettes or ribbons will stay out for five minutes? Mine does!

After I decided to let her bangs grow and fix her hair to the side, I tried everything to keep it from hanging over her eyes.

Finally I found the simple solution! I just wound small rubber bands round and round the under part of her barrettes and eureka! Now they don't slip and she looks like a pretty little doll again.

MARGARET HAMILTON.

DEAR HELOISE: I do not like the way the regular pastry brushes become stiff and wiry from repeated use. No amount of washing seems to soften them.

So I bought a man's shaving brush, boiled it good in water and use it instead.

Girl Whose Heart Stopped Revived

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A Columbus girl whose heart stopped beating after she and a companion were struck by a car was revived Sunday by physicians at Children's Hospital.

The victim, Rhonda Marie Faulkner, 7, remained in very critical condition early today, a hospital spokesman said. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Monzo.

Rhonda suffered the cardiac arrest when she was brought to the hospital. Doctors massaged her heart by hand after opening her chest in surgery.

Police said Deborah Leach, 11, and Rhonda, her cousin, were struck by a car on Livingston Avenue.

Deborah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenton Leach of Jamestown, Ohio, also was reported in critical condition with possible head, internal and pelvic injuries.

Funds Are Allocated For Training Youths

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Mahoning Valley Vocational School in Vienna, Mahoning County, has been allocated funds to train 710 disadvantaged youths in 13 occupations, it was reported today.

The school, starting its fourth year, was granted a total of $1,962,017, of which $27,500 in cash was given by the Mahoning Valley Vocational School Corp., a private organization; $931,299 from the U.S. Department of Labor, and $1,030,728 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported the grants.

Rights Leaders To File 2nd Suit In Job Discrimination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Civil rights leaders were prepared today to launch another legal battle against building contractors accused of failing to hire Negroes.

The Columbus chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced Sunday it would file in U. S. District Court today a second suit aimed at blocking the state from hiring contractors who practice racial discrimination.

The suit "will hurt the people it is trying to help by holding up construction until the building season is gone," said John McElroy, administrative assistant to Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Meanwhile, Dave McConnell, chairman of the Labor and Industry Committee of the NAACP here, said today's action will be part of a drive to get a statewide ban issued against discriminating contractors.

"We are gunning for the whole state but right now we will settle for the southern district," said McConnell who noted the suit would be filed in the court of Judge Joseph Kinneary, whose jurisdiction covers 43 counties in Southern Ohio. Kinneary last May 17 issued a restraining order prohibiting contractors who practice discrimination from working on the new Medical Basic Sciences Building on the Ohio State University campus.

The order was issued after the NAACP filed suit in behalf of two Negro men who claimed they could not join local building trades unions.

Today's suit will "seek to enjoin the state of Ohio from continuing construction under contract already let or the letting of new construction by contractors who don't employ Negroes," McConnell said.

When asked about the threat of another suit, McElroy said it would not be needed because "we now have in for a new law passed at Gov. Rhodes' request under which any contractor on state work can be compelled to hire outside his exclusive hiring hall contract if that is necessary to prevent discrimination in his work force.

"That law will be invoked in every proper case," he added.

Some contractors have complained that union hall lists of available workers in the building trades contained the names of no Negroes.

Two Cash Thefts Reported Here

Some $52 in cash was taken from two homes here over the weekend, according to reports received by police.

About $40 was stolen from the residence of Phillip Carver of 1576 Globe St. between 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 12:43 a.m. Sunday.

Carver said he and his wife were out for the evening and when they returned found someone had entered through an upstairs window and removed a round enameled box containing the money, mostly half and silver dollars.

Authorities said entrance apparently was gained by climbing onto a garage roof and forcing out a window fan in the bed room.

Ruth Cunningham of 712 Sophia St. reported $12 in change stolen from two banks from a locker in her bedroom some time Sunday.

She told police she and her family were out of the house between 12:15 and 5 p.m. and the money was missing when they returned.

Although there were no signs of a forcible entry, Mrs. Cunningham said the locker apparently had been opened by a key which was kept in a purse in the room.

In private life Esther Hoskins, she won many literary awards, including the 1942 Pulitzer Prize for history for "Paul Revere and the World He Lived In."

DEAR HELOISE: I do not like the way the regular pastry brushes become stiff and wiry from repeated use. No amount of washing seems to soften them.

So I bought a man's shaving brush, boiled it good in water and use it instead.

Girl Whose Heart Stopped Revived

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A Columbus girl whose heart stopped beating after she and a companion were struck by a car was revived Sunday by physicians at Children's Hospital.

The victim, Rhonda Marie Faulkner, 7, remained in very critical condition early today, a hospital spokesman said. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Monzo.

Rhonda suffered the cardiac arrest when she was brought to the hospital. Doctors massaged her heart by hand after opening her chest in surgery.

Police said Deborah Leach, 11, and Rhonda, her cousin, were struck by a car on Livingston Avenue.

Deborah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenton Leach of Jamestown, Ohio, also was reported in critical condition with possible head, internal and pelvic injuries.

Funds Are Allocated For Training Youths

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Mahoning Valley Vocational School in Vienna, Mahoning County, has been allocated funds to train 710 disadvantaged youths in 13 occupations, it was reported today.

The school, starting its fourth year, was granted a total of $1,962,017, of which $27,500 in cash was given by the Mahoning Valley Vocational School Corp., a private organization; $931,299 from the U.S. Department of Labor, and $1,030,728 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported the grants.

Rights Leaders To File 2nd Suit In Job Discrimination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Civil rights leaders were prepared today to launch another legal battle against building contractors accused of failing to hire Negroes.

The Columbus chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced Sunday it would file in U. S. District Court today a second suit aimed at blocking the state from hiring contractors who practice racial discrimination.

The suit "will hurt the people it is trying to help by holding up construction until the building season is gone," said John McElroy, administrative assistant to Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Meanwhile, Dave McConnell, chairman of the Labor and Industry Committee of the NAACP here, said today's action will be part of a drive to get a statewide ban issued against discriminating contractors.

"We are gunning for the whole state but right now we will settle for the southern district," said McConnell who noted the suit would be filed in the court of Judge Joseph Kinneary, whose jurisdiction covers 43 counties in Southern Ohio.

Kinneary last May 17 issued a restraining order prohibiting contractors who practice discrimination from working on the new Medical Basic Sciences Building on the Ohio State University campus.

The order was issued after the NAACP filed suit in behalf of two Negro men who claimed they could not join local building trades unions.

Today's suit will "seek to enjoin the state of Ohio from continuing construction under contract already let or the letting of new construction by contractors who don't employ Negroes," McConnell said.

When asked about the threat of another suit, McElroy said it would not be needed because "we now have in for a new law passed at Gov. Rhodes' request under which any contractor on state work can be compelled to hire outside his exclusive hiring hall contract if that is necessary to prevent discrimination in his work force.

"That law will be invoked in every proper case," he added.

Some contractors have complained that union hall lists of available workers in the building trades contained the names of no Negroes.

Two Cash Thefts Reported Here

Some $52 in cash was taken from two homes here over the weekend, according to reports received by police.

About $40 was stolen from the residence of Phillip Carver of 1576 Globe St. between 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 12:43 a.m. Sunday.

Carver said he and his wife were out for the evening and when they returned found someone had entered through an upstairs window and removed a round enameled box containing the money, mostly half and silver dollars.

Authorities said entrance apparently was gained by climbing onto a garage roof and forcing out a window fan in the bed room.

Ruth Cunningham of 712 Sophia St. reported $12 in change stolen from two banks from a locker in her bedroom some time Sunday.

She told police she and her family were out of the house between 12:15 and 5 p.m. and the money was missing when they returned.

Although there were no signs of a forcible entry, Mrs. Cunningham said the locker apparently had been opened by a key which was kept in a purse in the room.

Painting Will Be Affected If Brush Gets Brush-Off

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

It isn't considered quite the thing to say (especially by the manufacturers of the cheap products), but the truth is that the price of a paint brush is a good guide to its quality.

Topnotch brushes cost more to produce. You have to pay more for them. The extra price is worth it, not only because the good brush lasts longer, but more important, because it produces better results.

If, however, you are the type of person who simply will not give a paint brush the proper care — and you have plenty of company — the added money you pay for a quality brush will be partly wasted. Only partly wasted because you will have at least had the benefit of its superior paint - spreading ability for a short time.

Peculiar, isn't it, how a person will spend several hours painting, either inside or outside the house, and then neglect to spend an additional few minutes cleaning the brush.

This failure to use the extra few minutes can mean the difference between having and not having a brush ready and waiting the next time a project is at hand.

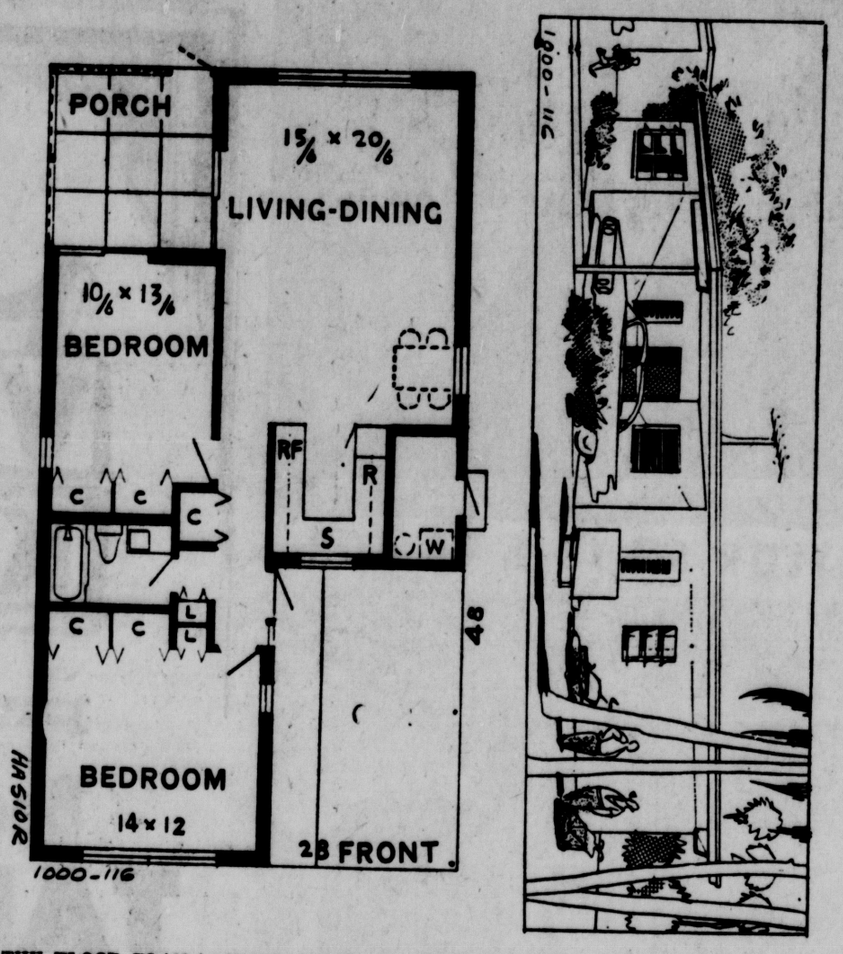
This is especially true when oil paint is being used, but it also applies to all other types of paint, varnish, lacquer, shellac and synthetics.

Too many times, for instance, a person will leave a paint brush in a container partly filled with turpentine and then forget about it. When he is ready for another job or wants to complete the first one, he finds that the turpentine has evaporated and the brush has hardened — at which point he spent far more time trying to soften the brush than he would have in cleaning it in the first place. Or he gives up in disgust and buys a new brush.

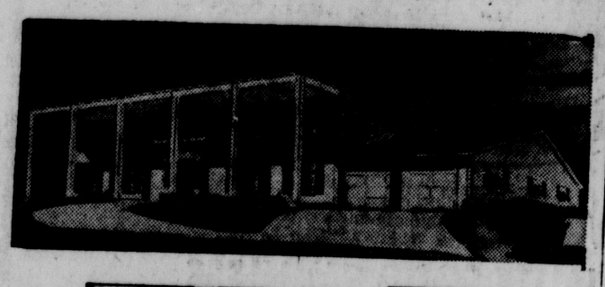
A brush should be cleaned with the same solvent for the particular material for which it was used.

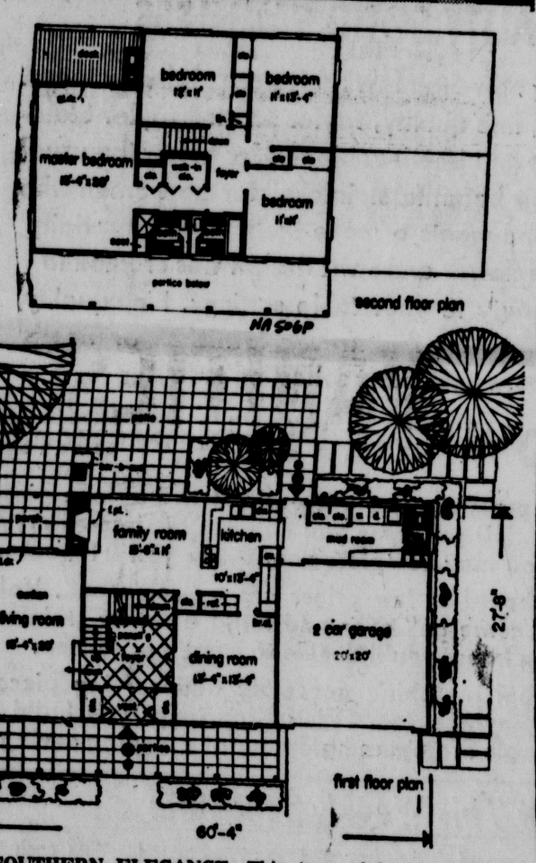
Thus, the solvent for oil paint is turpentine or mineral spirits; for varnish, the same; for latex paint, water; for lacquer, lacquer thinner; for shellac, denatured alcohol. For special kinds of paint, such as the odorless type, read the label on the container to determine what the solvent is.

Whether being left overnight or stored for months, a brush never should be placed in any position which will bend the bristles. When it will not be reused within 24 hours, it should be wrapped in aluminum foil, wax paper or any similar type of material after it has been cleaned.



THE FLOOR PLAN in Homes for Americans Plan HA510R is narrow but highly efficient —especially designed for a narrow, deep lot. The living-dining area faces the rear, which would make the house desirable for waterfront property. The corner screened porch is accessible from the living room and bedoom, and might be used for dining or sleeping. The bathroom is conveniently between the two bedrooms. Architect Jan Reiner of 1000 52nd St. North, St. Petersburg, Fla., has designed the home with 1,000 square feet of livable space.





SOUTHERN ELEGANCE. This type of home, with its two-story-high colonnade, connotates a gracious way of life. Plan HA506P is comfortable (2,022 square feet) but modest enough to fit most budgets. The vestibule has closets on both sides. Folding doors lead to the dining room. Opposite is the formal living room, a three-exposure expanse sunken two steps. The family room is separated from the kitchen only by kitchen cabinets. Upstairs, the three children's bedrooms are insulated from each other's sounds by closets. Architect is Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N. Y.

Top Fiscal Advisors Argue

Inflation Could Be More Painful Than Tax Boost

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's top fiscal spokesmen are ready to argue that, painful as it is to raise income taxes, it would be more painful to let inflation cut everyone's purchasing power.

Johnson's call for a surcharge of 10 per cent on the income tax owed by individuals and corporations starts its series of tests in a Congress whose members range from grimly resigned to hostile to the proposal.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler, Budget Director Charles L. Schultze and Chairman Gardner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers were assigned to the opening presentation today before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Johnson, in a series of sessions with House Democrats, has laid out the main lines of the administration argument—a deficit possibly approaching $30 billion would mean inflation, higher interest rates, scarce money for the small business and individual borrower, and, quite likely, disaster for the homebuilding industry.

The opposing argument is that the economy is not so strong but that a burden of the magnitude of the proposed tax increase might depress it— and actually reduce instead of increasing the government's revenues.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee expressed a widespread congressional feeling when he said, "I'm absolutely uncommitted."

Mills added Sunday the proposal "certainly faces a very difficult uphill battle" and he sees no congressional or taxpayer enthusiasm for any tax increase.

Mills called the proposal "about the toughest proposition" Johnson has faced in the field of legislation.

But Fowler said Sunday he believes there will be no need for compromise on the plan once Mills' committee "is fully confronted with the alternatives."

Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., said he believes if a surtax is voted, it is likely to be six or seven per cent instead of 10 per cent. He said he thinks Johnson has only a 50-50 chance of getting any surtax approved by Congress.

Mills spoke on a radio-television broadcast in New York State, Fowler on ABC's "Issues and Answers" and Morton on Metromedia's "Opinion: Washington."

Johnson made one move Saturday to demonstrate his stated intention to hold down some types of government spending. He vetoed a bill that would have provided more life insurance coverage for 2.5 million federal employes and would have cost $61 million the first year.

He also told Congress not to go beyond a 4.5 per cent increase he has recommended in federal pay.

The President said the insurance bill would cost too much when there are more crucial needs for federal funds—help for "children, the poor, the elderly—and most important, American fighting men in Vietnam."

Johnson had proposed an insurance revision costing $13 million. The Congress-approved measure would have increased the federal share of insurance premiums for government workers from one-third to two-fifths, and would have increased coverage by up to 100 per cent.

His pay raise warning was aimed at pending congressional moves to add an extra $1 billion to his recommendation. He said that would equal a two per cent tax surcharge.

Administration spokesmen got last-minute help from a series of favorable economic developments tending to support government predictions the economy would be strong enough through 1967 to support a tax increase.

If the Ways and Means Committee runs true to form, it will at least modify the administration proposal. Strong sentiment was reported for giving individual taxpayers a better break than corporations—especially since business was helped this year by restoration of the investment credit that permits recovery of 7 per cent of spending on equipment.

Cyclist Injured In Car Collision

A suburban East Liverpool man was treated at City Hospital Sunday for injuries received when his motorcycle ran into a car on the Calcutta - Smiths Ferry Road.

William Torrence, 42, of East Liverpool RD 3 was eastbound, the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon said, when a 1961 coach operated by Janet E. Ryckman, 20, of 3289 St. Clair Ave., turned left in front of his machine.

Torrence was treated for abrasions of both legs. The woman was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

LISBON — The theft of $800 worth of tools from a locked truck was reported to Sheriff Russell J. Van Fossan this morning by Robert Fife of Lisbon.

Fife told the sheriff the burglar broke a vent window to reach in and open the door. He said most of the tools were his, but some belonged to the company.

Auto Industry Called Key To Steel's Hopes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Auto labor negotiations pose the biggest single threat to a sharp upturn in steel demand, Steel Magazine reported today.

"Any significant change in the auto industry's demand for steel has a wide and heavy impact," the metalworking weekly emphasized, "since that industry is one of the two largest users of steel. The other is construction and contractor's products."

Negotiations between the United Auto Workers and the big three—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler Corp.—are jelling simultaneously with three other developments in the industry:

—Rising sales of autos.

"An auto industry strike could come as early as the first week of September," Steel said, adding that September is the "month when new model production should be snowballing."

Low in steel inventories, the auto companies have found it necessary to order steel for September delivery and, in some cases, ask for September deliveries to be advanced to August.

The rise in the auto industry's orders for steel continued to lift steel production last week Steel estimated raw steel output at 2,270,000 net tons, highest since the week ended June 10. The amount was 1.5 per cent higher than the 2,237,000 poured the previous week.

But overall, auto industry buying has been low this year. "In the first half, the automotive industry took only 18.2 per cent (or 7,700,807 net tons) of the U.S. mill shipments of finished steel compared with 20 per cent (or 9,185,359 tons) in the first half of last year."

Kirklin required 40 stitches on the forehead to close a gash suffered Saturday when he hit a diving board while executing a difficult dive at the National AAU Swim Meet.

Fishing Gear Taken From Stand At Salem

LISBON — The concession stand at Salem's North Cold Run reservoir on Gamble Rd. was broken into Sunday night, with a quantity of fishing gear stolen.

Don Whitacre, operator, told Sheriff's Deputy Dave Brothers the theft occurred between 9:10 p.m. Sunday and 5:30 today when he opened the stand.

Brothers said the intruder removed a screen and broke a window. Whitacre said a rod and two reels are missing along with miscellaneous small items — hooks, bobbers, sinkers, leaders and line.

3 Firemen, 3 Girls Injured In Collision

CINCINNATI (AP) — Three firemen and three teen - aged Cincinnati girls were injured, two seriously, when the girls' car was slammed by a fire truck responding to a fire call Sunday, police said.

The firemen were treated and released from General Hospital but Marcella Heater, 18, and her sister Andrea, 16, were listed in serious condition at the same hospital. The driver of the car, Lisa Fields, 17, was reported in good condition.

Painting Will Be Affected If Brush Gets Brush-Off

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

It isn't considered quite the thing to say (especially by the manufacturers of the cheap products), but the truth is that the price of a paint brush is a good guide to its quality.

Topnotch brushes cost more to produce. You have to pay more for them. The extra price is worth it, not only because the good brush lasts longer, but more important, because it produces better results.

If, however, you are the type of person who simply will not give a paint brush the proper care — and you have plenty of company — the added money you pay for a quality brush will be partly wasted. Only partly wasted because you will have at least had the benefit of its superior paint - spreading ability for a short time.

Peculiar, isn't it, how a person will spend several hours painting, either inside or outside the house, and then neglect to spend an additional few minutes cleaning the brush.

This failure to use the extra few minutes can mean the difference between having and not having a brush ready and waiting the next time a project is at hand.

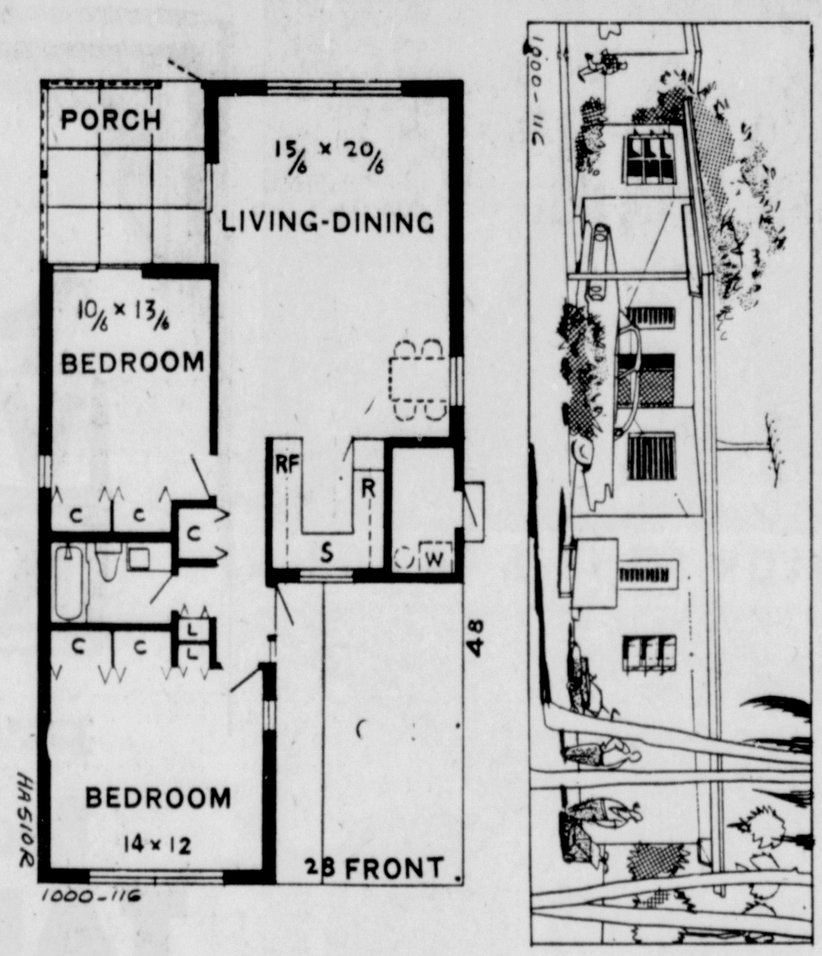
This is especially true when oil paint is being used, but it also applies to all other types of paint, varnish, lacquer, shellac and synthetics.

Too many times, for instance, a person will leave a paint brush in a container partly filled with turpentine and then forget about it. When he is ready for another job or wants to complete the first one, he finds that the turpentine has evaporated and the brush has hardened — at which point he spent far more time trying to soften the brush than he would have in cleaning it in the first place. Or he gives up in disgust and buys a new brush.

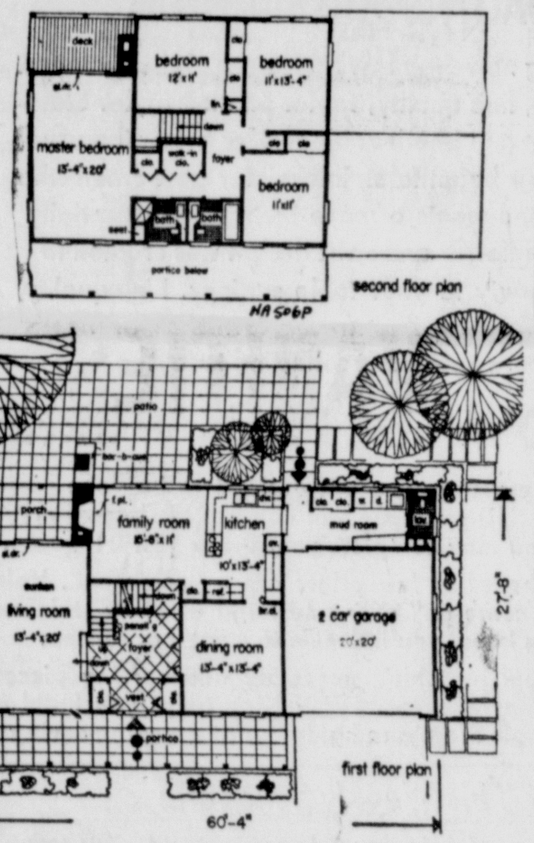
A brush should be cleaned with the same solvent for the particular material for which it was used.

Thus, the solvent for oil paint is turpentine or mineral spirits; for varnish, the same; for latex paint, water; for lacquer, lacquer thinner; for shellac, denatured alcohol. For special kinds of paint, such as the odorless type, read the label on the container to determine what the solvent is.

Whether being left overnight or stored for months, a brush never should be placed in any position which will bend the bristles. When it will not be reused within 24 hours, it should be wrapped in aluminum foil, wax paper or any similar type of material after it has been cleaned.



THE FLOOR PLAN in Homes for Americans Plan HA510R is narrow but highly efficient —especially designed for a narrow, deep lot. The living-dining area faces the rear, which would make the house desirable for waterfront property. The corner screened porch is accessible from the living room and bedoom, and might be used for dining or sleeping. The bathroom is conveniently between the two bedrooms. Architect Jan Reiner of 1000 52nd St. North, St. Petersburg, Fla., has designed the home with 1,000 square feet of livable space.



SOUTHERN ELEGANCE. This type of home, with its two-story-high colonnade, connotates a gracious way of life. Plan HA506P is comfortable (2,022 square feet) but modest enough to fit most budgets. The vestibule has closets on both sides. Folding doors lead to the dining room. Opposite is the formal living room, a three-exposure expanse sunken two steps. The family room is separated from the kitchen only by kitchen cabinets. Upstairs, the three children's bedrooms are insulated from each other's sounds by closets. Architect is Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N. Y.

Top Fiscal Advisors Argue

Inflation Could Be More Painful Than Tax Boost

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's top fiscal spokesmen are ready to argue that, painful as it is to raise income taxes, it would be more painful to let inflation cut everyone's purchasing power.

Johnson's call for a surcharge of 10 per cent on the income tax owed by individuals and corporations starts its series of tests in a Congress whose members range from grimly resigned to hostile to the proposal.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler, Budget Director Charles L. Schultze and Chairman Gardner Ackley of the Council of Economic Advisers were assigned to the opening presentation today before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Johnson, in a series of sessions with House Democrats, has laid out the main lines of the administration argument—a deficit possibly approaching $30 billion would mean inflation, higher interest rates, scarce money for the small business and individual borrower, and, quite likely, disaster for the homebuilding industry.

The opposing argument is that the economy is not so strong but that a burden of the magnitude of the proposed tax increase might depress it— and actually reduce instead of increasing the government's revenues.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee expressed a widespread congressional feeling when he said, "I'm absolutely uncommitted."

Mills added Sunday the proposal "certainly faces a very difficult uphill battle" and he sees no congressional or taxpayer enthusiasm for any tax increase.

Mills called the proposal "about the toughest proposition" Johnson has faced in the field of legislation.

But Fowler said Sunday he believes there will be no need for compromise on the plan once Mills' committee "is fully confronted with the alternatives."

Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky., said he believes if a surtax is voted, it is likely to be six or seven per cent instead of 10 per cent. He said he thinks Johnson has only a 50-50 chance of getting any surtax approved by Congress.

Mills spoke on a radio-television broadcast in New York State, Fowler on ABC's "Issues and Answers" and Morton on Metromedia's "Opinion: Washington."

Johnson made one move Saturday to demonstrate his stated intention to hold down some types of government spending. He vetoed a bill that would have provided more life insurance coverage for 2.5 million federal employes and would have cost $61 million the first year.

He also told Congress not to go beyond a 4.5 per cent increase he has recommended in federal pay.

The President said the insurance bill would cost too much when there are more crucial needs for federal funds—help for "children, the poor, the elderly—and most important, American fighting men in Vietnam."

Johnson had proposed an insurance revision costing $13 million. The Congress-approved measure would have increased the federal share of insurance premiums for government workers from one-third to two-fifths, and would have increased coverage by up to 100 per cent.

His pay raise warning was aimed at pending congressional moves to add an extra $1 billion to his recommendation. He said that would equal a two per cent tax surcharge.

Administration spokesmen got last-minute help from a series of favorable economic developments tending to support government predictions the economy would be strong enough through 1967 to support a tax increase.

If the Ways and Means Committee runs true to form, it will at least modify the administration proposal. Strong sentiment was reported for giving individual taxpayers a better break than corporations—especially since business was helped this year by restoration of the investment credit that permits recovery of 7 per cent of spending on equipment.

Cyclist Injured In Car Collision

A suburban East Liverpool man was treated at City Hospital Sunday for injuries received when his motorcycle ran into a car on the Calcutta - Smiths Ferry Road.

William Torrence, 42, of East Liverpool RD 3 was eastbound, the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon said, when a 1961 coach operated by Janet E. Ryckman, 20, of 3289 St. Clair Ave., turned left in front of his machine.

Torrence was treated for abrasions of both legs. The woman was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

$800 In Tools Taken From Parked Truck

LISBON — The theft of $800 worth of tools from a locked truck was reported to Sheriff Russell J. Van Fossan this morning by Robert Fife of Lisbon.

He is working for the Bernard Pipeline Co., which is laying a line west of Hanoverton, and parked his truck Saturday evening along Route 30 near the bowling alley.

Fife told the sheriff the burglar broke a vent window to reach in and open the door. He said most of the tools were his, but some belonged to the company.

Palestine Exam Set

Auto Industry Called Key To Steel's Hopes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Auto labor negotiations pose the biggest single threat to a sharp upturn in steel demand, Steel Magazine reported today.

"Any significant change in the auto industry's demand for steel has a wide and heavy impact," the metalworking weekly emphasized, "since that industry is one of the two largest users of steel. The other is construction and contractor's products."

Negotiations between the United Auto Workers and the big three—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler Corp.—are jelling simultaneously with three other developments in the industry:

—Rising sales of autos.

"An auto industry strike could come as early as the first week of September," Steel said, adding that September is the "month when new model production should be snowballing."

Low in steel inventories, the auto companies have found it necessary to order steel for September delivery and, in some cases, ask for September deliveries to be advanced to August.

The rise in the auto industry's orders for steel continued to lift steel production last week Steel estimated raw steel output at 2,270,000 net tons, highest since the week ended June 10. The amount was 1.5 per cent higher than the 2,237,000 poured the previous week.

But overall, auto industry buying has been low this year.

"In the first half, the automotive industry took only 18.2 per cent (or 7,700,807 net tons) of the U.S. mill shipments of finished steel compared with 20 per cent (or 9,185,359 tons) in the first half of last year."

Fishing Gear Taken From Stand At Salem

LISBON — The concession stand at Salem's North Cold Run reservoir on Gamble Rd. was broken into Sunday night, with a quantity of fishing gear stolen

Don Whitacre, operator, told Sheriff's Deputy Dave Brothers the theft occurred between 9:10 p.m. Sunday and 5:30 today when he opened the stand.

Brothers said the intruder removed a screen and broke a window. Whitacre said a rod and two reels are missing along with miscellaneous small items — hooks, bobbers, sinkers, leaders and line.

Mini-Work Schedule

Little-By-Little Home Improvement Plan Offered

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Everything seems to be going mini-way, so why not a mini-work schedule during the warm weather. Try it for size — no big jobs, just mini - improvements.

A home that is beginning to fade may need nothing more than a good bath, a few fillings or sutures here and there and a little plastic surgery.

Little bits of tarnish can create a dreary shroud that puts one in the "what-we-need - is a - brand - new - house" mood. A new house solves the problem until it too begins to look a little rough around the edges.

Take a long look before you decide that your time - mellowed home is beyond your efforts. Stop looking at the house as a whole, and examine the fringes —the little blemishes, scars and wrinkles. Little things add up to one big job, but taken individually, they're just a batch of small jobs.

LOOK AT IT this way—even if you decide to sell, the little improvements you make now will help make the house more salable and perhaps even bring a better price. It should.

You aren't going to invest in expensive materials or labor. You will not have lost more than a little of your own time each day.

Here's a check-off list. Every house has its own private problem list that makes a home look run down. So add to this list.

Are there holes in screens? (Measure areas, prepare patches for screens. Do one screen each day.)

Putty cracked and worn? (Do one small window pane each day or one side of a large window pane each day.)

A tattered screened - in porch (Repair screen sections. See how floors and frame respond to a bucket of suds. Paint it if you have time.)

Worn shutters (Scrape one a day. Paint one a day.)

Flagstone or bricks in a rut (Remove the section you can do within a limited time each day. Expend your efforts in doing the best job you can in a small section, rather than in trying to repair the whole thing in a jiffy in a slipshod way.)

—:—

WITH TIME off for good behavior, you should be able to pull off 25 mini-jobs in a month. When weather is cooler, take your little plan indoors.

Indoors, the idea is to get rid of the gray look, the dusty veil that dims the luster of your home.

Cobwebs? Use the vacuum cleaner.

Tops of window molding (Heavens to Betsy, how did all that dust get there?)

Windows (After all these years there are paint speckles still on the glass — use a little razor blade to remove.

Kitchen cabinet door tops (That's where all the dirt and grease has been collecting. It'll take elbow grease to remove it.)

Wall board that holds pots and other utensils (How long is it since you've removed everything and washed the walls of spots and streaks?)

Kitchen ceiling (Is it grease-splattered?)

FLOORS around base cabinets and appliances (That solid black line is the gook that the mop doesn't pick up. Use a scrubbing brush or sponge before the next mop up.)

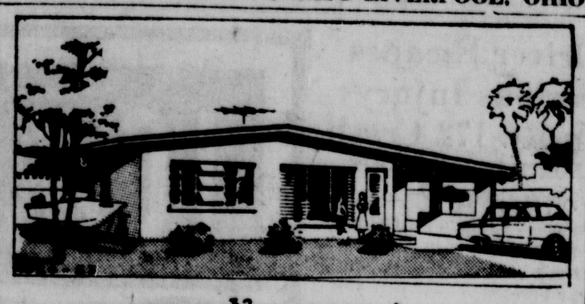
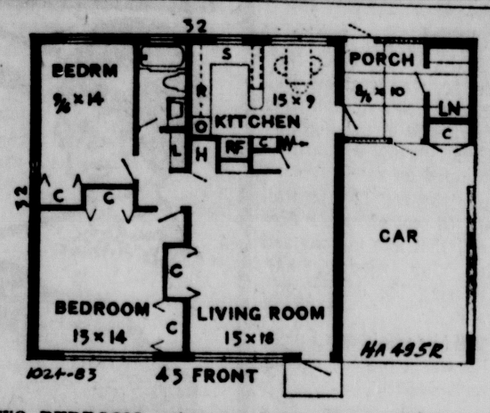
Floors (No matter what anyone says, stained wood floors should be washed occasionally, dried and polishing can be resumed. There are lots of good cleaners for tile floors.)

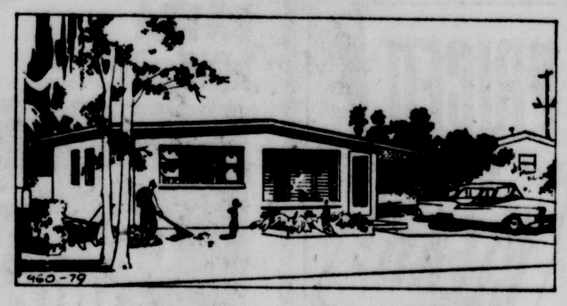
How long has it been since you've removed dust from the hall light, hanging or wall type?

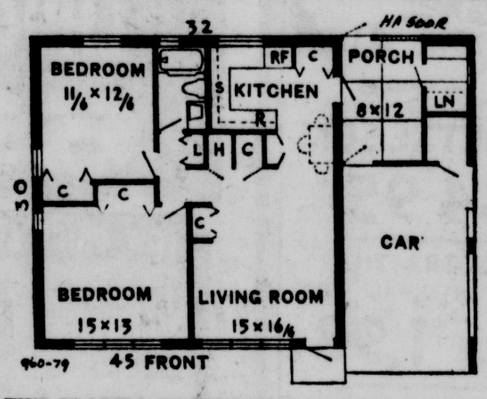
You can't really tell anything about a room until it is absolutely clean and bright. You may discover that all it needs is a little paint to make it look like the house it was when you moved in.





TWO BEDROOM retirement home. This compact retirement home has two bedrooms, kitchen with U-shape work counter with built-in oven, range and double sink (under a window). There is space for a dining table and a screened porch may also be used for dining. Both bedrooms have cross-ventilation and ample closet space. The laundry room is located back of the carport; the carport may be easily turned into a garage. Plan HA495R was designed by Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla. It contains 1,024 square feet of living space.





THIS FLORIDA RETIREMENT home has two bedrooms, each with cross-ventilation and with closets making sound insulation between them. The compact kitchen has U-shape work counter. Well-proportioned living room has a high ceiling. Oil furnace and closets are conveniently located. There is 960 square feet of living space in Plan HA500R, plus carport, porch and small storage area. Architect is Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd St. North, St. Petersburg, Fla.

12 Arrested In Raid On Bars

Negroes Fire Into White Crowd, Wounding 5 Men

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — A group of Negroes demanding, "we want beer!" shot into a crowd of whites barring their way to a tavern Sunday night, wounding five white men, state police said.

State police and sheriff's deputies raided Negro bars at Covington, 20 miles from here, before dawn today and arrested 12 Negro men and women.

Col. Thomas D. Burbank, state director of public safety, rushed from Baton Rouge and said several of those jailed had taken part Sunday in the Bogalusa civil rights "liberation march" which stopped here for the night en route to the state capital.

"But they haven't been regular marchers," said Sheriff Tom Sanders of Tangipahoa Parish. "I'd say they were curiosity marchers."

A. Z. Young, leader of the march, denied any of his followers were involved. He said, "All of our people were here."

Col. Ray Heard of the state Crime Laboratory gave parafin tests to the arrested Negroes, to determine if any had fired weapons recently.

Sixty-five state troopers armed with riot guns guarded the Negro marchers who camped for the night at a school.

Streets of Hammond were deserted in the predawn hours, but the atmosphere was taut. Burbank indicated he would try to escort the marchers out of the area before their scheduled 10 a.m. departure.

About 100 marchers slept in the ballpark of Greenville Park High School, a Negro school, inside a ring of cars drawn together like covered wagons of the Old West. Arc lights illuminated the area.

Shortly before dawn, all but 20 left in cars for Bogalusa. Young said those who remained would continue the trek.

White witnesses to the shooting said there was a racial brawl at the combination bar and service station, the Riverside Inn, earlier in the evening. They said a Negro who was refused service cursed and struck a white man and was beaten and kicked unconscious.

Sheriff Sanders said 11 Negroes later returned to the bar, demanding beer.

They were told they would be served outside, he said.

When several whites blocked the door, said Sanders, the Negroes opened fire, then fled to two cars. Sanders said the Negroes had two pistols and a shotgun.

42,000 Involved In Walkout

Copper Strike Month Old, Could Be Longest Of All

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Families of the nation's 42,000 striking copper workers and the dozen or more copper towns are awaiting the next payday, but it seems no closer now than when the strike began one month ago today.

Most people close to the situation—the workers, company officials and union representatives—indicate this could be the longest copper strike of them all, longer than the six-month work-stoppage of 1959-60.

"The bad thing," says Bill Propkopis, "is that between strikes you never make up what you lost."

Propkopis owns a bar in Magna, Utah, a copper town in the southwest corner of the Great Salt Lake Valley. He comes from a copper family and worked five years for Kennecott Copper Corp. before "getting out after that one in '59."

"My daddy used to tell me: 'Son, you're making what you are today because of the guys who went on strike before. And today you're striking for the guys who'll be working here tomorrow,'" Propkopis said.

"But you never break even. That's why I quit," he added.

Strikes haven't been infrequent in the copper industry. In Utah alone, Kennecott has been shut down seven times in 16 years.

But this strike marks the first time a single major union has been able to press an industry-wide shutdown. The big four producers—Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda and American Smelting & Refining Co.—face a labor force newly dominated by the United Steelworkers of America, AFL-CIO.

Before, the Steelworkers and the old International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers had been the two dominant bargaining agents. They merged this year, and a union spokesman announced a "big stick" bargaining policy was in the offing.

After 31 days, pickets seem as determined as they were a month ago to back the steelworker pronouncement that this would be "the most successful strike the copper industry has ever known."

"There isn't a harder time to try to quit smoking than when you're just laying around," he said.

In the copper towns, business suffers.

These communities—most of them small such as Magna, Utah; Bisbee, Ariz.; Hurley, N.M. and McGill, Nev. or Anaconda, Butte and East Helena in Montana—represent the bulk of U. S. copper production.

"These things are very serious to us," says Magna banker Charles R. Canfield. "For instance, some of the grocery stores are giving a five per cent discount to the copperworkers. But these stores aren't making that much profit to begin with."

He says the town's economic planning is based on "figuring you'll have a strike every time the contract expires ...And then you just pray that doesn't happen."

For six months before the strike, Magna's normal buying, borrowing and saving habits took the usual prestrike pattern. People watched negotiations closely and cut back sharply as prospects of a strike increased.

This, in part, forced Gov. Calvin L. Rampton of Utah to call a four per cent cut in state government spending. Three days after the strike began, he announced that state revenues were far below estimates for the first half of 1967.

He says more cuts may come if the strike is still in effect in September, and the other major copper states also face fiscal crises.

Arizona officials say a property tax increase of four cents per $100 assessed valuation has been forced by the strike. And in New Mexico, Nevada and Montana, state officials are pondering what to do.

The governors of those states have already held one strike meeting in Salt Lake City. Rampton since has contacted administration officials concerning the possibility of invoking the Taft-Hartley Act.

Aides say he was told it would be several months before federal intervention could be considered.

Principal users of copper are the defense industries and the automakers. Even though 95 per cent of domestic copper has been cut off by the strike, stockpiles and imports thus far have prevented any known shortages.

Estimating the strike's cost is difficult. Some say more than $1 million per day. Kennecott alone claims its shutdown is costing more than $4 million per week.

At the negotiating tables, the only progress reported has been on local issues, and that came only in recent days.

One federal mediator recently announced that after several hours of talks, company and union representatives agreed to break two hours for lunch.

"It's the first time since June that they've agreed on anything," he added.

The issues are not all clear, but the companies claim they pay in excess of $4 per hour, including benefits. They claim their best offer is an increase of about 50 cents per hour over a three-year period, but that union demands total more than $1 per hour.

Said a union statement: "Even if this were true, that would only mean 35 cents an hour each year. This much the company could afford."

Mini-Work Schedule

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Little-By-Little Home Improvement Plan Offered

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Everything seems to be going mini-way, so why not a mini-work schedule during the warm weather. Try it for size — no big jobs, just mini - improvements.

A home that is beginning to fade may need nothing more than a good bath, a few fillings or sutures here and there and a little plastic surgery.

Little bits of tarnish can create a dreary shroud that puts one in the "what-we-need - is a - brand - new - house" mood. A new house solves the problem until it too begins to look a little rough around the edges.

Take a long look before you decide that your time - mellowed home is beyond your efforts. Stop looking at the house as a whole, and examine the fringes —the little blemishes, scars and wrinkles. Little things add up to one big job, but taken individually, they're just a batch of small jobs.

LOOK AT IT this way—even if you decide to sell, the little improvements you make now will help make the house more salable and perhaps even bring a better price. It should.

You aren't going to invest in expensive materials or labor. You will not have lost more than a little of your own time each day.

Here's a check-off list. Every house has its own private problem list that makes a home look run down. So add to this list.

Are there holes in screens? (Measure areas, prepare patches for screens. Do one screen each day.)

Putty cracked and worn? (Do one small window pane each day or one side of a large window pane each day.)

A tattered screened - in porch (Repair screen sections. See how floors and frame respond to a bucket of suds. Paint it if you have time.)

Worn shutters (Scrape one a day. Paint one a day.)

Flagstone or bricks in a rut (Remove the section you can do within a limited time each day. Expend your efforts in doing the best job you can in a small section, rather than in trying to repair the whole thing in a jiffy in a slipshod way.)

—:—

WITH TIME off for good behavior, you should be able to pull off 25 mini-jobs in a month. When weather is cooler, take your little plan indoors.

Indoors, the idea is to get rid of the gray look, the dusty veil that dims the luster of your home.

Cobwebs? Use the vacuum cleaner.

Windows (After all these years there are paint speckles still on the glass — use a little razor blade to remove.

Kitchen cabinet door tops (That's where all the dirt and grease has been collecting. It'll take elbow grease to remove it.)

Wall board that holds pots and other utensils (How long is it since you've removed everything and washed the walls of spots and streaks?)

Kitchen ceiling (Is it grease-splattered?)

FLOORS around base cabinets and appliances (That solid black line is the gook that the mop doesn't pick up. Use a scrubbing brush or sponge before the next mop up.)

Floors (No matter what anyone says, stained wood floors should be washed occasionally, dried and polishing can be resumed. There are lots of good cleaners for tile floors.)

How long has it been since you've removed dust from the hall light, hanging or wall type?

You can't really tell anything about a room until it is absolutely clean and bright. You may discover that all it needs is a little paint to make it look like the house it was when you moved in.

12 Arrested In Raid On Bars

Negroes Fire Into White Crowd, Wounding 5 Men

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — A group of Negroes demanding, "we want beer!" shot into a crowd of whites barring their way to a tavern Sunday night, wounding five white men, state police said.

State police and sheriff's deputies raided Negro bars at Covington, 20 miles from here, before dawn today and arrested 12 Negro men and women.

Col. Thomas D. Burbank, state director of public safety, rushed from Baton Rouge and said several of those jailed had taken part Sunday in the Bogalusa civil rights "liberation march" which stopped here for the night en route to the state capital.

"But they haven't been regular marchers," said Sheriff Tom Sanders of Tangipahoa Parish. "I'd say they were curiosity marchers."

A. Z. Young, leader of the march, denied any of his followers were involved. He said, "All of our people were here."

Col. Ray Heard of the state Crime Laboratory gave parafin tests to the arrested Negroes, to determine if any had fired weapons recently.

Sixty-five state troopers armed with riot guns guarded the Negro marchers who camped for the night at a school.

Streets of Hammond were deserted in the predawn hours, but the atmosphere was taut. Burbank indicated he would try to escort the marchers out of the area before their scheduled 10 a.m. departure.

About 100 marchers slept in the ballpark of Greenville Park High School, a Negro school, inside a ring of cars drawn together like covered wagons of the Old West. Arc lights illuminated the area.

Shortly before dawn, all but 20 left in cars for Bogalusa. Young said those who remained would continue the trek.

White witnesses to the shooting said there was a racial brawl at the combination bar and service station, the Riverside Inn, earlier in the evening. They said a Negro who was refused service cursed and struck a white man and was beaten and kicked unconscious.

Sheriff Sanders said 11 Negroes later returned to the bar, demanding beer.

They were told they would be served outside, he said.

When several whites blocked the door, said Sanders, the Negroes opened fire, then fled to two cars. Sanders said the Negroes had two pistols and a shotgun.

42,000 Involved In Walkout

Copper Strike Month Old, Could Be Longest Of All

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Families of the nation's 42,000 striking copper workers and the dozen or more copper towns are awaiting the next payday, but it seems no closer now than when the strike began one month ago today.

Most people close to the situation—the workers, company officials and union representatives—indicate this could be the longest copper strike of them all, longer than the six-month work-stoppage of 1959-60.

"The bad thing," says Bill Propkopis, "is that between strikes you never make up what you lost."

Propkopis owns a bar in Magna, Utah, a copper town in the southwest corner of the Great Salt Lake Valley. He comes from a copper family and worked five years for Kennecott Copper Corp. before "getting out after that one in '59."

"My daddy used to tell me: 'Son, you're making what you are today because of the guys who went on strike before. And today you're striking for the guys who'll be working here tomorrow,'" Propkopis said.

"But you never break even. That's why I quit," he added.

Strikes haven't been infrequent in the copper industry. In Utah alone, Kennecott has been shut down seven times in 16 years.

But this strike marks the first time a single major union has been able to press an industry-wide shutdown. The big four producers—Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Anaconda and American Smelting & Refining Co.—face a labor force newly dominated by the United Steelworkers of America, AFL-CIO.

Before, the Steelworkers and the old International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers had been the two dominant bargaining agents. They merged this year, and a union spokesman announced a "big stick" bargaining policy was in the offing.

After 31 days, pickets seem as determined as they were a month ago to back the steelworker pronouncement that this would be "the most successful strike the copper industry has ever known."

"There isn't a harder time to try to quit smoking than when you're just laying around," he said.

In the copper towns, business suffers.

These communities—most of them small such as Magna, Utah; Bisbee, Ariz.; Hurley, N.M. and McGill, Nev. or Anaconda, Butte and East Helena in Montana—represent the bulk of U. S. copper production.

"These things are very serious to us," says Magna banker Charles R. Canfield. "For instance, some of the grocery stores are giving a five per cent discount to the copperworkers. But these stores aren't making that much profit to begin with."

He says the town's economic planning is based on "figuring you'll have a strike every time the contract expires ...And then you just pray that doesn't happen."

For six months before the strike, Magna's normal buying, borrowing and saving habits took the usual prestrike pattern. People watched negotiations closely and cut back sharply as prospects of a strike increased.

This, in part, forced Gov. Calvin L. Rampton of Utah to call a four per cent cut in state government spending. Three days after the strike began, he announced that state revenues were far below estimates for the first half of 1967.

He says more cuts may come if the strike is still in effect in September, and the other major copper states also face fiscal crises.

Arizona officials say a property tax increase of four cents per $100 assessed valuation has been forced by the strike. And in New Mexico, Nevada and Montana, state officials are pondering what to do.

The governors of those states have already held one strike meeting in Salt Lake City. Rampton since has contacted administration officials concerning the possibility of invoking the Taft-Hartley Act.

Aides say he was told it would be several months before federal intervention could be considered.

Principal users of copper are the defense industries and the automakers. Even though 95 per cent of domestic copper has been cut off by the strike, stockpiles and imports thus far have prevented any known shortages.

Estimating the strike's cost is difficult. Some say more than $1 million per day. Kennecott alone claims its shutdown is costing more than $4 million per week.

At the negotiating tables, the only progress reported has been on local issues, and that came only in recent days.

One federal mediator recently announced that after several hours of talks, company and union representatives agreed to break two hours for lunch.

"It's the first time since June that they've agreed on anything," he added.

The issues are not all clear, but the companies claim they pay in excess of $4 per hour, including benefits. They claim their best offer is an increase of about 50 cents per hour over a three-year period, but that union demands total more than $1 per hour.

Said a union statement: "Even if this were true, that would only mean 35 cents an hour each year. This much the company could afford."

Van Dyne Named As Investigator In Arson Bureau

Fire Chief Alfred Van Dyne has been notified of his appointment as a special arson investigator for the state.

His name was submitted during a meeting of fire chiefs at Cincinnati in February and he received notification of his acceptance from Roger Boron, executive secretary of the Ohio Bureau of Arson Investigation, operated under the state fire marshal's office.

Van Dyne said he can conduct official investigations of suspected arson cases in the name of the fire marshal's office at the request of the bureau.

He is the first in this district to have been named to the special squad.

Quakes Rock Sections In France, Spain

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — Earthquakes rocked southwestern France and northern Spain Sunday, devastating one French village and felling scattered buildings elsewhere. One death was reported.

In Arette, France, an 80-year-old woman was crushed to death when her house came tumbling down.

The Pyrenees Mountain village, population 1,000, was badly hit by the quick tremors, and its residents abandoned their homes to spend the night in cars or huddled around campfires.

Four persons were injured in the Arette quakes.

Walls collapsed in Montory, France, and many slight injuries were reported.

Reports from northern Spain, particularly in the area of Santander and San Sebastian on the northern coast, said people ran into the streets in fright while furniture shifted, lights swung on their chains and small cracks ripped down plaster.

County Group Will Join In Party Dinner

Columbiana Countians are among Ohio Democrats preparing to attend a fund - raising dinner at which Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall will be the featured speaker.

The event will be Aug. 28 at a Cleveland Hotel, according to Don R. Gosney, county democratic chairman.

The Cleveland dinner will lead off the party's "double header dinners," with a Columbus affair to be addressed the following night by Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien.

Appearances by the two Cabinet members at the $50-a-plate dinners were announced today by Morton Neipp, Ohio Democratic Chairman, at his Cleveland headquarters.

"These Double Header Dinners are the necessary first step in the revitalization of our party in Ohio," Neipp said. "We are raising the seed money which will make it possible for us to offer Ohio's voters a viable two-party system once again."

Appearance of Udall at the Cleveland dinner is of special interest because of his frequently-expressed interest in this area's pollution problems, Neipp added. Transfer of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration to his department has increased Interior's responsibilities as a national agency.

Udall became the 37th Secretary of the Interior January 20, 1961, when he was sworn in during President Kennedy's inauguration. An Arizona native, he had resigned from his fourth term in Congress in order to accept the Cabinet appointment.

He and his wife, the former Ermalee Webb, have six children, and maintain a home in MacLean, Va. and in Tucson. He has gained considerable reputation as an outdoorsman, a writer and champion of conservation, and an enthusiastic participant in Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's nationwide beautification project.

The Democratic fund raising dinner August 28th marks Secretary Udall's first appearance for the Ohio Democratic Party.

An intensive selling effort is going into promotion of the Cleveland and Columbus dinners. "We have a full-time office in Cleveland and a full-time push at our state office to make this the most successful fund - raising effort in the state party's history." Neipp said.

"We're gearing up now to build a strong, effective state party in every corner of the state. We're aiming for a majority in the next session of the General Assembly, and for a sweep of the State House offices in 1970," he declared.

Currently Neipp is engaged in putting together a full time finance committee to expand the party's financial resources.

Extension Is Granted In Decision On Home

LISBON — Columbiana County commissioners and the Ohio Department of State Personnel have been given until Sept. 15 to answer a Seventh District Court of Appeals order concerning County Home appointments.

Prosecuting Atty. J. Warren Bettis said he obtained the extension last week after talking with the state department.

Originally, the county and state units had until Aug. 15 to answer a writ of mandamus obtained Aug. 2 by Robert and Gladys Boyce, superintendent and matron at the home.

The Boyces petitioned for the writ after County Commissioners James W. Boyd and Charles J. Gause appointed Joseph and Rosemond Mattevi of Lisbon RD 4 to the County Home posts effective Aug. 15.

The Seventh District Court ordered the Department of State Personnel to certify on an eligible list "the names only of the Boyces as the only eligible and qualified applicants."

The writ also orders the county commissioners to appoint the Boyces to the jobs they have held on a provisional status since October 1965.

The commissioners last spring called for competitive civil service examinations for the two posts. The Boyces made the only passing grade among the three couples taking the exam in April.

The commissioners refused the eligible list with their names and called for another exam. The Mattevis and Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hiscox of Lisbon were the only applicants and both couples passed. They and the Boyces were certified on an eligible list to the commissioners in July.

The Boyces' petition said the Department of State Personnel deleted the requirement of farming experience between the April and June exams.

Red Chinese Free Russian Ship Captain

By ANTHONY C. COLLINGS

MOSCOW (AP)—The battered Soviet merchant ship Svirsk limped out of the Red Chinese port of Dairen Sunday a Moscow report said, after the Chinese released her captain and three crewmen following a bitter exchange of protest notes with the Soviets.

The Soviet Union announced that seven tugboats full of Red Guards escorted the ship out of the Yellow Sea port. The Svirsk's hull, superstructure and equipment bore anti-Soviet inscriptions.

All the Russian crewmen were aboard when the Svirsk headed for the Soviet port of Vladivostok, the announcement reported, but the ship's documents were kept by the Chinese.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin sent a telegram to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai Saturday demanding that the Red Chinese release the captain and captured crewmen and let the Svirsk sail.

A Peking broadcast heard in Tokyo, however, made no mention of Kosygin's telegram in announcing that "the Chinese government ordered the captain and one other crewman to leave China and never come back to this country."

The ship arrived in Dairen July 22 and shortly after, a Pravda dispatch said, second navigator Stanislav V. Ivanov was accusel by Chinese authorities of refusing to accept a Mao Tse-tung badge. The Chinese demanded that Ivanov be turned over to them but Capt. Viktor A. Korzhov refused.

When the captain went to the port office Friday to register the Svirsk's departure, he was arrested, Pravda said.

The Chinese version held that two crewmen asked for a Mao badge and then "wilfully insulted it and threw one badge into the sea." Peking called it "an intolerable act of sacrilege towards Chairman Mao" and "an extremely serious provocative incident against China."

The Chinese version was contained in a note delivered to the Soviet Embassy in Peking and broadcast by the New China News Agency.

The Soviets planned the whole incident, the Chinese note charged, to "worsen relations between China and the Soviet Union." The Chinese ignored a formal protest note by the Russians Friday, then Kosygin sent his telegram to Chou, warning that the Chinese might be jeoparlizing trade between China and the Soviet Union.

Pravda said Red Guards stormed aboard the Svirsk on Saturday, smashed the ship's equipment, beat up its captain and threatened the crew after the crew refused demands of perhaps 2,500 Red Guards to exchange the navigator for the arrestel captain.

Moscow Radio said the navigator was finally seized.

Quakes Rock Sections In France, Spain

BORDEAUX, France (AP) — Earthquakes rocked southwestern France and northern Spain Sunday, devastating one French village and felling scattered buildings elsewhere. One death was reported.

In Arette, France, an 80-year-old woman was crushed to death when her house came tumbling down.

The Pyrenees Mountain village, population 1,000, was badly hit by the quick tremors, and its residents abandoned their homes to spend the night in cars or huddled around campfires.

Four persons were injured in the Arette quakes.

Walls collapsed in Montory, France, and many slight injuries were reported.

Reports from northern Spain, particularly in the area of Santander and San Sebastian on the northern coast, said people ran into the streets in fright while furniture shifted, lights swung on their chains and small cracks ripped down plaster.

Ike's Improvement Reported Continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is reported continuing to improve from a gastrointestinal illness which hospitalized him nine days ago.

Officials at the Army's Walter Reed General Hospital offered no word Sunday on when he would be discharged.

County Group Will Join In Party Dinner

Columbiana Countians are among Ohio Democrats preparing to attend a fund - raising dinner at which Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall will be the featured speaker.

The event will be Aug. 28 at a Cleveland Hotel, according to Don R. Gosney, county democratic chairman.

The Cleveland dinner will lead off the party's "double header dinners," with a Columbus affair to be addressed the following night by Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien.

Appearances by the two Cabinet members at the $50-a-plate dinners were announced today by Morton Neipp, Ohio Democratic Chairman, at his Cleveland headquarters.

"These Double Header Dinners are the necessary first step in the revitalization of our party in Ohio," Neipp said. "We are raising the seed money which will make it possible for us to offer Ohio's voters a viable two-party system once again."

Appearance of Udall at the Cleveland dinner is of special interest because of his frequently-expressed interest in this area's pollution problems, Neipp added. Transfer of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration to his department has increased Interior's responsibilities as a national agency.

Udall became the 37th Secretary of the Interior January 20, 1961, when he was sworn in during President Kennedy's inauguration. An Arizona native, he had resigned from his fourth term in Congress in order to accept the Cabinet appointment.

He and his wife, the former Ermalee Webb, have six children, and maintain a home in MacLean, Va. and in Tucson. He has gained considerable reputation as an outdoorsman, a writer and champion of conservation, and an enthusiastic participant in Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's nationwide beautification project.

An intensive selling effort is going into promotion of the Cleveland and Columbus dinners. "We have a full-time office in Cleveland and a full-time push at our state office to make this the most successful fund - raising effort in the state party's history." Neipp said.

"We're gearing up now to build a strong, effective state party in every corner of the state. We're aiming for a majority in the next session of the General Assembly, and for a sweep of the State House offices in 1970," he declared.

Currently Neipp is engaged in putting together a full time finance committee to expand the party's financial resources.

A delegation from East Liverpool has returned home after attending the 80th annual session of the Amaranth Grand Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and the 118th annual communication of the most worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge of Ohio Masons in Cleveland.

Worshipful Master Ed Williams of East Liverpool represented the local John Washington Lodge 92 and Mrs. Shirley Ware of Wellsville, associate matron, was the delegate from John Washington Chapter 68.

Others attending were Luther Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. Caesar A. Peters, all of East Liverpool, and Mr. and Mrs. Byron Carter of Wellsville. Mrs. Peters served as grand chairman of credentials and was reappointed for the 1968 Grand Session in Columbus.

An estimated 1,000 attended the public affairs, which included the Divine Services on Sunday at the First Methodist Church, and the annual banquet and the Grand Ball in the ballroom of the Statler Hilton. There were 850 Ohio Masons and Eastern Stars registered for the Grand Lodge.

Extension Is Granted In Decision On Home

LISBON — Columbiana County commissioners and the Ohio Department of State Personnel have been given until Sept. 15 to answer a Seventh District Court of Appeals order concerning County Home appointments.

Prosecuting Atty. J. Warren Bettis said he obtained the extension last week after talking with the state department.

Originally, the county and state units had until Aug. 15 to answer a writ of mandamus obtained Aug. 2 by Robert and Gladys Boyce, superintendent and matron at the home.

The Boyces petitioned for the writ after County Commissioners James W. Boyd and Charles J. Gause appointed Joseph and Rosemond Mattevi of Lisbon RD 4 to the County Home posts effective Aug. 15.

The Seventh District Court ordered the Department of State Personnel to certify on an eligible list "the names only of the Boyces as the only eligible and qualified applicants."

The writ also orders the county commissioners to appoint the Boyces to the jobs they have held on a provisional status since October 1965.

The commissioners last spring called for competitive civil service examinations for the two posts. The Boyces made the only passing grade among the three couples taking the exam in April.

The commissioners refused the eligible list with their names and called for another exam. The Mattevis and Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hiscox of Lisbon were the only applicants and both couples passed. They and the Boyces were certified on an eligible list to the commissioners in July.

The Boyces' petition said the Department of State Personnel deleted the requirement of farming experience between the April and June exams.

Red Chinese Free Russian Ship Captain

By ANTHONY C. COLLINGS

MOSCOW (AP)—The battered Soviet merchant ship Svirsk limped out of the Red Chinese port of Dairen Sunday a Moscow report said, after the Chinese released her captain and three crewmen following a bitter exchange of protest notes with the Soviets.

The Soviet Union announced that seven tugboats full of Red Guards escorted the ship out of the Yellow Sea port. The Svirsk's hull, superstructure and equipment bore anti-Soviet inscriptions.

All the Russian crewmen were aboard when the Svirsk headed for the Soviet port of Vladivostok, the announcement reported, but the ship's documents were kept by the Chinese.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin sent a telegram to Chinese Premier Chou En-lai Saturday demanding that the Red Chinese release the captain and captured crewmen and let the Svirsk sail.

A Peking broadcast heard in Tokyo, however, made no mention of Kosygin's telegram in announcing that "the Chinese government ordered the captain and one other crewman to leave China and never come back to this country."

The ship arrived in Dairen July 22 and shortly after, a Pravda dispatch said, second navigator Stanislav V. Ivanov was accusel by Chinese authorities of refusing to accept a Mao Tse-tung badge. The Chinese demanded that Ivanov be turned over to them but Capt. Viktor A. Korzhov refused.

When the captain went to the port office Friday to register the Svirsk's departure, he was arrested, Pravda said.

The Chinese version held that two crewmen asked for a Mao badge and then "wilfully insulted it and threw one badge into the sea." Peking called it "an intolerable act of sacrilege towards Chairman Mao" and "an extremely serious provocative incident against China."

The Chinese version was contained in a note delivered to the Soviet Embassy in Peking and broadcast by the New China News Agency.

The Soviets planned the whole incident, the Chinese note charged, to "worsen relations between China and the Soviet Union." The Chinese ignored a formal protest note by the Russians Friday, then Kosygin sent his telegram to Chou, warning that the Chinese might be jeopardizing trade between China and the Soviet Union.

Pravda said Red Guards stormed aboard the Svirsk on Saturday, smashed the ship's equipment, beat up its captain and threatened the crew after the crew refused demands of perhaps 2,500 Red Guards to exchange the navigator for the arrestel captain.

Moscow Radio said the navigator was finally seized.

QUESTION: Why do churches have tall steeples?

ANSWER: It is said that the churches of early Christian days often had small turrets or towers to suggest the idea of looking upward to spiritual things. When churches in the medieval period began to build tall towers called companiles —to carry the bells used to call congregations to worship— pointed structures on top were often added (1). Bell towers became taller. The Gothic period with its tall pointed arches arrived—and campanile and spire fused into a majestic climax with the great Gothic cathedrals (2) which seem to actually soar into the sky, carrying the spirit of earth-bound man up to higher religious feeling. eBcause tall towers and steeples had this suggestion, they became used when churches were built in America. If made of humbler materials than the Gothic cathedrals, the churches of America (3) provide the same inspiration: the tall towers and slender spires seem to point upward toward God.

If the average man, instead of retiring at 65, worked on until death he would spend an additional 25,000 hours on the job. The big problem of the retired man is how to spend those free 25,000 hours happily.

The human animal is the only one that consciously goes on a diet. Among those with the biggest appetites are the elephant which can eat up to 95 pounds of food daily, the hippopotamus 49 pounds, the milk cow 45 pounds, and the camel 38.

The hot dog has become an international delicacy. We prefer all-beef frankfurters, but in Africa they are made of lamb and antelope, in Finland of reindeer, and in Japan of whale meat.

Wives married to college graduates might do well to avoid running the vacuum cleaner while their hubbies are in the home. Tests at the University of Michigan found that highly educated people are bothered more by the noise from household appliances than are the uneducated.

Quotable notables: "I have always thought respectable people are scoundrels and I look anxiously at my face every morning for signs of my becoming a scoundrel."—Bertrand Russell.

It pays to advertise: American Indians used to carve figures on trees to let it be known they sought a squaw.

What is the largest U.S. city in terms of area? You're wrong if you say Los Angeles, which covers 454.8 square miles. The honor is claimed by Oklahoma City. As the result of some 300 annexations, it now sprawls over 631 square miles.

Prosperity note: The swimming pool now has become a family status symbol. Of the nation's 725,000 pools, about two-thirds are home-owned.

If you don't spoon down 5½ gallons of ice cream a year, you're below the national average. Vanilla is preferred by 46 per cent, chocolate by nearly 13 per cent, and strawberry by 7 per cent of the consumers. Coffee-flavored ice cream goes over big in the Northeast, peach in the South.

Worth remembering: "God gave man five senses—touch, taste, sight, smell and hearing. The successful man is endowed with two more—horse and common."

Folklore: Eating bread crumbs will make you wise. Putting pepper in your stockings will cure you of chills.

It was the Greek philosopher Plato who said, "O ye gods, grant us what is good whether we pray for it or not, but keep evil from us even though we pray for it."

$1 Million Loss Expected In Fire

GERMANTOWN, Ohio (AP)—Fire Chief Richard Zechar says damage may run as high as $1 million in a fire which destroyed three tobcaco warehouses, a business firm and a home here.

Firemen in this Montgomery County community of 4,000 near Dayton were finally pulled off the scene Sunday after an all-night vigil to keep the flames from erupting again.

The fire broke out Saturday afternoon at Associated Paper Products, Inc., owned by Richard Grund of Middletown, then spread to the warehouses, all filled with tobacco, and the home.

Its cause still has not been determined.

Electrical power also was knocked out in an eight-block area as firemen fought the flames. No serious injuries were reported.

Functions of the British House of Lords are largely ceremonial and its members do not receive pay for their services.

LBJ Family Is Reunited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson family reunited Sunday after beaches and business had taken everyone but grandpa—the President—and little Lyn Nugent away from the White House.

Luci and Patrick J. Nugent flew in from Nassau in the Bahama Islands, where they had returned for a week-long vacation to their oceanside villa honeymoon spot of a year ago.

A White House spokesman quoted Luci as saying she didn't know how it was going to be to part with her baby for the first time but that she came home thinking it was good for everybody.

The Nugents are expected to leave in a few days for their Austin, Tex., home and a stop at Waukegan, Ill., to visit his parents.

Mrs. Johnson, who had been at the LBJ ranch in Texas for a few days to make decisions on an addition to the house there, flew back to Washington late Saturday night.

Council Will Meet

EAST PALESTINE — Council will hold a special meeting tonight at 8 to consider an application for a carry-out beer permit for Mrs. Esther Manley at 1181 N. Market St., known as the Hilltop Market. Council also will consider an additional appropriation for the purchase of a tractor for the city street department. All bids were submitted several weeks ago. Eight area firms made offers, all of which exceeded the $8,000 originally appropriated by Council.

2 Who Took Car Believed To Be Jail Escapees

COSHOCTON, Ohio (AP) — Authorities here searched Sunday night and early today for two men who took a car from its owner at gunpoint. The men were believed to be escapees from the Trumbull County Jail at Warren.

The searching ended about 1 a.m.

The Coshocton County Sheriff's Office said the descriptions of the men who took the car from James Wycoff at Three Rivers Bridge near here Sunday evening fit those of the prisoners who escaped from the jail by climbing through a heating duct to the roof. Coshocton police said the fugitives may have been in another stolen car that was abandoned here earlier after an accident.

The car stolen from Wycoff was a white 1959 Pontiac.

Trumbull County Sheriff Robert W. Barnett identified the 20-year-old escapees, who broke out late Saturday night, as Charles Troutman and Raymond Keller, both of Leavittsburg, who were jailed for parole violations.

Barnett said the pair had been in Mansfield Reformatory for armed robbery and breaking and entering.

Deputies said the fugitives apparently changed clothes on Warren's northeast side after their escape. They said a bag containing overalls such as those worn by jail prisoners was found in that area.

Local Schools Plan For Fall's Opening

Last-minute preparations are being made by the East Liverpool school system for the start of the 1967-68 term on Sept. 6.

A general teachers' meeting will be held Sept. 5 at 9 a.m. in Westgate Junior High School auditorium, Supt. Paul Blair said.

He pointed out that time schedules have been changed at the various buildings to allow buses time to complete their runs.

HIGH SCHOOL classes will begin at 8 a.m. and dismiss at 3 p.m.; Westgate Junior High, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; East Junior High, 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m., and all elementary buildings 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

An enrollment of 5,634 is anticipated including 516 first-graders.

Blair also announced that students who live a mile or more from school will be transported free of charge by bus.

There will be no transportation available at noon, however, Blair said, because the Board of Education is permitted to furnish only one round - trip per day under state law. Students living within a mile of the school must walk or find other means of transportation, he said.

Material and lab fees will remain the same as last year, as will cafeteria prices.

Changes in administration include the appointment of Tony LaNeve as East Junior High School principal, replacing Jerry Russell, who now is with the St. Clairsville school system.

The diversified cooperative training program in East Liverpool High School probably will be discontinued, the superintendent said, because of the difficulty in finding another instructor.

Vernon A. Walrath of Lisbon St., who had been serving as coordinator, resigned to become supervisor of a vocational education program covering seven school districts in Columbiana County.

Thirty new teachers have been added to the staff, but they have not yet been assigned to schools, Blair said.

NEW TEACHERS include Mrs. Carol Ann Heizer, Miss Joan Flora, Mrs. Alma Kelly, Mrs. Alice Simmen, Paul Boggess, Dennis Anthony, David Thorne, David Heizer, Mrs. Marilyn Lang, Mrs. Gladys Hyder, Raymond Goodman and Mrs. Carolyn Turon of East Liverpool; Mrs. Ellen Forbes and Miss Sandra Owens of Wellsville; Mrs. Joan Tomec Doyle and John Hermick of Midland; Don Foutz of Dover; Pat Bonvenuto of Masontown, Pa.

Miss Gladys Hensell of Turthe Creek, Pa.; James Quinn of Steubenville; Denzil Parsche of Louisville; Otha E. Smith of West Union, W. Va.; Paul Koehler of New Brighton, Pa.; Mrs. Pat Frost of Lakeside; David Harris of Fairmont, W. Va.; Charles Fazzone of New Castle; Mrs. Dorthea Pattison of Chester; Miss Mary Philo of Martins Ferry, Stanley M. Grzebienowski of Carnegie; and Terry Davis of Bowling Green.

Mrs. Hyder, Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Simmen were substitute teachers in the system previous to the full-time teaching assignment.

Terry Davis will join the teaching assignment.

Terry Davis will join the teaching staff following completion of his teacher's training, about eight weeks after school begins, Blair said.

College Reduces Grade Pressures

Beloit College freshmen who formerly would have been placed on probation during the first year because of poor marks instead will be given individual counseling.

If at the end of one year, low marks still call for probation, the student has two more terms in which to try to bring his grade point average to C.

Also recognizing that most students' marks pick up as they move upward, Beloit officials permit students to erase the two lowest grades from their records.

For example, if a student at the end of one year has earned eight B's, two C's, one D and one F from 12 grades, he can "be forgiven" the D and the F.

Dr. William L. Kolb, dean of the college at Beloit, Wis., feels the new plan will help remove not only pressures, but a kind of competition for academic laurels going on between him, the faculty, and often his parents.

Enrollment Increase Due In Beaver Local District

An increased enrollment is expected at Beaver Local School District's six buildings when classes resume Sept. 6, Supt. Roy Cashdollar said.

Some 2,660 students are anticipated for the start of the fall term, compared with 2,624 at the end of the last school year. About 220 first - graders are awaited.

Teachers will meet at 9 a.m. Sept. 5 at the high school, and each of the six schools will have staff sessions separately at 11 a.m.

William Johnson of Washington Court House is the new principal at Calcutta. There are 11 new instructors in the system, Cashdollar said.

Bus schedules will remain the same as last year. Cafeteria prices at the high school and Public School will be 35 cents, while lunch prices at the four elementary buildings will remain the same as last year—30 cents.

The new teachers include John Huebert of North Lima, elementary music; Gary Walker of Brookpark, high school social studies ;Ronald Ensinger of Echo Dell Rd., Public School science; Mrs. Gay Dysert of Park Way, East Liverpool, Junior High English.

Paul Zaperach of Echo Dell, junior high English; Mrs. Nancy Hadley of Beaver Falls, eighth-grade math; Mrs. Susan Starkey of East Liverpool and Mrs. Colleen Mathias of East Liverpool, Calcutta School; Lewis Negley, teacher-principal at Elkton; Mrs. Kathryn Devin of East Palestine, Rogers second grade; Marvin McKinney of California, fifth grade at Rogers, Mrs. Helen Saling, second grade at West Point.

Cashdollar said there will be no speech and hearing therapist available, so the program will be dropped unless such a therapist can be obtained.

Electronic Device Teaches Musical Theory To Students

TORONTO — An electronic music teacher that enables the instructor to handle a dozen students at once and tell which ones are playing wrong notes has been invented by David Ouchterlony of the Royal Conservatory's school of music.

The device, called a multiple student keyboard, consists of a dozen three - octave keyboards, which can be set up on table tops for students, and a master keyboard for the teacher.

Whenever a student presses a key a light shows on a panel in front of the teacher. If all students are hitting the right note the lights are in a straight line. If not, the out - of - line light identifies the out - of - line pupil.

Each keyboard can be adjusted to produce either a string, flute or harpsichord sound. But it's not really for teaching students how to play those instruments. The real purpose is instructing in musical theory.

One of the device's main benefits is removing the gap between theory and practice-identifying the pupil who knows textbook theory and can do exercises by rote but can't turn his knowledge to musical use; or conversely, the born player who really doesn't understand the theory of what he's doing.

Knows Who's Off

The teacher knows day by day who needs help and he can give that help as soon as it's needed, Dr. Ouchterlony says, because "you've got every guy and every gal in your group under your thumb all the time."

Dr. Ouchterlony, who has been the conservatory's supervisor of branches and the organist and choirmaster of Timothy Eaton Memorial Church for 20 years, demonstrated the devise for observers from the United States and England.

He says the keyboard has also excited keen interest in France and Italy. Most excited of all, he adds, are conservatories and schools in Quebec who are eagerly awaiting sets, to be available shortly at between $8,000 and $9,000.

"It's being made in the United States only because we couldn't get any Canadian firm to say when they could do it or at what cost. It took the Allen Organ Co. of Allentown, Pa., just three days to come up with the information."

Increase Due At South Side

South Side Beaver Jointure at Hookstown will begin the school year Sept. 5 with an enrollment of 1,179—55 more students than in September 1966.

Last year there were 49 enrolled in kindergarten, while this year's figure is 54. There are 36 more students enrolled this year in grades one through six against last year's figure of 591.

The trend continues in grades nine through 12, with 498 enrolled against 484 for the 1966-67 school year.

Cleaning and painting of rooms has been completed.

The faculty will meet Sept. 1 to prepare for the first day of school and to orient new members. The cafeteria staff will meet Aug. 31.

Money Helps

According to a study by the Ohio State Department of Education, schools with students scoring in the top quarter on state achievement tests spent an average of $113 more per student than schools that placed students in the bottom quarter.

Clergymen Sift Urban Problems

An opportunty for clergymen in city parishes to have an intensive look at urban problems is being given by Cleveland College in a 32-week pilot program.

Seven Protestant ministers and four Catholic priests are studying the problems of poverty, inter - group relations, youth, health and the aging in round-the-clock field work and discussion seminars.

The program is being financed by the National Institute of Mental Health under a half-million dollar grant.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Mini-skirts, jeans and bare feet were outlawed at Johannesburg's Witwatersrand University from the beginning of the new academic year.

In an attack on sartorial inelegance, university authorities also ordered male and female students to refrain from wearing slovenly or indecent clothing.

Males were told they must not appear unkempt or unshaven, in shorts without stockings or in shirts without collars.

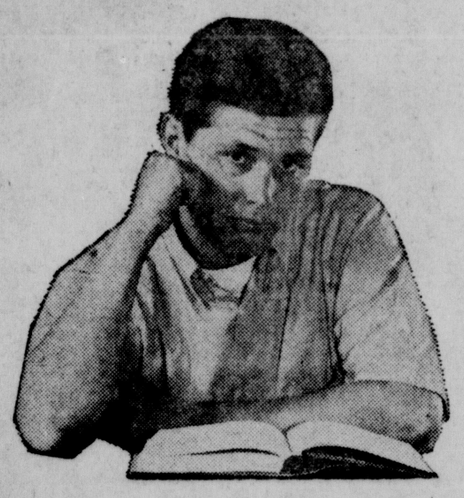
TWO GOOD IDEAS from FIRST NATIONAL



1. Checking Accounts for College Students
2. Loans for Back-to-School Expenses

1. A checking account for college students is a good idea because students free of money problems can work better.
   And at First National:
   A. No minimum balance is required
   B. Any amount starts your account
   C. The cost is only 10c per check used
   D. Your name is printed on every check
   E. Mom or Dad can make the deposits
   With a First National Checking Account, you have an easy-to-keep, accurate expense record and receive a statement every month.

2. A back-to-school loan is a good idea because all school expenses hit at one time. Comes September, comes school . . . and new clothes, books, tution. All these quickly add up. A loan from First National can ease the back-to-school financial burden.

Bright Fashions Ready For Fall's Classes

Pupils Offered Peppier Styles

Wild and vivid will be the fashion color theme for both gals and the fellows as another school season is on the wing. Bright young fashions are being shown in city stores with the clothing beautifully tailored throughout and giving every last seam and button new meaning.

The "total look" is being emphasized at Zack's where the costume is the thing. The suit, dress and coat or dress and sweater groupings are featured in one color blends or "dyed to match" ensembles.

The blazer jacket is longer and much fur trim appears on sports wear. Heavy, nubby, knit hose will correspond with the sweaters. Pants are designed a little fuller this season. Belts are back, all kinds of them, be they either chain, leather or self.

THE JUMPER is the thing at the Chambers Co., in a variety of colors and styles. Many of the school dresses are "low-waisted" styles with flared flounces and pleats added for the skirts.

As for skirt lengths it is a "tale of hems and hers," with age and attitude contributing much to the decision. Mini-skirts and dresses are not good for the high school level, but are permissable for the college girl, at least in the upper classes.

The "hardware" look comes into full bloom at the D. M. Ogilvie Co., which is showing the industrial zipper, nailhead trim and galosh closings on the young maiden's school clothing. Chains are used to trim the hats and shoes in addition to their use as belts.

HOSIERY is the biggest single fashion accessory this fall due to the short line of the skirt, and the various textured types are a must in every wardrobe.

A big hit are the "mini-alamandarin" shifts of wool, orlon or cotton in bright neon colors, many of them striped.

The "kiltie" skirt is quite the thing at Rapport's, and is sanctioned for the high school lass as well as for the college campus. Bright plaids and tweeds are shown in the shirts and jackets.

Sweaters are longer this year, and the skirts come in many styles — the A-line with the front slot, the slim sheath with kick pleats and the flared number. Many three-part knits are on the fashion scene for the college miss, with some of the solid shells and skirts topped by colorful cardigans.

The "match game" may be played at Olsen's with the "mix em and match em" outfits coming in four pieces, skirts, jackets, pants and shells or sweaters. These are shown in checks, plaids and stripes.

Although there still seems to be a question about "culottes" on the local school scene, modified versions seem permissable. The culotte dresses are very rich in color.

AS FOR THE gentlemen, they are assured of the success of their appearances by Ogilvies, who have coordinated slacks, vests and jackets in rich, solid colors and unusual shades in a variety of plaids.

Although the collars on the shirts are wider and a little higher, they are still buttoned down. The shirts are much more colorful than previous seasons. Fur trim is popular on the coats which are car length.

Bright colors of pumpkin, caramel, Mexican spice, bronze and golden brown light up the sweater supply at Robins and Sant, who show the items in the crew-neck pullover, V-neck pullover and ribbon out cardigan.

Shirts are in mock - turtle sweater types, ivy league and the sophisticated solids, the kind you can wear day in and day out without tiring of it.

The ivy league and continental models are detailed in every perspective in the jackets shown at Frank Diamond's where they also feature the heavier Harris tweeds and window pane checks along with the Glen plaids.

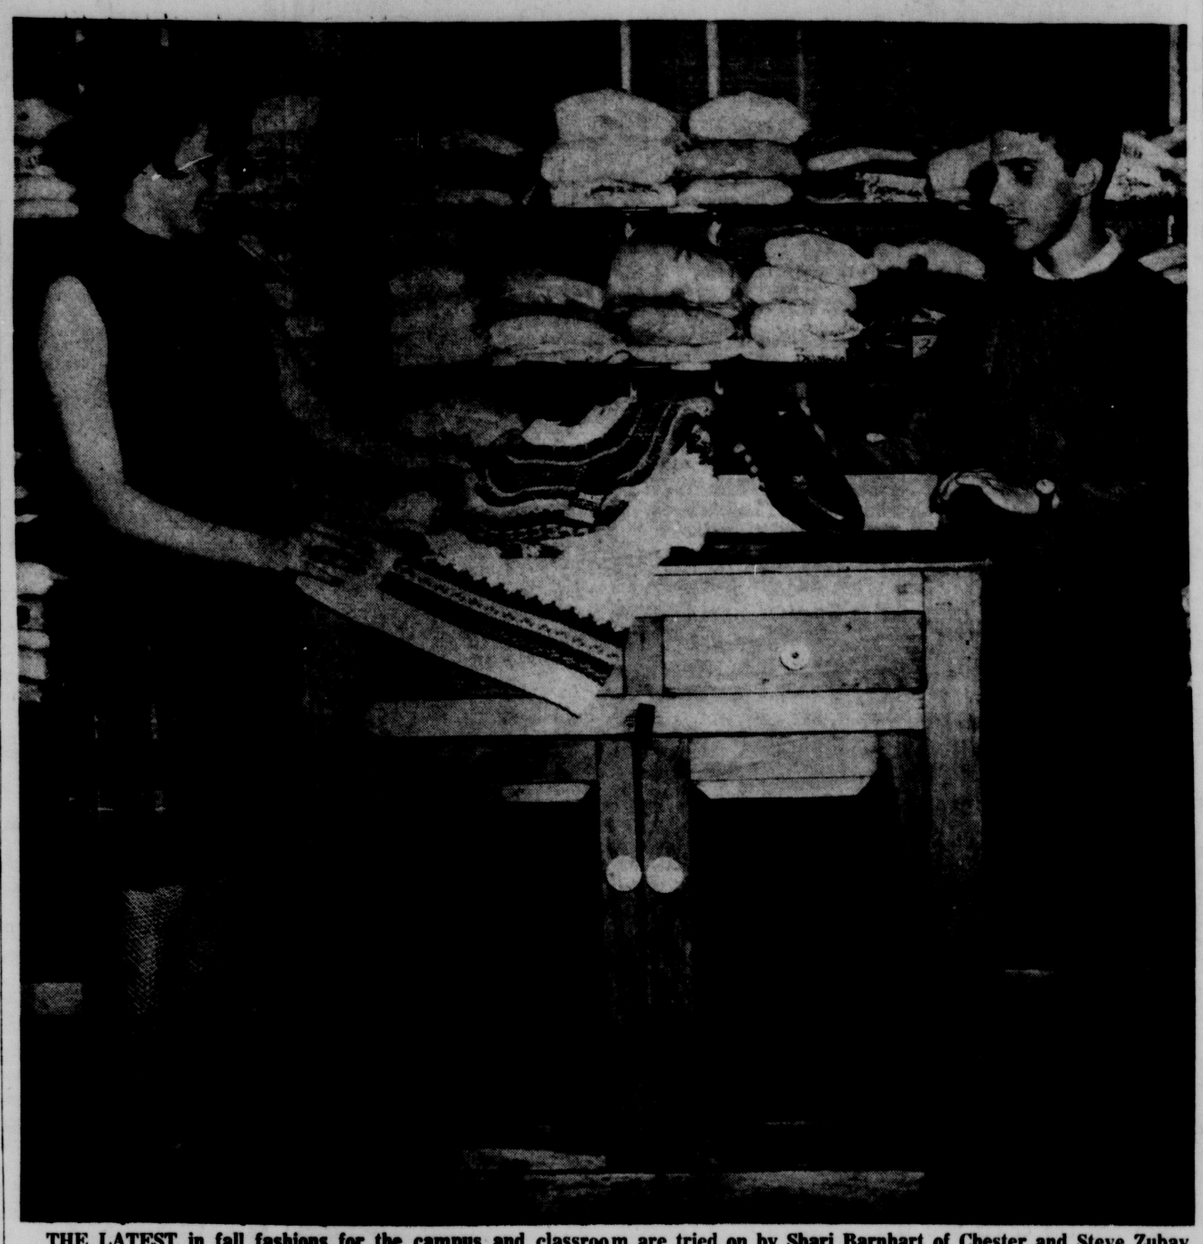
Jackets are three - quarter length in suede and leather with fur trim, some of them have the Sherpa collar. Cable - knit, lambs wool and the suede sweater hold appropriate places in the young man's wardrobe for school.

The small "grade school fry" are being well treated at Montgomery Ward & Co. offering light-weight jackets and hooded car coats with zipper fronts. All kinds of jeans, saddle pants and denims are popular. The shirts are paisley, solid and plaid.

The brawny twill and bedford cord are among the trouser line at the J. C. Penney Co. As for the jackets, they are the stadium type, the sweater - effect with the suede front and the ranch jacket in corduroy and suede cloth.



THE LATEST in fall fashions for the campus and classroom are tried on by Shari Barnhart of Chester and Steve Zubay of East Liverpool in preparation for the beginning of school in a few weeks.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—What can I do when clothing has left lint on a freshly-varnished surface that has not fully hardened?

Q.—What can I do about butter that has taken on the flavor of something else in my refrigerator?

Soak the butter for a couple of hours in cold water in which a pinch of bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved. This should restore the proper taste to your butter.

Stanton Enrollment Rises

The added enrollment can be traced to those students of the Jefferson Union District who will begin classes at Stanton Local in advance of an October consolidation of the two school districts and Springfield, Supt. C. P. Henderson points out.

The Jefferson County school will hold a general meeting for teachers Aug. 31. Classes will start Sept. 5.

There will be no change this year in the Cafeteria. Prices will remain at 30 cents for students and 35 for adults. Henderson said bus schedules also will remain the same.

The major faculty additions include Kenneth Woods as football coach, replacing Glenn Trout, who took a post with the Gallipolis schools following his undefeated season last year. Woods will also teach physical education and swimming.

Judy Routzon, formerly of Brilliant, will teach social studies and bookkeeping at the high school and Martha Sweeney was hired as the new librarian.

Joseph Plesich, formerly director of admissions at the College of Steubenville, has been hired to the post of guidance director. He will teach one English course.

Other new high school teachers include Gary Miller, French and English, and Melvin Funk, science and junior high school mathematics. High school vacancies exist in English and industrial arts, Henderson said.

New elementary teachers and their previous assignments are Carol Taldmine of Wooster, Frances Leon of Cuyahoga Falls, Wilma Trudicks of Jefferson Union, Mary Ondik of Louisiana and Mary Angel, formerly an instructor at Ohio Valley Hospital, Steubenville.

Meeting Of Teachers Set Sept. 5 At Southern Local

In the Southern Local District, Supt. Thomas Leek says some 1,451 students will be returning to classes at Salineville, Wayne, Highlandtown, Franklin, No. 16 and the high school. The district had 1,430 pupils last year.

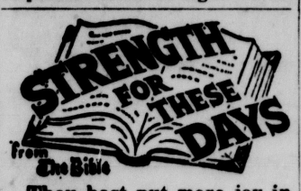
Teachers will meet in a general session Sept. 5 at 9:30 a.m. at the high school. Building meetings will be held in the afternoon.

Leek said bus schedules in general will be similar to those of last year, but there will be some revisions because seventh- and eighth-graders in the No. 16 and Highlandtown areas will be attending classes at Salineville.

The cafeteria prices will be the same as last year — 30 cents for elementary students and 35 cents for seventh grade and older.

New instructors include Robert Glendenning of Newell, industrial arts at the high school; Mrs. Sandra Forbes of Wellsville, Highlandtown; Mrs. Margaret Ewing of Lisbon RD and Mrs. Kathleen Lodge of Leetonia, Wayne School, and Mrs. Judy Bryan of Salineville RD, Salineville School.

Mrs. Kathleen Kelly of Wellsville RD 1, reading specialist with the mobile trailer this summer, will continue her duties, visiting the various schools at periods of six to eight weeks.



Thou hast put more joy in my heart.—(Psalms 4:7.)

Joy is something that is a part of us. It is not something that we put on but, rather, that we release. When we feel the least joyful, we need most to let go and let the joyful Spirit in us well up, bubble up, in us. We do not have to put on a joyful spirit, we do not create it—it is there within us, a well-spring of joy. There is a joyous spirit in us, a spirit that sings its song of joy in spite of external happenings, that cannot be quenched even when the going seems difficult.

Learns Flying Early

The 8-year-old school girl can take off, fly and land a Cessna 170 without anyone else touching the controls. Other pilots say she's capable of soloing. However, the Federal Aviation Agency won't let her do it until she's 16.

She began learning to fly when she was five, now has 140 hours to her credit.

New Look Helps Student's Home Study Location

In the whirl of preparation for going back to school, it's easy to overlook one significant factor.

When you get right down to it, the name of the school game is "Study", and it is important that the young scholar in your family have a good place in the house to do just that.

What is needed is a quiet, uncluttered, well - lighted study area — a desk or table, a straight - backed chair, an efficient lamp — located apart from family traffic and noise. Oftentimes, the student's own bedroom is the logical spot.

Crreating a "homework haven conducive to good study habits need not be an expensive project, according to the color and decorating stylists.

An old desk or table from the attic or from a second - hand store, plus a castoff dining or kitchen chair, will serve the purpose very well. Given a fresh coat of paint, old furniture can take on new life.

If it's battered, nicked and scratched, so much the better — capitalize on that and antique it. You don't have to remove the old finish or the imperfections. Just paint, glaze and wipe over the old finish. It will look wonderful.

With a choice of 22 different soft tints, deep tones, and wood tones in convenience kits, you can coordinate the desk and chair with the bedroom color scheme easily.

Russia Puts Education On Higher Level

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's massive attack on illiteracy in the 50 years of Communist power here has had sweeping results.

Fifty years ago, only a tiny portion of the population was literate. Today, some 68 million people, nearly a third of the country's population, are engaged in some form of regular study.

Ironically, because of this concentration on education, school problems persist: almost a third of Soviet school children are on double shifts because of shortages of teachers and classrooms. Plans call for building 22,000 new schools by 1970 to alleviate shifts.

At the university level, facilities are also crowded, which means intense competition for the places available.

Other educational problems which have been openly discussed in the Soviet press are shortages of textbooks, excessive workloads for teachers, and poor quality of instruction in music, art and physical education.

Mikhail A. Prokofiev, newly-named head of a national ministry of education, coordinating the work of separate education ministries in the various Soviet republics, complained in the newspaper Pravda of lowering school standards, old-fashioned teaching methods and high dropout rates.

Many pupils leave school after the eighth grade, which would compare with a high school drop - out in the United States. The problem is most severe in farm areas where youngsters are needed to harvest crop.

On the positive side, plans for school improvement include introductory courses in biology, chemistry, and physics for fourth graders, and at the university level, an effort to reshape research programs to tie in with the practical daily needs of Soviet industry.

Universities are being encouraged to make contracts with universities and study ways of improving production. Under this plan, the universities are being permitted to keep 75 per cent of the profits from these contracts to invest in university needs.

Thirty - two grants totalling nearly $25 million have been approved by the U.S. Office of Education to help 29 universities expand their graduate schools.

Bright Fashions Ready For Fall's Classes

Pupils Offered Peppier Styles

Wild and vivid will be the fashion color theme for both gals and the fellows as another school season is on the wing. Bright young fashions are being shown in city stores with the clothing beautifully tailored throughout and giving every last seam and button new meaning.

The "total look" is being emphasized at Zack's where the costume is the thing. The suit, dress and coat or dress and sweater groupings are featured in one color blends or "dyed to match" ensembles.

The blazer jacket is longer and much fur trim appears on sports wear. Heavy, nubby, knit hose will correspond with the sweaters. Pants are designed a little fuller this season. Belts are back, all kinds of them, be they either chain, leather or self.

THE JUMPER is the thing at the Chambers Co., in a variety of colors and styles. Many of the school dresses are "low-waisted" styles with flared flounces and pleats added for the skirts.

As for skirt lengths it is a "tale of hems and hers," with age and attitude contributing much to the decision. Mini-skirts and dresses are not good for the high school level, but are permissable for the college girl, at least in the upper classes.

The "hardware" look comes into full bloom at the D. M. Ogilvie Co., which is showing the industrial zipper, nailhead trim and galosh closings on the young maiden's school clothing. Chains are used to trim the hats and shoes in addition to their use as belts.

HOSIERY is the biggest single fashion accessory this fall due to the short line of the skirt, and the various textured types are a must in every wardrobe.

A big hit are the "mini-alamandarin" shifts of wool, orlon or cotton in bright neon colors, many of them striped.

The "kiltie" skirt is quite the thing at Rapport's, and is sanctioned for the high school lass as well as for the college campus. Bright plaids and tweeds are shown in the shirts and jackets.

Sweaters are longer this year, and the skirts come in many styles — the A-line with the front slot, the slim sheath with kick pleats and the flared number. Many three-part knits are on the fashion scene for the college miss, with some of the solid shells and skirts topped by colorful cardigans.

The "match game" may be played at Olsen's with the "mix em and match em" outfits coming in four pieces, skirts, jackets, pants and shells or sweaters. These are shown in checks, plaids and stripes.

Although there still seems to be a question about "culottes" on the local school scene, modified versions seem permissable. The culotte dresses are very rich in color.

AS FOR THE gentlemen, they are assured of the success of their appearances by Ogilvies, who have coordinated slacks, vests and jackets in rich, solid colors and unusual shades in a variety of plaids.

Although the collars on the shirts are wider and a little higher, they are still buttoned down. The shirts are much more colorful than previous seasons. Fur trim is popular on the coats which are car length.

Bright colors of pumpkin, caramel, Mexican spice, bronze and golden brown light up the sweater supply at Robins and Sant, who show the items in the crew-neck pullover, V-neck pullover and ribbon out cardigan.

Shirts are in mock - turtle sweater types, ivy league and the sophisticated solids, the kind you can wear day in and day out without tiring of it.

The ivy league and continental models are detailed in every perspective in the jackets shown at Frank Diamond's where they also feature the heavier Harris tweeds and window pane checks along with the Glen plaids.

Wide-wale corduroy pants get attention at the Arrow Pants Shop which features slim, permanent press trousers of many styles in plaids, checks, solids and diagonals.

Jackets are three - quarter length in suede and leather with fur trim, some of them have the Sherpa collar. Cable - knit, lambs wool and the suede sweater hold appropriate places in the young man's wardrobe for school.

The small "grade school fry" are being well treated at Montgomery Ward & Co. offering light-weight jackets and hooded car coats with zipper fronts. All kinds of jeans, saddle pants and denims are popular. The shirts are paisley, solid and plaid.

The brawny twill and bedford cord are among the trouser line at the J. C. Penney Co. As for the jackets, they are the stadium type, the sweater - effect with the suede front and the ranch jacket in corduroy and suede cloth.

THE LATEST in fall fashions for the campus and classroom are tried on by Shari Barnhart of Chester and Steve Zubay of East Liverpool in preparation for the beginning of school in a few weeks.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—What can I do when clothing has left lint on a freshly-varnished surface that has not fully hardened?

Q.—What can I do about butter that has taken on the flavor of something else in my refrigerator?

Soak the butter for a couple of hours in cold water in which a pinch of bicarbonate of soda has been dissolved. This should restore the proper taste to your butter.

Stanton Enrollment Rises

The added enrollment can be traced to those students of the Jefferson Union District who will begin classes at Stanton Local in advance of an October consolidation of the two school districts and Springfield, Supt. C. P. Henderson points out.

The Jefferson County school will hold a general meeting for teachers Aug. 31. Classes will start Sept. 5.

There will be no change this year in the Cafeteria. Prices will remain at 30 cents for students and 35 for adults. Henderson said bus schedules also will remain the same.

The major faculty additions include Kenneth Woods as football coach, replacing Glenn Trout, who took a post with the Gallipolis schools following his undefeated season last year. Woods will also teach physical education and swimming.

Judy Routzon, formerly of Brilliant, will teach social studies and bookkeeping at the high school and Martha Sweeney was hired as the new librarian.

Joseph Plesich, formerly director of admissions at the College of Steubenville, has been hired to the post of guidance director. He will teach one English course.

Other new high school teachers include Gary Miller, French and English, and Melvin Funk, science and junior high school mathematics. High school vacancies exist in English and industrial arts, Henderson said.

New elementary teachers and their previous assignments are Carol Taldmine of Wooster, Frances Leon of Cuyahoga Falls, Wilma Trudicks of Jefferson Union, Mary Ondik of Louisiana and Mary Angel, formerly an instructor at Ohio Valley Hospital, Steubenville.

Meeting Of Teachers Set Sept. 5 At Southern Local

In the Southern Local District, Supt. Thomas Leek says some 1,451 students will be returning to classes at Salineville, Wayne, Highlandtown, Franklin, No. 16 and the high school. The district had 1,430 pupils last year.

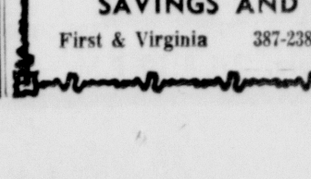
Teachers will meet in a general session Sept. 5 at 9:30 a.m. at the high school. Building meetings will be held in the afternoon.

Leek said bus schedules in general will be similar to those of last year, but there will be some revisions because seventh- and eighth-graders in the No. 16 and Highlandtown areas will be attending classes at Salineville.

The cafeteria prices will be the same as last year — 30 cents for elementary students and 35 cents for seventh grade and older.

New instructors include Robert Glendenning of Newell, industrial arts at the high school; Mrs. Sandra Forbes of Wellsville, Highlandtown; Mrs. Margaret Ewing of Lisbon RD and Mrs. Kathleen Lodge of Leetonia, Wayne School, and Mrs. Judy Bryan of Salineville RD, Salineville School.

Mrs. Kathleen Kelly of Wellsville RD 1, reading specialist with the mobile trailer this summer, will continue her duties, visiting the various schools at periods of six to eight weeks.



Thou hast put more joy in my heart.—(Psalms 4:7.)

Joy is something that is a part of us. It is not something that we put on but, rather, that we release. When we feel the least joyful, we need most to let go and let the joyful Spirit in us well up, bubble up, in us. We do not have to put on a joyful spirit, we do not create it—it is there within us, a well-spring of joy. There is a joyous spirit in us, a spirit that sings its song of joy in spite of external happenings, that cannot be quenched even when the going seems difficult.

New Look Helps Student's Home Study Location

In the whirl of preparation for going back to school, it's easy to overlook one significant factor.

When you get right down to it, the name of the school game is "Study", and it is important that the young scholar in your family have a good place in the house to do just that.

What is needed is a quiet, uncluttered, well - lighted study area — a desk or table, a straight - backed chair, an efficient lamp — located apart from family traffic and noise. Oftentimes, the student's own bedroom is the logical spot.

Crreating a "homework haven conducive to good study habits need not be an expensive project, according to the color and decorating stylists.

An old desk or table from the attic or from a second - hand store, plus a castoff dining or kitchen chair, will serve the purpose very well. Given a fresh coat of paint, old furniture can take on new life.

If it's battered, nicked and scratched, so much the better — capitalize on that and antique it. You don't have to remove the old finish or the imperfections. Just paint, glaze and wipe over the old finish. It will look wonderful.

With a choice of 22 different soft tints, deep tones, and wood tones in convenience kits, you can coordinate the desk and chair with the bedroom color scheme easily.

Learns Flying Early

The 8-year-old school girl can take off, fly and land a Cessna 170 without anyone else touching the controls. Other pilots say she's capable of soloing. However, the Federal Aviation Agency won't let her do it until she's 16.

She began learning to fly when she was five, now has 140 hours to her credit.

By WARD MARCHANT

Meredith Weston took her into the infirmary for first aid, and left in his office a boy who had been fighting on the playground.

"It's like this all day," Weston said. "When I return I'll have to sit awhile with that boy to find out what his problem is."

Weston is the principal of Goins Elementary School, Cheyenne's second largest — with 510 pupils — in a state characterized by vast differences in school sizes.

HE STARTED his career in 1950 as superintendent at Rozet, a school which then had 60 pupils, grades 1-12. He also was the high school coach, taught high school English and world history. His wife taught English, American history, girls' physical education and typing.

The job at Rozet was "busy," but, Weston adds that his present job is tougher—in a much different way. He thinks it very necessary for teachers and administrators to become involved in civic affairs since "schools cannot be separated from the community."

In addition to his duties at school, he is a member of Toastmasters International; edits a newsletter for the Wyoming Elementary Principals' Association serves as a steward in the Methodist Church; is treasurer of an honorary educational fraternity, Phi Delta Kappa; and will be a discussion leader for the National Convention of Elementary Principals in Boston this year.

An athlete, Weston plays basketball on the city league in the winter. He also skis with his family "when we can get out." He plays golf in the summer and on Sunday night watches "Bonanza" on television with his wife and two children.

WESTON arrives at school about 7:30 a.m. to check the building and greet the teachers. He inspects the bulletin board for anything that has to be done immediately. If there are substitute teachers, Weston orients them; and he sees that any new pupils are registered and assigned to teachers.

Once a week there is some kind of parents' meeting. Today he meets with the officers of the PTA to discuss problems with an upcoming school carnival.

There are 18 regular teachers. Specialists — band and chorus teachers, a speech therapist and others — come in once or twice a week. Their activities must be coordinated.

The school psychiatrist calls to report on a child who makes so much noise in class he must be taken out of school until his problem is ironed out.

The superintendent of schools brings in another problem: a parent has complained because the children were on the playground in 17-degree weather.

"We try to make sure the children aren't outside more than 15 minutes at a time on cold days," Weston explains, "but most complaints of this type come from parents who recently have moved to Cheyenne from warmer climates. Wyoming kids are necessarily a little hardier."

Other telephone calls from parents deal with school policies and student problems — or just information about the school. The calls continue at Weston's home.

AFTER school there is a host of activities.

"PTA takes up about as much time as anything, but there is usually a basketball or football game to attend, or an administrators' meeting, or a faculty meeting," he explains.

"Or there are such problems as the janitor who is worried because children cleaning erasers have been hitting them on the side of the building and the bricks are hard to clean."

One of the problems faced by Weston is the size of classes in some of the lower grades — a few have as many as 35 pupils. He feels a class of 23-25 for the primary grades — kindergarten through third — and 23-28 for grades four through six "gives the optimum compromise between individual attention and competition among the pupils."

School finances provide another problem. In Wyoming some small schools in oil rich communities are backed by assessed property valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars per pupil, while some of the larger schools in areas of little mineral wealth have tax backing of as little as $1,500 per pupil.

CHEYENNE, the largest school district, with about 15,000 pupils, is one of the tax poor areas of the state.

Weston says he is vitally interested in new methods of education and one of his pets is team teaching. A recent project has been a school legislature in which each class elects a senator and representative who draw up bills, amend them and enact them into "law" — subject to his conscience.

Weston,, like most educators, feels his is one of the most important jobs in the world. And he thinks that working with grade-schoolers is the most important in the school system.

Parents Push For Changes

Parents who were polled on suggestions for changes in school systems listed the following innovations:

Schools as community centers: 96 per cent

Classes to teach students how to think: 89 per cent

Team teaching: 88 per cent

Moveable classroom partitions: 84 per cent

Guide books for parents at each grade level: 77 per cent

Programmed instruction: 72 per cent

Placement based upon achievement: 70 per cent

Special vocational training: 65 per cent

More independent study time: 59 per cent

Reduced summer vacation: 45 per cent

Salaries Rise

Teachers' salaries, particularly in the large cities, are accelerating, the Department of Labor reports, as a result of new teacher militancy and stronger bargaining position.

Mardi Gras and Shrove Tuesday are the same holiday, the last Tuesday before Lent.

Individualize School, Says Child Expert

Excessive scholastic demands placed on children today are actually creating a false sense of educational values, in the opinion of the executive director of the Child Study Association of America.

Says A. D. Buchmueller, "From every angle there are horrible pressures on the kids. They get it from the administrator, the class teacher, the guidance counselor, and from parents.

"Students are forced to do whatever is necessary to get a grade of 600 or over in College Boards tests. Education is thought of in grade point averages, not in terms of real learning."

Commenting that today's harrassed student is crammed with assignments of which he may not see the value, Buchmueller urges that time be set aside for deciding what is really meaningful.

"There's danger that in this school pressure cooker, there is little time for true learning, for thinking and creating and weighing matters like art, history and social studies."

Emphasizing that he does not object to competition which stimulates a child, he nevertheless asserts that pressures should be examined in terms of "the kind of person we want this child to be."

As to the Headstart program, Buchmueller feels its value is that it is "unpressurized." The whole program could be ruined if the attitude were "We've got to teach Joe to read."

Says the director, "Those who work in the program don't look down at this culturally - deprived child. They know the limitations of his background, and they patiently work with him and his family to stimulate interest in learning.

They find ways to build on his experiences, and individualize his education, using any challenge, any experiement that works."

Buchmueller feels that a similar individualized approach to school would do a great deal to take the pressure off students.

Florida Students Ready Plans For Jobs In Africa

STUDENTS at the University of Florida are briefed on African culture in the university's flourishing African Studies Program.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A career - oriented curriculum at the University of Florida here is attracting hundreds of students to the two-year-old African Studies Program.

Under the direction of Dr. Irving R. Wershow, students take a major in one of the social sciences, and carry a second major in African studies, preparatory to careers in one of these fields:

Business: Graduates versed in African geography, languages, culture and institutions can make valuable contributions in representing United States' business interests in Africa.

Government Service: Specialists in African affairs can play a vital role in interpreting the continent's needs in American government service.

Teaching: As other American institutions open similar programs, faculty members will be needed to teach African affairs.

One of only 11 university programs concentrating in this area, the institute requires its 300 students to complete two years of college Portugese or French, and a year of African linguistics, which includes instruction in Swahili, the principal language of Nigeria and of numerous tribes in Africa.

Swahili is the only native literary language of Africa, and Portugese and French are the accepted European literary languages.

University authorities comment that the establishment of the African Studies Program is one step in the direction of a complete international studies program which will be housed in a million-dollar building to be known as the International Relations and Graduate School Building.

Salaries Rise

Teachers' salaries, particularly in the large cities, are accelerating, the Department of Labor reports, as a result of new teacher militancy and stronger bargaining position.

Individualize School, Says Child Expert

Excessive scholastic demands placed on children today are actually creating a false sense of educational values, in the opinion of the executive director of the Child Study Association of America.

Says A. D. Buchmueller, "From every angle there are horrible pressures on the kids. They get it from the administrator, the class teacher, the guidance counselor, and from parents.

"Students are forced to do whatever is necessary to get a grade of 600 or over in College Boards tests. Education is thought of in grade point averages, not in terms of real learning."

Commenting that today's harrassed student is crammed with assignments of which he may not see the value, Buchmueller urges that time be set aside for deciding what is really meaningful.

"There's danger that in this school pressure cooker, there is little time for true learning, for thinking and creating and weighing matters like art, history and social studies."

Emphasizing that he does not object to competition which stimulates a child, he nevertheless asserts that pressures should be examined in terms of "the kind of person we want this child to be."

As to the Headstart program, Buchmueller feels its value is that it is "unpressurized." The whole program could be ruined if the attitude were "We've got to teach Joe to read."

Says the director, "Those who work in the program don't look down at this culturally - deprived child. They know the limitations of his background, and they patiently work with him and his family to stimulate interest in learning.

They find ways to build on his experiences, and individualize his education, using any challenge, any experiement that works."

Buchmueller feels that a similar individualized approach to school would do a great deal to take the pressure off students.

My Neighbors

"Ok, ok,—I'll tell the doctor you feel you're an emergency —but if you're bluffing just to get in first, watch out!"

About 95 per cent of the school boards in the United States are elected by the people, the remaining five per cent being appointed by a city or state official.

Florida Students Ready Plans For Jobs In Africa

STUDENTS at the University of Florida are briefed on African culture in the university's flourishing African Studies Program.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A career - oriented curriculum at the University of Florida here is attracting hundreds of students to the two-year-old African Studies Program.

Under the direction of Dr. Irving R. Wershow, students take a major in one of the social sciences, and carry a second major in African studies, preparatory to careers in one of these fields:

Business: Graduates versed in African geography, languages, culture and institutions can make valuable contributions in representing United States' business interests in Africa.

Government Service: Specialists in African affairs can play a vital role in interpreting the continent's needs in American government service.

Teaching: As other American institutions open similar programs, faculty members will be needed to teach African affairs.

One of only 11 university programs concentrating in this area, the institute requires its 300 students to complete two years of college Portugese or French, and a year of African linguistics, which includes instruction in Swahili, the principal language of Nigeria and of numerous tribes in Africa.

Swahili is the only native literary language of Africa, and Portugese and French are the accepted European literary languages.

University authorities comment that the establishment of the African Studies Program is one step in the direction of a complete international studies program which will be housed in a million-dollar building to be known as the International Relations and Graduate School Building.

Research On Mental Process

Learning Power Studied

Psychologists in universities across the country are engaged in research on the learning process.

As their findings are made known, there's a strong possibility that traditional academic thinking may be overturned.

At the elementary level, they are studying a child's span of concentration. Can he work successfully for longer than the usual 40- or 50-minute period? Must he sit still at the same desk in the same classroom with the same teacher for most of the day? How resourceful can he be in moving about the school to find his own materials for independent study?

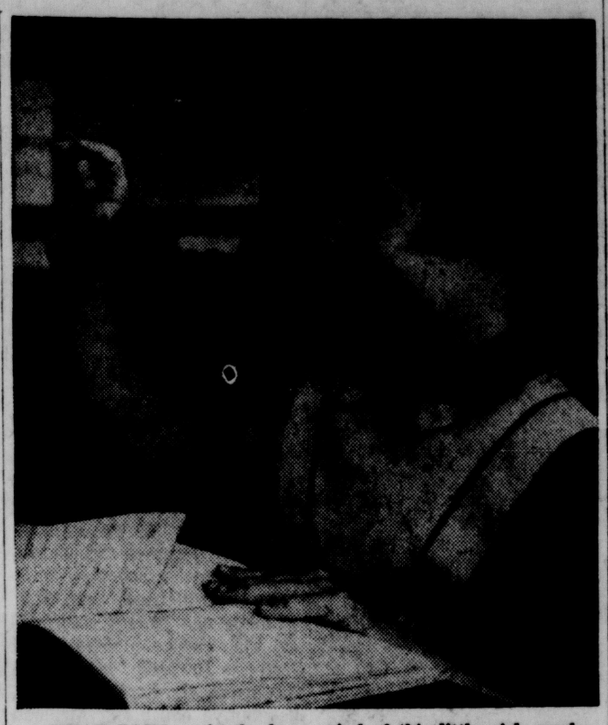
THE IMPORTANCE of the senses in learning is being studied too. Obviously not all children learn pictorially or verbally. Some combine both abilities. Some rely heavily on the kinaesthetic, and learn vocabulary words faster if they write them down. How can a teacher work with all these types of abilities, or even identify them?

The importance of stimuli is another part of the learning process. These can range from a study of the geraniums growing in the classroom window box to the appearance of a guest speaker invited to the class to talk about Russian education.

Those working with children from deprived areas often overlook the fact that many of these children can think and reason well, even though their verbal skills are deficeint. In such cases, classroom discussion is very much needed, so students can be credited with their knowledge of a given subject, even if they can not express that knowledge in writing.



WHAT GOES on in the busy mind of this little girl, ready with the answer? Psychologists all over the country are trying to find out: to research the learning process so teaching methods can be updated.

Lack of it produces the underachiever, who may nevertheless be bright. The student from a deprived area who is determined to move out of his environment and the upper class youngster determined to become a doctor have strong reasons for academic success.

Others have different reasons for working hard: the desire for high marks, competitiveness with their classmates, the need for good grades so they can obtain scholarship money, the desire to be class leaders.

Less motivated students often see no correlation between what they study and the job they will get. How does Shakespeare relate to pumping gas or being a carpenter? Seeing none, and getting little guidance in school, these pupils debunk books, and scorn homework.

When the researchers find the answers to some of these questions, teaching methods, selection of textbooks, curriculum plans, and counselling techniques are due for a change.

Lisbon Schools Get Set To Open Term On Sept. 6

LISBON — Enrollment in Lisbon schools may exceed 1,600 this year, compared with 1,543 at the end of the 1966-67 school year.

Teachers will report Sept. 5 and students Sept. 6 for a full day of classes.

Supt. Joe W. Driscoll said he is still seeking a chemistry-physics teacher and has been unable to hire a speech-hearing therapist.

New teachers follow by schools and subjects:

Lincoln — 3rd grade, Mrs. Hazel Weaver of Salem; special education, Mrs. Judy Powell of Lisbon; 7th-grade math, Ernest Thompson of Darlington, Pa.; 7th-grade English, Everett Lambert of Lisbon, and 7th-grade science, Miss Ellen Daniels of Columbiana.

McKinley — 1st grade, Mrs. Charlotte Gottberg of Poland; 2nd grade, Mrs. Sandra Rowan of Leetonia and Mrs. Irma Guinther of New Middleton.

Harry Riser of Poland, former science teacher at David Anderson High School here, will be the new principal at McKinley, succeeding Miss Della Wetzel, who retired.

High School — Commercial, Mrs. Linda Hoedt of Salem, formerly of Worthington, who was graduated this year from Ohio State University; science, Mrs. Shirley Beilhart of Leetonia; social studies, Joseph Feth of Salineville, who will graduate this month from OSU; mathematics, Robert Blake of Chester, W. Va.; English, Miss Bonnie Swogger of Lisbon, who taught 7th-grade English at Lincoln last year, and physical education and assistant football coach, Joseph Carlucci of Struthers.

Lisbon will have four sections of kindergarten — morning and afternoon classes at both elementary schools.

George M. Nace Jr., DAHS principal, expects an enrollment of 470 (grades 9-12) compared with 416 last year. The elementary schools had 1,021 pupils in grades 1-8 last year. There were 106 in kindergarten.

Cafeterias at McKinley and Lincoln will serve meals the first day. There is no change in the 30-cent meal charge. The high school does not have a cafeteria.

Driscoll said bus routes and drivers will be the same as last year. The only change in the cafeteria staffs is Mrs. Viola Prasco as a checker at McKinley.

25 New Teachers Await Duties At United School

United School's 62 teachers—25 of them new—will report Sept. 5.

Classes will begin Wednesday for approximately 1,540 pupils, an increase of 135 over last year, according to Supt. Chester M. Brautigam.

United has had only summer kindergarten before, but beginning Sept. 6 will have approximately 90 youngsters in four sections — two morning and two afternoon.

The high school enrollment should be 420, compared with 403 last year, Brautigam said.

Kindergarten — Miss Bonnie Cox, Kensington; Miss Geraldine Van Hovel, Canfield. Miss Cox is a United graduate and the daughter of Mrs. Esther Cox, who teaches third grade.

Grade 1 — Mrs. Ethel Speirs, Summitville.

Grade 2 — Mrs. Audrey Hall, Winona; Mrs. Twila Green, Salem RD 3, who has been the superintendent's secretary nearly 12 years; Mrs. Beverly Miller, Youngstown.

Grade 3 — Mrs. Bernice Kornbau, Salem.

Junior High (grades 7-8) — Miss Shalimar Harris and George Buckshaw, both of Salem; Mrs. Marion Sweedler, Hanoverton RD 1, returning to the faculty after a one - year leave of absence.

High School — Mrs. Lillian Budensiek, Salem RD 1, English; Miss Geraldine Borton, Canton, English; Mrs. Shirley Whitacre, Salem RD 3, commercial subjects; Mrs. JoAnn Ketterer, Summitville, vocational home economics; Glenn Willis, East Rochester, industrial arts; Mrs. Beverly Froman, Alliance, Spanish and German; John Howell, East Liverpool, instrumental music, and Miss Marian Izak, Ambridge, vocal music, subject to release by Wellsville, where she has taught five years.

The speech - hearing position —a part-time job — has not been filled.

United may have seven teacher aides to relieve faculty members of non-instructional chores —hall, cafeteria, bus and playground duty, for example.

Brautigam said the Board of Education authorized applying for Title I funds to hire five aides, and hopes to get two more from the County Community Action Committee.

United will use 15 buses, compared with the 17 used last year, and there will be eight double runs on the revamped routes, Brautigam said.

"We are asking all students to be ready for the bus at 7:45 a.m. the first day," he said. A timetable for bus runs will be worked out after the opening.

The cafeteria will be in operation the first day. Meals are 30 cents for students and 35 cents for adults.

Mrs. Pat Seevers of East Rochester RD 1, former school secretary and former Board of Education clerk, will succeed Mrs. Green in the superintendent's office.

Stanley Phillips of Louisville is the new full-time clerk of the Board of Education.He is a retired career serviceman who did personnel and accounting work in the Air Force.

Graduates Do Casework

OBSERVING the medical check-up of a baby on foster home care is this young college graduate. Officals of the Spence-Chapin Adoption Service in New York City feel the non-social worker can be a useful part of adoption placement team.

Because of the shortage of professional social workers, a New York adoption agency has turned to ordinary college graduates for casework assistance.

At the Spence - Chapin Adoption Agency, housed in an East Side mansion, these graduates work four days a week in the baby clinic, and make home visits to prospective adoptive parents and also to hundreds of foster home parents.

The results have been practical and heartwarming. The 20 selected students find that their youth, their enthusiasm, and their concern for their clients make interviews and home visits relaxed. A supervisor is always available to help.

At the first interview, the prospective parents meet with professionals only. Usually the decision to find babies for these parents is made then.

Then the students are asked to visit their parents at home and report findings.

The program also includes professional study, and most of the students go on to obtain masters degrees so they can do social work professionally.

2 Teachers From Islands To Serve In Area System

Two Filipinos from Manila are among eight new teachers hired for 1967-68 in Fairfield-Waterford district schools.

Anicia Mojica will teach business education at Crestview High School and Pilar Gapas will be high school librarian.

Supt. Calvin Graber said the young women were educated in the Philippine Islands and were obtained through a teachers' placement bureau.

Classes will begin Sept. 6, but the teachers will meet Sept. 5 with building principals.

Other new teachers on the high school staff will be Linda McBane of Columbiana, girls' physical education, and John Adams of McConnelsville, Ohio, industrial arts.

The Fairfield - Waterford District still has two vacancies—chemistry-physics and a speech and hearing therapist.

New teachers at the other buildings follow:

New Waterford (grades 1-6)—Mrs. Joan Dever of East Palestine, 4th grade, and Thomas Greenwood of East Liverpool, 6th grade.

Fairfield (grades 1-8)—William Martin of East Liverpool, 8th grade, and Mrs. Rae Coulter of Columbiana, kindergarten one - half day.

Graber anticipates an enrollment of about 1,118 pupils, compared with 1,082 last year. Crestview expects 300, 16 more than last year. Fairfield, at 444, will be the same, and New Waterford, 354 last year, expects 374. The Fairfield and New Waterford figures include kindergartens.

Cafeterias will be in operation the first day, serving meals at 35 cents.

Graber said all the bus routes are being changed since the number of buses is being cut from 11 to 9. The drivers will make two runs in the morning and two in the afternoon. The new routes will be printed in the "informogram" — a school news sheet published by the district — and mailed to each home.

Computer Confounds Reporter

AP Writer

The educational machine is not for me. It has shattered my complacency.

Having always regarded myself as a gee-whiz kid in grammar school, I was appalled to discover a la computer that now I can't pass a fourth-grade history test.

The first question,, typed by the computer at furious pace, asked me to name the British commander who captured Forts Ticonderoga and Edward.

Not a single British general came to mind.

"Put down anything," said the PhD. who stood at my shoulder.

So I wrote "Trafalgar," remembering the monument in London, but nothing else.

The machine refused to comment, but tried again with a hint. "General . . . . headed the British invasion from Montreal, and later surrendered to Horatio Gates at Saratoga in 1777. Try again."

Ah, Canada! Triumphantly I typed "Wolfe."

"No," replied the machine. "Wolfe is remembered for the Battle of Quebec in the French and Indian War. Try again."

Blnakness again. I was told to push the "hint" button. Obligingly, the machine tried to jog my memory. "General was nicknamed 'Gentleman Johnny." Try again."

Mind Versus Machine

This helpful comment served only to confuse me more. I had never memorized generals' nicknames. Hint, please. Or would the machine refuse completely?

"Generan J B . Try again."

This was almost like telling me. Excitedly I wrote. John Burgoin, making typographical errors on the delicate keyboard.

You could almost hear a sigh of relief emanating from the console. "John Burgoyne is correct. Note the spelling."

Moving hastily out of the historical field, I chose to jump to vocabulary recognition on an adult basis. The machine's prelude was encouraging.

Successfully identifying the "topmost point: summit" as peak, I was asked to change peak to a word meaning Tectona gandis. I could substitute a letter, or change the letters around.

I pushed the help button again, and the machine identified this word as "an East Indian tree of the verbena family."

Horray! "Teak."

Beastly Definitions

"Now change "teak" to a word meaning one or more draft animals often with harness and vehicle (if any.)"

This pussy - fotting around baffled me, and I requested another definition. "Two or more horses or other beasts harnessed to the same vehicle." Beasts indeed.

The right word was "team," and from there on we marched along through "Tam," the hero of a poem by Burns, to "cam," where the oppressed machine actually had to tell me to change the first letter of "tam," to make "cam," since I had never grown familiar with "the valve gear of a gas engine."

We parted company, the machine and I, when it had to tell me that "balk" was the correct word for "illegal motions of a baseball pitcher."

I suppose I had a liberal education, but not enough of it. My pastime now is to stay up late reading the dictionary, pouring through obscure meanings of unknown words.

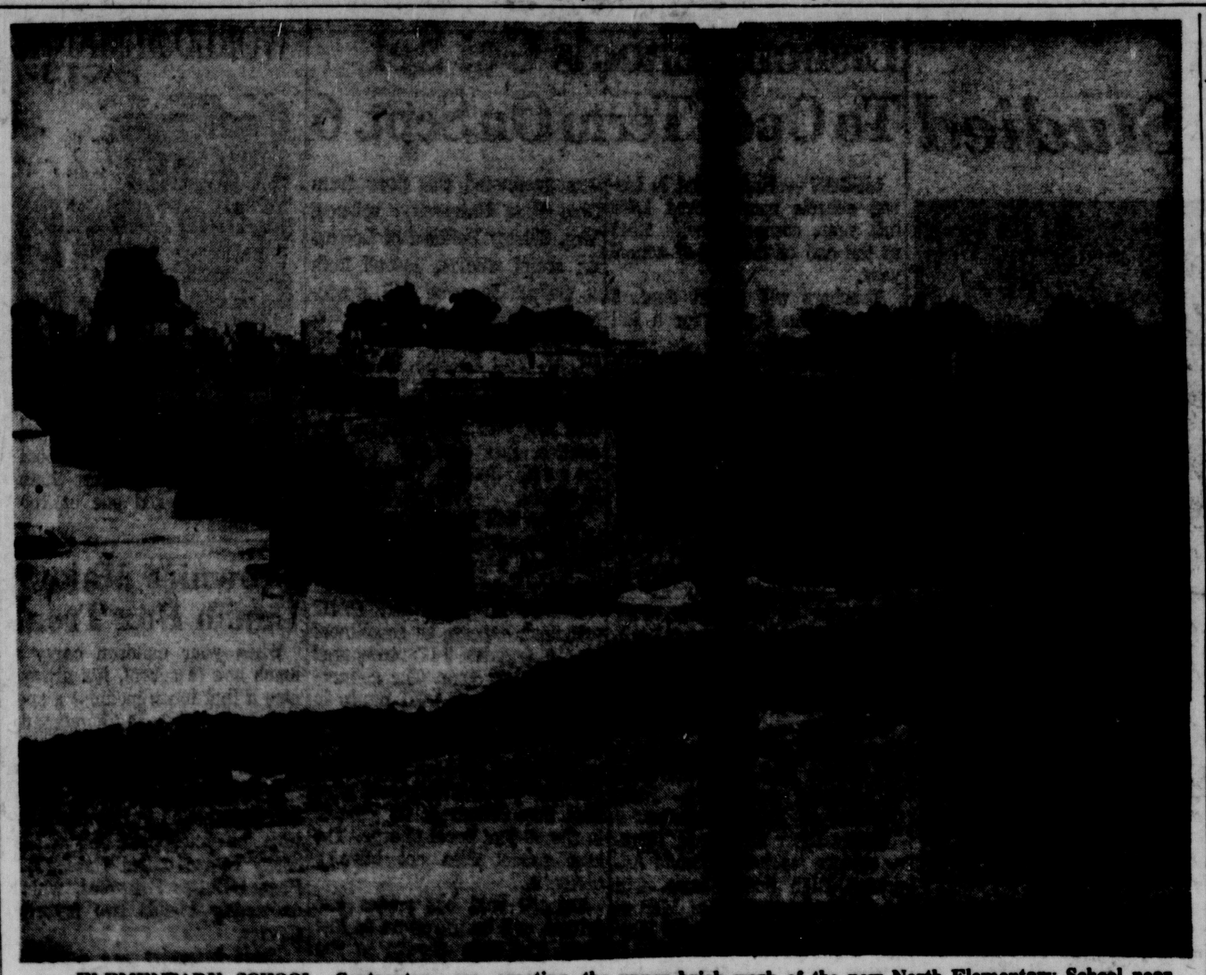
Students Spend Less 'Goof-Off' Time In Tutorial

Students at Earlham College in Richmond, Ind. who are enrolled in an independent tutorial study program spent more time dating than did a group of freshmen in regular classes.

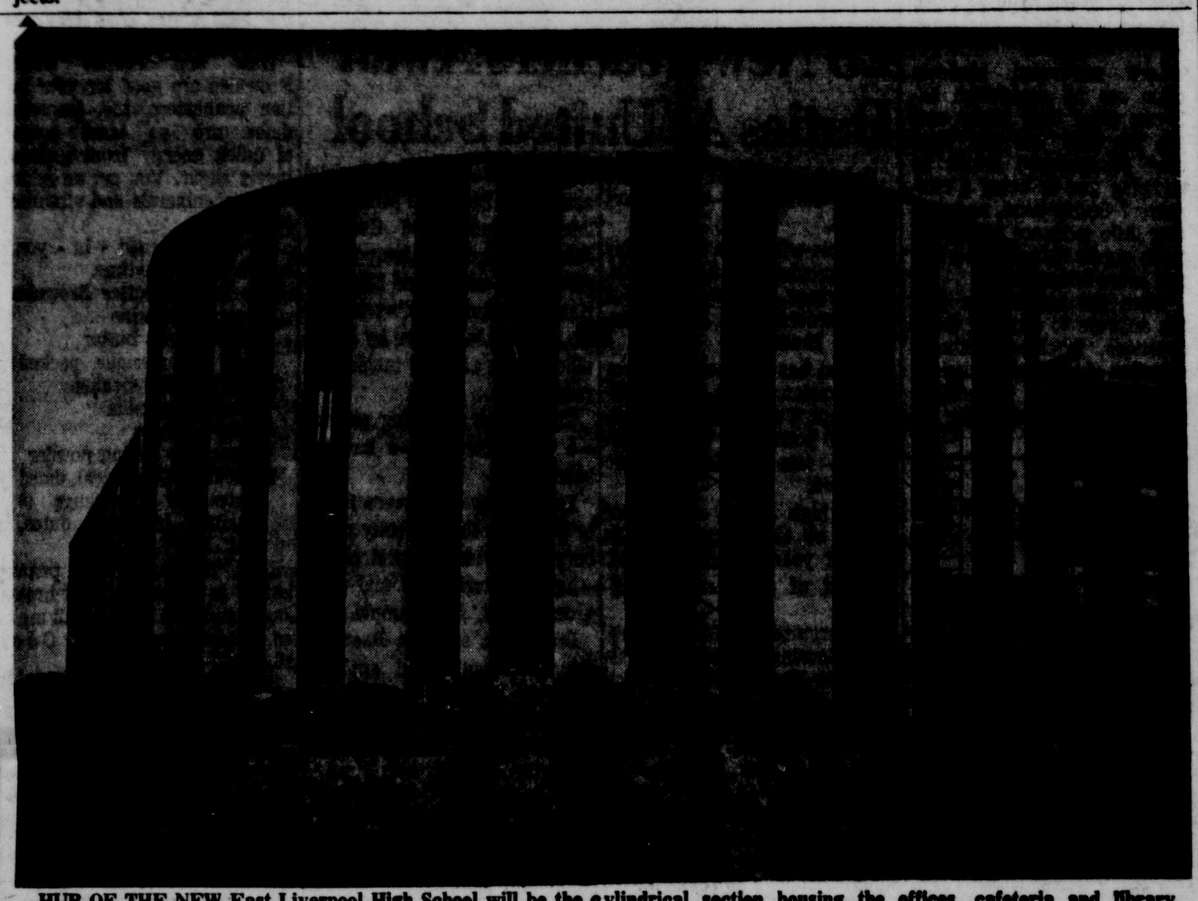
The 66 freshmen in the program averaged 24.8 hours of reading in a given week, as against 17.6 hours for the regular freshmen students.

They dated three hours a week, as against four and a half hours; listened to more than 20 hours of music as against two hours for the regular freshmen,, and even slept more: 57.3 hours for the week, as against 55.6 hours for the regular freshmen.

They spent a little over eight hours' socializing, while the regular freshmen spent 12 and a half hours, "goofed off" for less than two hours, while the regulars admitted to three hours goofing, but in the midst of this activity, could find only seventenths of an hour for contemplation, while the regular freshmen spent nearly two hours a week thinking time.



ELEMENTARY SCHOOL. Contractors are erecting the upper brick work of the new North Elementary School near the new high school along Maine Blvd. The Potters Construction Co. is the general contractor for the two North Side projects.



HUB OF THE NEW East Liverpool High School will be the cylindrical section housing the offices, cafeteria and library. Robert Beatty of East Liverpool, architect, designed the four buildings in the new project.

Midland Schools Set For Opening

Midland Public Schools will begin classes Sept. 5 with a slight decrease in enrollment in the senior high school. There will be 258 students reporting this year compared to last year's 283. However, there is an increase of seven in the junior high school with a total of 230 enrolled. Beginning enrollment at the high school in both levels is 488.

Enrollment figures for kindergarten through grades six are not complete, school officials said.

It is hoped that some existing vacancies on the teaching staff will be filled at tonight's school board meeting. Faculty members will participate in an In-service Day on the County level Aug. 31 and at Midland Sept. 1.

School rooms have been thoroughly cleaned and floors and halls cleaned and waxed. Necessary repairs have been made and the vestibule at the new gym has been painted.

West Beaver Awaits Term

Increased enrollment is expected at Western Beaver County District which has four schools — the high school, Logan School, Fairview School and Ray W. Snyder School.

Classes will begin Sept. 5.

Among new faculty members are Carlisle McPherson of Brighton Township, new assistant principal; Ronald Golletti, distributive education; Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bruno, high school mathematics; Mrs. Patricia Parise, high school English.

Millions of South Americans are extremely poor. More than half the continent's 125 million people work on the farms and plantations of wealthy landowners. Almost half the continent is still an unsettled wilderness, covered by the world's largest forest area. Most of this region lies in Brazil. No roads or railroads cross the huge tropical forest, and only a few Indian tribes live there.

Traditionalists Lose

English Education Nears American Style Schools

LONDON (AP) — The reformers have defeated the traditionalists in the campaign to replace Britain's "old school tie" grammar schools, and something like the American high school system is emerging.

The victory for the labor party government means an end to this nation's traditional system of secondary state education — separation of the bright and the backward into different schools.

Education Minister Anthony Crosland is pushing hard a nation-wide program of expansion of all-purpose secondary schools called comprehensives, which eliminate the old division of pupils at age of eleven.

The comprehensive school caters to all ranges of intelligence and ability in the age group 11 to 18, and reflects the social equality and equal opportunity for education that the ruling socialists want to bring about in Britain.

At the last count, however, only three out of the 162 local education authorities throughout Britain had given an outright rejection of the comprehensive scheme.

FOR THE FIRST three years after entering comprehensive school, pupils of all grades take the same course. After three years, teachers have an accurate enough idea of their potential to start selecting, or "streaming," them into classes based on ability.

Under the old system, children took an examination at the age of eleven called the "11-plus," which selected the above average pupils for grammar schools and literally ditched the rest.

Many of these schools are understaffed with huge classes of 40 children or more.

The government is currently studying a report by the independent Central Advisory Council for Education (CACE) proposing a new deal for primary schools.

The CACE proposals — known as the Plowden Report after its chairman, Lady Plowden—calls for the extension of nursery education for under-fives, closer relations between schools and parents, an increased number of modern schools, and the abolition of corporal punishment.

Wellsville Has New Look, With Varied Changes Set

With a new superintendent, virtually all extra-curricular activities gone and an entirely different academic day, 1,956 Wellsville students will be returning to a completely new academic atmosphere Sept. 7.

Up from last year's enrollment of 1,923, the largest student body ever is expected, outgoing Supt. Lowell B. Myers, said. Myers has taken a similar position with Streetsboro schools and has been replaced by Donald A. Lowe, Daw Junior High School principal.

A replacement for Lowe, who also has served as assistant high school principal, is expected to be named at the Board of Education's regular meeting tonight.

WITH THE defeat in May of a 5-mill operating levy, cutbacks which had been made earlier to provide for increased teacher salaries, will remain in effect.

No sports, major or minor, are in the offing this fall. Nor will there be any clubs, organizations, publications or drama and music productions. These activities will be reinstated if an anticipated levy in November passes.

The dark cloud had a silver lining, though, as the funds used to attract and keep teachers apparently have done the job. Sixteen staff additions have been made to the faculty of Wellsville schools.

These include — Charles Wilfing — who served last year as federal program coordinator and will also teach elementary school this year, and Michael Shutyak, hired to teach as guidance counselor, the first time in two years Wellsville has had such a counselor.

John Sawyer, Geneva College, elementary; Patricia Pizel, Southern Illinois University, junior high mathematics; Juanito Penalosa, Manuel L. Quezon University, Manila, Philippines, chemistry and physics: Miss Alberta McClinton, Philander Smith College, Little Rock Ark., commercial; Judith Moore, Muskingum College, speech; Madrona Mara, Daupan College, Manila, elementary.

Mary Lang, Bethany College, American problems; Stephen Laber, University of New Mexico, social studies; Curtis Glenn, Mt. Union College, high school math; Clarita Glaser, Manila Normal College, elementary; Mary Ann Frischkorn, Mt. Union College, kindergarten; Robert Dawson, Bowling Green, physical education; Allan Barles, Indiana (Pa.) University, junior high school science, and Hugh Barbour, Geneva College, junior high school English.

Myers said the new salary schedule, beginning at $5,250 per year, was responsible for the wide variety. "It appears to be the best new staff coming in during the five years I've been here," he said.

The school day in Wellsville High School has gone from six to eight periods with all high school instructors receiving a planning period for the first time.

In junior high, speech is being required for the first time. Elementary schedules and curricula remain the same.

NEW COURSES being offered in the high school will include speech, auto mechanics, electricity, world geography, personalized typing for college preparatory students, arts and crafts and third - year Spanish. The auto mechanics course will operate with equipment from Wellsville's Title I summer program.

Fees will be charged for materials this year as a result of the cutbacks. They will be in kindergarten,$1.20; first grade, $3.12; second, $3.13; third, $2.13; fourth, $1.56; fifth, $1.56; and sixth, $1.71. Art courses in the high school will cost the student $1.50 per semester and home economics $2 each semester. Typing students will be charged 50 cents per semester and chemistry students 50 cents each year.

A high school arts and crafts room will be made from what is now a storage room and the biology laboratory will be moved from the high school to Daw Junior High.

A full-time "Head Start" program will be conducted at McKinley School.

Cafeteria prices have been raised five cents and are now 35 cents for students and 40 cents for adults. The increase was attributed to less government food surplus and higher cafeteria salaries.

A general teachers' meeting will be held the morning of Sept. 6, with personnel meeting the building principals that afternoon.

Full Sessions Set On Sept. 6 For Palestine

Pupils at East Palestine's public schools and Our Lady of Lourdes parochial school will hold a full day's session the start of the term Sept. 6.

A teachers' luncheon meeting will be held Sept. 5 at the high school cafeteria. Supplies will be distributed.

At the public schools, enrollment is expected to be 2,290, a decline from the 2,325 of a year ago.

Walter Bouve, new high school principal from West Mifflin, Pa., will be starting his duties, as will Robert Swearingen of Unity, who will be in charge of all six cafeterias. Richard Heer, who had been cafeteria aide, will continue his duties as Unity principal.

Gifted Pupils Obtain More School Help

Despite the emphasis on programs for the culturally - deprived child, increasing attention is also being given the gifted.

Paul D. Plowman, consultant in the education of the mentally gifted in California, tells of California Project Talent.

Financed by a grant of one-quarter million dollars from the Cooperative Research Bureau of the U.S. Office of Education, the project has several features:

A special class provided children with problem - solving experiences in science, social science, and math, as well as experiences which showed them how people learn.

An acceleration program featured special assessment and instruction in the first grade and an enriched summer program prepared second - grade pupils for placement in the fourth grade the following fall.

Students in grades seven to nine met in group counselling sessions and were aided in examining current problems to help them develop communications skills, and understand who they are.

An elementary program emphasized scientific investigation, critical appreciation and creative expresson.

The Same Mold

Medical schools which raise entrance requirements and place greater emphasis on grade - point averages and testing scores may mean that all those students come from a common mold, says Dr. George A. Perera, associate dean of Columbia University's College of physicians and Surgeons.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—How can I clean leather upholstery?

A.—Use saddle soap, which is obtainable in shoe repair shops. Or you can use thick suds made with pure white soap flakes. Squeeze your cleaning cloth or sponge as dry as you can in order not to get the leather too wet. Rinse off the soap solution with a clean, damp cloth. Let the leather dry, then polish it with a soft, dry cloth.

Q.—How can I re-stiffen a very limp and hard-to-use tape measure?

Legislators Wonder About Schools

By WILLIAM V. MERRIMAN
Review Staff Correspondent

"Double her salary and you still have the same teacher," granted the Ohio Education Association's executive secretary, Stayner F. Brighton.

Not many among those about to legislate another $308 million for Ohio schools seem to be talking about the Mary Joneses.

But some minds apparently haven't dismissed her.

ONE LAWMAKER, State Rep. Charles E. Fry, a Republican from Springfield, got to wondering aloud about her — and education in general — during Brighton's testimony before the House Education Committee.

Fry wanted to know Brighton's opinion of the Coleman Report. He'd been reading about it in a magazine article.

The product of a social science research project sponsored by the U.S. government, the report is a 737-page volume entitled "Equality of Educational Opportunity."

According to the article, the report's theme "contradicts some of our most cherished assumptions about what is required to improve the public schools."

INCLUDED among the article's criticisms was the suggestion that the "National Education Association clings to its traditional and simplistic view that larger school budgets will solve most of the nation's educational problems."

Obvious to all was the question Fry was implying: Is the $308 million really going to improve the finished product of Ohio's elementary and secondary schools.

Brighton didn't offer an immediate answer, but at Fry's request said he'd contemplate the relationship between the Coleman Report and the education-tax package.

WHAT WAS Charlie Fry, a veteran noted for pulling few punches, looking for in his line of questioning?

"Well, I just think we haven't taken a close enough look at our schools and whether they're doing the job," was his candid reply outside the committee room.

"These school surveys," he contended, "are made primarily by school people too close to the situation to re-examine it objectively."

In other words, he added, he wants more evidence that Ohio is spending its dollars wisely on education.

The Coleman Report, as he undoubtedly was aware when he posed his question to Stahner Brighton, would suggest otherwise.

IT CONCLUDED that the social environment the school provides, not its modern buildings and facilities and well-paid teachers, is central to a child's learning experience.

What matters, the report found, is the social, economic and educational backgrounds of the students and teachers.

After all, noted James S. Coleman, a Johns Hopkins University professor and chairman of the project, it is not how "equal" his school is, or was, that matters to the young adult.

It makes clear, according to the article Fry was reading, that the gap between Negro and white students' achievements, for instance, is actually wider at the end of school than at the beginning.

One man who said he is well aware of this failure is Paul Briggs, superintendent of Cleveland City Schools.

"But I see encouraging signs," he said.

EXAMPLE: Two years ago only two Cleveland high schools offered vocational education. Today all 16 high schools do, he pointed out.

A measure of results of this expansion, he suggested, is that 91 per cent of the male graduates of Cleveland public schools last June — the ones who haven't gone into the armed forces or continued their educations — are employed.

Inpast years, he said, the figure was as low as 12 per cent.

"If you train them, industry will hire them," he asserted.

Briggs was before the Education Committee the other day arguing that Cleveland and other urban areas need state aid for their vocational programs at least as much as rural school districts.

The foundation bill calls for $12,000 in state help for each vocational unit in smaller districts, but only $6,000 per unit in large city districts.

ONE DIFFICULTY, he conceded, is that the teaching profession is unable to weed out its "oddballs" without a public hoopla.

Many trace this weakness to the state's teacher tenure law, which provides that "the contract of a teacher may not be terminated (after tenure is granted after 3 years) except for gross inefficiency or immorality; for willful and persistent violations of reasonable regulations of the board of education; or for other good and just cause."

Just how secure the teacher's job is, is reflected in State Board of Education statistics showing that it has revoked certificates of only seven of the state's 95,000 teachers in the past three years.

As defined by Brighton, the hope is that the increases for teachers' salaries in the foundation bill — a guarantee to local districts of at least $600 more a year from the state per teacher unit — eventually will attract more competent teachers.

Goodbye Majorettes

MELBOURNE, Fla. — The Melbourne High School band has eliminated majorettes.

Band director Don Albert said baton twirling is not educational and that the majorettes have been bickering about who gets top billing.

From now on, he said, spectators "will watch the band instead of the majorettes. I don't think they will miss them."

To help ease the teacher shortage, a computer - based teacher referral service, the first of its kind, is being set up by the National Education Association to match applicants with vacancies.

Wellsville Has New Look, With Varied Changes Set

With a new superintendent, virtually all extra-curricular activities gone and an entirely different academic day, 1,956 Wellsville students will be returning to a completely new academic atmosphere Sept. 7.

Up from last year's enrollment of 1,923, the largest student body ever is expected, outgoing Supt. Lowell B. Myers, said. Myers has taken a similar position with Streetsboro schools and has been replaced by Donald A. Lowe, Daw Junior High School principal.

A replacement for Lowe, who also has served as assistant high school principal, is expected to be named at the Board of Education's regular meeting tonight.

WITH THE defeat in May of a 5-mill operating levy, cutbacks which had been made earlier to provide for increased teacher salaries, will remain in effect.

No sports, major or minor, are in the offing this fall. Nor will there be any clubs, organizations, publications or drama and music productions. These activities will be reinstated if an anticipated levy in November passes.

The dark cloud had a silver lining, though, as the funds used to attract and keep teachers apparently have done the job. Sixteen staff additions have been made to the faculty of Wellsville schools.

These include — Charles Wilfing — who served last year as federal program coordinator and will also teach elementary school this year, and Michael Shutyak, hired to teach as guidance counselor, the first time in two years Wellsville has had such a counselor.

John Sawyer, Geneva College, elementary; Patricia Pizel, Southern Illinois University, junior high mathematics; Juanito Penalosa, Manuel L. Quezon University, Manila, Philippines, chemistry and physics; Miss Alberta McClinton, Philander Smith College, Little Rock Ark., commercial; Judith Moore, Muskingum College, speech; Madrona Mara, Daupan College, Manila, elementary.

Mary Lang, Bethany College, American problems; Stephen Laber, University of New Mexico, social studies; Curtis Glenn, Mt. Union College, high school math; Clarita Glaser, Manila Normal College, elementary; Mary Ann Frischkorn, Mt. Union College, kindergarten; Robert Dawson, Bowling Green, physical education; Allan Barles, Indiana (Pa.) University, junior high school science, and Hugh Barbour, Geneva College, junior high school English.

Myers said the new salary schedule, beginning at $5,250 per year, was responsible for the wide variety. "It appears to be the best new staff coming in during the five years I've been here," he said.

The school day in Wellsville High School has gone from six to eight periods with all high school instructors receiving a planning period for the first time.

In junior high, speech is being required for the first time. Elementary schedules and curricula remain the same.

NEW COURSES being offered in the high school will include speech, auto mechanics, electricity, world geography, personalized typing for college preparatory students, arts and crafts and third - year Spanish. The auto mechanics course will operate with equipment from Wellsville's Title I summer program.

Fees will be charged for materials this year as a result of the cutbacks. They will be in kindergarten,$1.20; first grade, $3.12; second, $3.13; third, $2.13; fourth, $1.56; fifth, $1.56; and sixth, $1.71. Art courses in the high school will cost the student $1.50 per semester and home economics $2 each semester. Typing students will be charged 50 cents per semester and chemistry students 50 cents each year.

A high school arts and crafts room will be made from what is now a storage room and the biology laboratory will be moved from the high school to Daw Junior High.

A full-time "Head Start" program will be conducted at McKinley School.

Cafeteria prices have been raised five cents and are now 35 cents for students and 40 cents for adults. The increase was attributed to less government food surplus and higher cafeteria salaries.

A general teachers' meeting will be held the morning of Sept. 6, with personnel meeting the building principals that afternoon.

Full Sessions Set On Sept. 6 For Palestine

Pupils at East Palestine's public schools and Our Lady of Lourdes parochial school will hold a full day's session the start of the term Sept. 6.

A teachers' luncheon meeting will be held Sept. 5 at the high school cafeteria. Supplies will be distributed.

At the public schools, enrollment is expected to be 2,290, a decline from the 2,325 of a year ago.

Walter Bouve, new high school principal from West Mifflin, Pa., will be starting his duties, as will Robert Swearingen of Unity, who will be in charge of all six cafeterias. Richard Heer, who had been cafeteria aide, will continue his duties as Unity principal.

Gifted Pupils Obtain More School Help

Despite the emphasis on programs for the culturally - deprived child, increasing attention is also being given the gifted.

Financed by a grant of one-quarter million dollars from the Cooperative Research Bureau of the U.S. Office of Education, the project has several features:

A special class provided children with problem - solving experiences in science, social science, and math, as well as experiences which showed them how people learn.

An acceleration program featured special assessment and instruction in the first grade and an enriched summer program prepared second - grade pupils for placement in the fourth grade the following fall.

Students in grades seven to nine met in group counselling sessions and were aided in examining current problems to help them develop communications skills, and understand who they are.

An elementary program emphasized scientific investigation, critical appreciation and creative expresson.

The Same Mold

Medical schools which raise entrance requirements and place greater emphasis on grade - point averages and testing scores may mean that all those students come from a common mold, says Dr. George A. Perera, associate dean of Columbia University's College of physicians and Surgeons.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q.—How can I clean leather upholstery?

A.—Use saddle soap, which is obtainable in shoe repair shops. Or you can use thick suds made with pure white soap flakes. Squeeze your cleaning cloth or sponge as dry as you can in order not to get the leather too wet. Rinse off the soap solution with a clean, damp cloth. Let the leather dry, then polish it with a soft, dry cloth.

Q.—How can I re-stiffen a very limp and hard-to-use tape measure?

Legislators Wonder About Schools

By WILLIAM V. MERRIMAN
Review Staff Correspondent

"Double her salary and you still have the same teacher," granted the Ohio Education Association's executive secretary, Stayner F. Brighton.

Not many among those about to legislate another $308 million for Ohio schools seem to be talking about the Mary Joneses.

But some minds apparently haven't dismissed her.

ONE LAWMAKER, State Rep. Charles E. Fry, a Republican from Springfield, got to wondering aloud about her — and education in general — during Brighton's testimony before the House Education Committee.

Fry wanted to know Brighton's opinion of the Coleman Report. He'd been reading about it in a magazine article.

The product of a social science research project sponsored by the U.S. government, the report is a 737-page volume entitled "Equality of Educational Opportunity."

According to the article, the report's theme "contradicts some of our most cherished assumptions about what is required to improve the public schools."

INCLUDED among the article's criticisms was the suggestion that the "National Education Association clings to its traditional and simplistic view that larger school budgets will solve most of the nation's educational problems."

Obvious to all was the question Fry was implying: Is the $308 million really going to improve the finished product of Ohio's elementary and secondary schools.

Fresh Look For Fall Featured

Coats Reveal New Fashion Flair

THIS STANDBY goes to school and parties too.

TRY the double-breasted look for fall.

HALF-BELT adds new fashion interest.

Basic buy for the back-to-school miss is her fall and winter coat, and since this investment is a big one, a detailed look at the coat array for school and campus wear is in order.

A coat is a fashion item, not just a garment to protect the wearer from the cold. (Pick a parka or a pea jacket for that.)

This means that it may be possible for teens to use one coat for college as well as for dress, or take along last year's coat for daily wear, and use the new one for dress.

THERE ARE a variety of silhouettes: straightline, A-line, back fullness. Lengths vary too, with many three-quarter and seven-eight lengths.

When you're trying one of these shorter coats on, try to imagine how they will look with your suits and dressier shifts, and how they correspond to the length of your skirts, lest you have too many horizontals to jar the total look.

Necklines are uniformly high, with sleeves both set-in and raglan. Closings are very interesting this season, single, double-breasted, or to one side, and accented by metal buttons in contrasting colors, or by buckles, toggles or zippers.

Patterned coats in Shetland tweeds, plaids and checks in new color combinations are high on the fashion list. But again, review your wardrobe so you won't be arrayed in too many clashing colors.

FUR OR PILE collars on diagonal monotones and gabardines are attractive for dress-up, and for school and sportswear, the fabrics are many: corduroy, velveteen, melton, chinchilla, and many piles and fleeces.

Colors are a far cry from the drab browns, blues and blacks of other seasons. The sun colors flourish: red, orange and yellow. There are bright, sharp greens as well as dark greens, all the tan tones, and also a greater incidence of white.

A STUDY IN AGILITY and exuberance is this traffic officer at a school crossing in Chattanooga, Tenn. This set of pictures shows Mrs. Bobbie Jean Myers on active duty.

9,000 Await Hancock Bell

First back to school will be the some 9,000 students in Hancock County, where classes will resume Aug. 31.

Authorities are expecting an increase over the enrollment of 1966-67, but are not certain how much, Supt. Robert Hall said.

The faculties are generally complete, although the post of assistant county superintendent remains open. Charles McKinney resigned earlier this summer to take a position in New Jersey.

Supt. Hall said bus schedules and cafeteria prices will remain the same as last year.

Registration Still Open At East Junior

New students who have moved into the East Junior High School area during the summer months and will be entering grades 7, 8 or 9 are to register at the principal's office as soon as possible if they have not yet done so, Principal Tony LaNeve reminded today.

"If you never have attended East Liverpool public schools before, you must present a birth certificate and records of the following shots: vaccination, polio (Salk or oral), whooping cough, tetanus, and diphtheria," LaNeve said.

All new students should register by Aug. 28. However, registrations will be accepted the week of Aug. 28 for those not able to register before this deadline.

This announcement does not refer to seventh graders entering from Lincoln, Garfield, Horace Mann or Neville elemenary schools, LaNeve pointed out.

East Junior High students are notified that there will not be a pre-school bus pass registration this year. This will be taken care of the first day of school on Sept. 6.

Homeroom assignments will be posted at the front entrance to the school beginning Aug. 28 and will remain posted until the first day of school.

Survey Reveals Most Teachers Like Their Jobs

Is the typical American teacher happy in her (yes, usually her) profession, or is she restless, frustrated, and resentful because of unsatisfactory pay or anything else?

A survey offered in preliminary form by the National Education Association shows her to be contented with her work, and planning definitely to continue teaching in the same system. (The survey was based on 1,816 polled women teachers.)

With an average salary of between $5,000 and $6,000, the women teachers, 85.7 per cent strong, planned to continue full-time teaching in the same system. When asked if they could go back to their college days and start all over, would they become teachers, 59.2 per cent said "certainly," and 25.5 per cent said "probably."

For 51.9 per cent, there were no community pressures of personal restrictions laid on them because they were teachers. Thirty-eight per cent said there were some restrictions, but not of a serious nature.

The teachers' average day ranged from seven hours and a quarter minutes to seven and a half hours. On a weekly basis they spend 10 to 12 hours in activities like lesson-planning, grading papers, attending meetings and participating in extra-curricular events for which they are not paid.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Tears filled my eyes when I read the letter from the 16-year-old girl who complained because her father hugged and kissed her too much. She said it was embarrassing.

That girl doesn't know how lucky she is. I'd have given anything if my father had kissed me even once a month. I really shouldn't blame him too much because he was almost 35 when he married Mom and he didn't know how to show affection to small children, although he had four of his own.

Dad died three years ago. I was 15. I cherish the memory of the few hello and goodby kisses he did give me.

I hope every father who reads this letter will ask himself when was the last time he kissed his children — yes, boys, too. They need affection as much as girls. There isn't enough love in the world today, and the place to learn how to give and receive love is at home. — RALEIGH MISS.

Dear Miss: You are unusually wise and perceptive for an 18-year-old. And you have a forgiving heart, too, which is good. I hope the fathers in my reading audience will take inventory. Was Miss Raleigh speaking to you?

Old Yeller

Dear Ann: My husband sold his business a few years ago and retired. We are not wealthy, but we have a nice income from past investments, plus Social Security.

I've always handled the money in the family. My husband doesn't know what it is to pay a bill. I also helped him in his business and paid the company bills as well.

Now that we are entering our golden years we should be relaxed, but we aren't. My husband is driving me crazy because I'm not able to save any money. He keeps asking, "Where does it all go?"

I've tried to explain that the cost of living has gone up, taxes are up, club memberships are up, and we can't drive a car free.

Will you please give him an answer? — TIRED IN TOLEDO.

Dear Tired: He doesn't want an answer. He'd rather holler. It's probably his best form of recreation since he retired.

Start next month to keep an itemized account of every dime you spend. When he starts yelling, hand him the list. That should settle his hash.

Booby-Trapped

Dear Ann: I'm a 16-year-old boy who may be killed by his mother one of these days. I know she would never forgive herself, but I'd be dead just the same.

It is my job to empty the wastebaskets and the trash. My mother always is throwing aerosol cans into the wastebaskets. When I burn the trash the cans explode. Sometimes two or three cans explode in a row, and it sounds like a sonic boom.

I have read of people getting killed by these things and I don't want it to happen to me. I've told my mother three times to please keep the aerosol cans out of the wastebaskets, but she forgets. What can I do? — SHOCKED.

Dear Shocked: You can stop depending on your mother and sort out the trash yourself, Bub.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Questions Bring More Solutions To Home Needs

AP Newsfeatures

Question: There are red cedar shingles on the roof of the house we are buying. They don't appear to have any finish on them. Is this all right? And if it isn't, what can we use for a finish?

Answer: Shingles of this type do not require any finish. However, use a shingle stain if you wish to color them. Also, the stain will give some additional weather resistance, although many believe that this extra resistance is unnecessary.

QUESTION: I put down asphalt tile on our basement floor a few months ago. Some of the black adhesive has oozed up in four or five places. It doesn't seem to wipe off. What solvent can I use for it?

Answer: None. Solvent would take out the spots but ruin the tile. Try using steel wool with a little scouring powder. Rub firmly but carefully.

QUESTION: We picked up a nice old piece of furniture recently. Not quite sure what it's called, but it's something like a dining room dish cabinet. It appears to be made of cherry wood, although we're not sure. We have heard that rubbing it with mineral oil will help to maintain its finish. Is this true and is there any special procedure for putting it on?

Answer: Yes, mineral oil can be used for that purpose. But it is inclined to leave a "tacky" surface if it is not wiped off immediately. Apply it with a clean cloth and then quickly go over it with a second clean, dry cloth. Using still a third cloth, rub down vigorously. This treatment should be repeated every six months or so.

Fresh Look For Fall Featured

Coats Reveal New Fashion Flair

THIS STANDBY goes to school and parties too.

TRY the double-breasted look for fall.

Basic buy for the back-to-school miss is her fall and winter coat, and since this investment is a big one, a detailed look at the coat array for school and campus wear is in order.

A coat is a fashion item, not just a garment to protect the wearer from the cold. (Pick a parka or a pea jacket for that.)

This means that it may be possible for teens to use one coat for college as well as for dress, or take along last year's coat for daily wear, and use the new one for dress.

THERE ARE a variety of silhouettes: straightline, A-line, back fullness. Lengths vary too, with many three-quarter and seven-eight lengths.

When you're trying one of these shorter coats on, try to imagine how they will look with your suits and dressier shifts, and how they correspond to the length of your skirts, lest you have too many horizontals to jar the total look.

Necklines are uniformly high, with sleeves both set-in and raglan. Closings are very interesting this season, single, double-breasted, or to one side, and accented by metal buttons in contrasting colors, or by buckles, toggles or zippers.

There's fresh style interest too in yokes and bands and back belts, to give these coats more dash.

Patterned coats in Shetland tweeds, plaids and checks in new color combinations are high on the fashion list. But again, review your wardrobe so you won't be arrayed in too many clashing colors.

FUR OR PILE collars on diagonal monotones and gabardines are attractive for dress-up, and for school and sportswear, the fabrics are many: corduroy, velveteen, melton, chinchilla, and many piles and fleeces.

Colors are a far cry from the drab browns, blues and blacks of other seasons. The sun colors flourish: red, orange and yellow. There are bright, sharp greens as well as dark greens, all the tan tones, and also a greater incidence of white.

HALF-BELT adds new fashion interest.

9,000 Await Hancock Bell

First back to school will be the some 9,000 students in Hancock County, where classes will resume Aug. 31.

Authorities are expecting an increase over the enrollment of 1966-67, but are not certain how much, Supt. Robert Hall said.

The faculties are generally complete, although the post of assistant county superintendent remains open. Charles McKinney resigned earlier this summer to take a position in New Jersey.

Supt. Hall said bus schedules and cafeteria prices will remain the same as last year.

Registration Still Open At East Junior

New students who have moved into the East Junior High School area during the summer months and will be entering grades 7, 8 or 9 are to register at the principal's office as soon as possible if they have not yet done so, Principal Tony LaNeve reminded today.

"If you never have attended East Liverpool public schools before, you must present a birth certificate and records of the following shots: vaccination, polio (Salk or oral), whooping cough, tetanus, and diphtheria," LaNeve said.

All new students should register by Aug. 28. However, registrations will be accepted the week of Aug. 28 for those not able to register before this deadline.

This announcement does not refer to seventh graders entering from Lincoln, Garfield, Horace Mann or Neville elemenary schools, LaNeve pointed out.

East Junior High students are notified that there will not be a pre-school bus pass registration this year. This will be taken care of the first day of school on Sept. 6.

Homeroom assignments will be posted at the front entrance to the school beginning Aug. 28 and will remain posted until the first day of school.

Survey Reveals Most Teachers Like Their Jobs

Is the typical American teacher happy in her (yes, usually her) profession, or is she restless, frustrated, and resentful because of unsatisfactory pay or anything else?

A survey offered in preliminary form by the National Education Association shows her to be contented with her work, and planning definitely to continue teaching in the same system. (The survey was based on 1,816 polled women teachers.)

With an average salary of between $5,000 and $6,000, the women teachers, 85.7 per cent strong, planned to continue full-time teaching in the same system. When asked if they could go back to their college days and start all over, would they become teachers, 59.2 per cent said "certainly," and 25.5 per cent said "probably."

For 51.9 per cent, there were no community pressures of personal restrictions laid on them because they were teachers. Thirty-eight per cent said there were some restrictions, but not of a serious nature.

The teachers' average day ranged from seven hours and a quarter minutes to seven and a half hours. On a weekly basis they spend 10 to 12 hours in activities like lesson-planning, grading papers, attending meetings and participating in extra-curricular events for which they are not paid.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Tears filled my eyes when I read the letter from the 16-year-old girl who complained because her father hugged and kissed her too much. She said it was embarrassing.

That girl doesn't know how lucky she is. I'd have given anything if my father had kissed me even once a month. I really shouldn't blame him too much because he was almost 35 when he married Mom and he didn't know how to show affection to small children, although he had four of his own.

Dad died three years ago. I was 15. I cherish the memory of the few hello and goodby kisses he did give me.

I hope every father who reads this letter will ask himself when was the last time he kissed his children — yes, boys, too. They need affection as much as girls. There isn't enough love in the world today, and the place to learn how to give and receive love is at home. — RALEIGH MISS.

Dear Miss: You are unusually wise and perceptive for an 18-year-old. And you have a forgiving heart, too, which is good. I hope the fathers in my reading audience will take inventory. Was Miss Raleigh speaking to you?

Old Yeller

Dear Ann: My husband sold his business a few years ago and retired. We are not wealthy, but we have a nice income from past investments, plus Social Security.

I've always handled the money in the family. My husband doesn't know what it is to pay a bill. I also helped him in his business and paid the company bills as well.

Now that we are entering our golden years we should be relaxed, but we aren't. My husband is driving me crazy because I'm not able to save any money. He keeps asking, "Where does it all go?"

I've tried to explain that the cost of living has gone up, taxes are up, club memberships are up, and we can't drive a car free.

Will you please give him an answer? — TIRED IN TOLEDO.

Dear Tired: He doesn't want an answer. He'd rather holler. It's probably his best form of recreation since he retired.

Start next month to keep an itemized account of every dime you spend. When he starts yelling, hand him the list. That should settle his hash.

Booby-Trapped

Dear Ann: I'm a 16-year-old boy who may be killed by his mother one of these days. I know she would never forgive herself, but I'd be dead just the same.

It is my job to empty the wastebaskets and the trash. My mother always is throwing aerosol cans into the wastebaskets. When I burn the trash the cans explode. Sometimes two or three cans explode in a row, and it sounds like a sonic boom.

I have read of people getting killed by these things and I don't want it to happen to me. I've told my mother three times to please keep the aerosol cans out of the wastebaskets, but she forgets. What can I do? — SHOCKED.

Dear Shocked: You can stop depending on your mother and sort out the trash yourself, Bub.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Questions Bring More Solutions To Home Needs

AP Newsfeatures

Question: There are red cedar shingles on the roof of the house we are buying. They don't appear to have any finish on them. Is this all right? And if it isn't, what can we use for a finish?

Answer: Shingles of this type do not require any finish. However, use a shingle stain if you wish to color them. Also, the stain will give some additional weather resistance, although many believe that this extra resistance is unnecessary.

QUESTION: I put down asphalt tile on our basement floor a few months ago. Some of the black adhesive has oozed up in four or five places. It doesn't seem to wipe off. What solvent can I use for it?

Answer: None. Solvent would take out the spots but ruin the tile. Try using steel wool with a little scouring powder. Rub firmly but carefully.

QUESTION: We picked up a nice old piece of furniture recently. Not quite sure what it's called, but it's something like a dining room dish cabinet. It appears to be made of cherry wood, although we're not sure. We have heard that rubbing it with mineral oil will help to maintain its finish. Is this true and is there any special procedure for putting it on?

Answer: Yes, mineral oil can be used for that purpose. But it is inclined to leave a "tacky" surface if it is not wiped off immediately. Apply it with a clean cloth and then quickly go over it with a second clean, dry cloth. Using still a third cloth, rub down vigorously. This treatment should be repeated every six months or so.

Good Toys Serve To 'Stretch' Mind

Toys may teach pre-schoolers colors, or introduce them to the elements of spatial relationships and logical reasoning, but first of all they must be fun.

"The trucks and the individual garages for them are coded by color," he says, "and the truck won't fit into the garage if the colors don't match. At first children don't realize this. They just push the trucks around for a while, and gradually come to realize which goes where.

—:—

"THE SAME with a toy cash register. At first the child just enjoys the bell which rings when the door opens. Later on he may see the relationship between the supermarket cash register and his toy, he may become involved with paper money, and the fact that money is related to buying goods. But all this is a gradual process."

"We see that they really do prepare a child for school by developing his muscular coordination, by the use of numbers and letters, by cut - out inserts of different shapes," says Hicks. "But these to the child are really sub - conscious things coming out of his own play."

TERMING successful toys those that "stretch the child's mind, change his thoughts and stimulate his imagination," Hicks describes the flexible use of the company's Three Bears house. A child, he says, will at first use the large key to open the door and put the bears and Godilocks at their proper places at the dining table.

Later on, he discovers the roof comes off, so he has them enter by this means, or even down the chimney, a la Santa Claus. Meanwhile, he's exposed to the story lettered on the wall of the house, which he may ask his mother to read to him.

Q.—How can I keep concrete floors clean?

A.—They should be swept with a vacuum cleaner, or with a broom, using a sweeping compound if desired to keep down the dust. For washing, use a wet mop or long - handled scrubbing brush and plain water. If the cement is very dirty, add two to four tablespoons of washing soda or trisodium phosphate to the wash water. Rinse the floor thoroughly with clear water, and let dry. If grease stains remain,, sprinkle with washing soda or trisodium phosphate, let stand for a half - hour or so, then rinse.

Save Money With Proper Book Usage

With the cost of college skyrocketing, and the spiraling cost of living generally, that "nest egg" many families began to put away years ago for the college education of their children is often proving insufficient to the task of financing a complete college education these days.

Many students and their parents are searching, therefore, for ways to stretch available funds as far as possible.

One area in which the expenditure of funds can mount all too quickly, and even unnoticed, is the purchase of text books and books for supplementary course work reading — a sizeable requirement for almost any college curriculum.

BUT THESE expenses can be cut substantially when careful consideration is given to the titles required.

The publisher advises, first, that it is often a "false economy" to buy a paperback instead of the more durable, hard-cover edition of a book—

Attention to the proper care and handling of books can increase their durability and therefore provide a valuable economy too, according to Modern Library. The publisher offers the following guidelines in this area:

1. Heat and dust are the great books villians. Never place books near direct heat or build library shelves over a radiator. Heat will weaken and dry binding glue and cause paper to become dry and brittle.

2. STORE BOOKS vertically; never horizontally. Bindings are easily and permanently forced out of shape by random stacking. Proper care of large volumes, many art books, and pictorial histories, therefore, involves sound planning of library shelf spacing.

3. Surprisingly, most people are not aware that there is a proper and an improper way to open a book. The improper method — opening from the first page — loosens the sewing in the binding as the book is read. A book should be opened at the middle and the pages permitted to drop away on both sides.

4. As a general rule to follow when purchasing any type of book as a permanent addition to a library, look for a binding that has been both "glued" and "sewn."

Drop-Out Problem Eyed

A noted economist who is also chairman of the National Manpower Advisory Committee has spent much time analyzing drop-outs — and he finds the picture not as bleak as other educators do.

Dr. Eli Ginzberg says that the term drop-out "has an insidious connotation until one realizes that in earlier generations it could have been applied to youngsters who did not complete elementary school — and that it is beginning to be applied to those who enter college, but do not stay to earn a degree."

Analyzing the reasons for leaving school, Dr. Ginzberg notes that the most important one is that these students are "several years behind schedule by the time they reach school-leaving age, usually 16."

THIS, HE explains, usually reflects an early difficulty in mastering the curriculum, which, in turn caused the youngster to develop negative attitudes toward school.

"Classes become uninteresting and discipline increasingly burdensome," he comments. "Small wonder that this group takes the first opportunity to escape from these restraints."

Another large group of drop-outs are young men and women who have been able to make normal progress, but have never been interested in learning, Dr. Ginzberg explains.

"Many of these young people are growing up in communities which see little importance in educational achievement, where the facilities and teaching staff are often inadequate; usually they are not encouraged by family or friends to continue in school," the expert says.

"The third group of drop-outs is a heterogeneous assemblage, including some with special talents, who have major problems which make it difficult or impossible for them to remain in school," he continues.

—:—

THE REASONS may be trouble with the police, marriage or pregnancy, emotional disturbance, desire to get away from home, and the need to earn money.

For all of these youngsters, Dr. Ginzberg would say: "There is no point in forcing young people to remain in school if they have not acquired the skills with which to learn, and if they cannot relate their school experiences to their present or future life.

"It is not a high school diploma per se that qualifies a young person for work and for responsible citizenship. Rather, it is his acquisition during the years that he is growing up of a value orientation, social competences, intellectual knowledge and skills, and study and work habits that will enable him to find a place within our highly differentiated economy and society."

TO ACHIEVE this, Dr. Ginzberg recommends searching for fundamental improvements in the learning process much earlier than high school, so reading and other skills will make it possible for students to make constructive use of high school. He raises the question as to whether more work - study programs might help youth acquire a more realistic attitude toward jobs.

He also questions the necessity of having a high school diploma in order to get a job, and asks whether this is a reasonable requirement.

Still Not Near Full Potential

Educational TV Expands

By G. K. HODENFIELD

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — That slumbering giant called educational television is beginning to stir.

It still is under - financed, there aren't enough stations, there is no national network, and sometimes it isn't being used to anything near its full potential.

But on the bright side: the quality of programming has increased, new stations are going on the air at the rate of about one a month, and the number of public school children being served has tripled in a five - year period.

Edwin G. Cohen, executive director of the National Center for School and College Television (NCSCT) here, noted recently that during the 1965-66 school year, educational television stations were serving at least 6,550,000 students from kindergarten through 12th grade. During the 1961-62 school year, the number was only 2,250,000.

IN VIEW of the more effective television materials now being developed," he said, "and in view of the attention now being given to school television, it seems certain that this marked growth will continue and that the immediate future may see this medium achieve its full potential in education."

Cohen emphasized in an interview that the 6.5 million figure is accurate as far as it goes, but is still incomplete.

"Some published reports have estimated that as many as 10 million youngsters are served by educational television," he said.

Using Cohen's figures only, it appears that the educational television stations reached nearly 16 per cent of the total public school enrollment, kindergarten through grade 12, in the 1965-66 school year.

This is one student out of every six, compared to six per cent, or one student out of every 16, in 1961-62.

THE PRIMARY task of the National Center for School and College Television is the stimulation and procurement of high quality instructional television courses and then making them available to transmission stations throughout the United States.

The Center is a joint project of the Indiana University Foundation and the U.S. Office of Education. It uses some of Indiana University's facilities and call upon the expertise of its faculty.

The nation's first educational television station, KUHT in Houston, Tex., went on the air 15 years ago. In 1966 there were 115 ETV stations in the United States, and in spring of 1967 there were 124.

Virtually all of the nation's most populous centers are being served by instructional television stations, although vast areas of the country are still out of reach.

A one-week survey conducted last year by NCSCT showed that the 115 stations then in operation were on the air for a weekly average of 49 hours, 27 minutes, an increase of seven hours a week over 1964.

The survey showed that the primary target of ETV is, more than ever before, the general, evening audience, with 57 per cent of all broadcasting intended for this group.

WILBUR Schramm of Stanford University, one of the top experts in the field, has estimated that during weekday prime time between 700,000 and one million people are watching educational television (compared with 68 million watching the more numerous commercial TV stations).

The survey also showed that 33 per cent of the broadcast time was designed for use in the schools; the arts have replaced science as ETV's major program concern and most broadcast subject, although science and mathematics remained the most broadcast subject for the schools; and educational television is offering more programs on news and public affairs, and more programs for children.

A recent report by the Carnegie Commission on Educational Television noted that the 124 educational television stations then on the air had at least one thing in common: all are badly underfinanced.

The commission said that the $60 million now spent every year for capital investment and operating expenses is just about half what it ought to be for the stations to do properly what they are now trying to do.

THE MOST important source of programs for general viewing today is National Educational Television (NET), which produces or procures five hours of new programs a week, equally divided between public affairs and cultural programs, and two and one - half hours a week of children's programs.

The second largest source is locally-produced programs. The NCSCT survey showed that local production of programs dropped from 59 per cent of the total service in 1964 to 41 per cent in 1966.

Unlike commercial television, there are no vast factories in Hollywood or New York, turning out programs on an assembly line basis.

Which, in the long run, may be the best thing you can say about educational television.

Buses Transport School To Pupils

Through a program developed at the Pennsylvania State University, mobile units ranging in size from giant trailers to small coaches are fitted with audio-visual aids, and go trundling off to the Appalachia region in West Virginia, and parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee.

According to C. Herbert Wheeler, Jr., who researched the project, these units have infinite possibilities. Terming the areas so served as "pockets of poverty," the professor of architectural engineering feels educators must think big to solve the problems.

In the most elaborate phase, mobile units can include science and medical laboratories. In the simplest, a teacher can drive a school bus fitted out with mechanized materials and resources.

Federally - funded research and development projects on techniques to educate the deaf are being carried out at the Universities of Massachusetts, Nebraska, Tennessee, and New Mexico.

Physical Exams Needed For All Beginning Pupils

All parents should be sure to arrange a thorough medical examination for your child just starting to school. Your doctor's examination of him will cover all aspects of his health.

It will include hearing (to make certain he can hear the teacher) and vision (to make sure he can see the black board).

This physical and booster immunizations should be given before school starts. Some schools require such examinations for beginners so your doctor will know of the regulations in your area.

Physical checkups are recommended for children throughout their school years. Four or five thorough physicals during those years are sufficient: usually spaced at the start of the first school year, the fourth, seventh, and the ninth or tenth grades and upon graduation.

Parents can help a child's physical well - being, too, by giving him time to play — at things he selects, and not something you or a teacher selects for him. Don't line up a season of almost daily music or dancing lessons, after school athletics, etc.

Roommates Set At College Dorm By Questionnaire

According to William D. Baker, dean of students, areas in which the students hold strong views are neatness, sleeping habits (early to bed, or late stay-up), and the need for fresh air for sleeping.

Checks on other statements also reveal a great deal about the freshman's personality. "I like novelty and change in the daily routine." "I like to be by myself part of the time." "I would rather not dress like everyone else."

The parental view of their daughters is weighed strongly too, says the dean. And if there's conflict in spite of the earlier testing, roommates can request re-assignments after only seven weeks of college life.

Economist Views Solutions

Drop-Out Problem Eyed

A noted economist who is also chairman of the National Manpower Advisory Committee has spent much time analyzing drop-outs — and he finds the picture not as bleak as other educators do.

Dr. Eli Ginzberg says that the term drop-out "has an insidious connotation until one realizes that in earlier generations it could have been applied to youngsters who did not complete elementary school — and that it is beginning to be applied to those who enter college, but do not stay to earn a degree."

Analyzing the reasons for leaving school, Dr. Ginzberg notes that the most important one is that these students are "several years behind schedule by the time they reach school-leaving age, usually 16."

THIS, HE explains, usually reflects an early difficulty in mastering the curriculum, which, in turn caused the youngster to develop negative attitudes toward school.

"Classes become uninteresting and discipline increasingly burdensome," he comments. "Small wonder that this group takes the first opportunity to escape from these restraints."

Another large group of drop-outs are young men and women who have been able to make normal progress, but have never been interested in learning, Dr. Ginzberg explains.

"Many of these young people are growing up in communities which see little importance in educational achievement, where the facilities and teaching staff are often inadequate; usually they are not encouraged by family or friends to continue in school," the expert says.

"The third group of drop-outs is a heterogeneous assemblage, including some with special talents, who have major problems which make it difficult or impossible for them to remain in school," he continues.

THE REASONS may be trouble with the police, marriage or pregnancy, emotional disturbance, desire to get away from home, and the need to earn money.

For all of these youngsters, Dr. Ginzberg would say: "There is no point in forcing young people to remain in school if they have not acquired the skills with which to learn, and if they cannot relate their school experiences to their present or future life.

"It is not a high school diploma per se that qualifies a young person for work and for responsible citizenship. Rather, it is his acquisition during the years that he is growing up of a value orientation, social competences, intellectual knowledge and skills, and study and work habits that will enable him to find a place within our highly differentiated economy and society."

TO ACHIEVE this, Dr. Ginzberg recommends searching for fundamental improvements in the learning process much earlier than high school, so reading and other skills will make it possible for students to make constructive use of high school. He raises the question as to whether more work - study programs might help youth acquire a more realistic attitude toward jobs.

He also questions the necessity of having a high school diploma in order to get a job, and asks whether this is a reasonable requirement.

Still Not Near Full Potential

By G. K. HODENFIELD

It still is under - financed, there aren't enough stations, there is no national network, and sometimes it isn't being used to anything near its full potential.

But on the bright side: the quality of programming has increased, new stations are going on the air at the rate of about one a month, and the number of public school children being served has tripled in a five - year period.

Edwin G. Cohen, executive director of the National Center for School and College Television (NCSCT) here, noted recently that during the 1965-66 school year, educational television stations were serving at least 6,550,000 students from kindergarten through 12th grade. During the 1961-62 school year, the number was only 2,250,000.

IN VIEW of the more effective television materials now being developed," he said, "and in view of the attention now being given to school television, it seems certain that this marked growth will continue and that the immediate future may see this medium achieve its full potential in education."

Cohen emphasized in an interview that the 6.5 million figure is accurate as far as it goes, but is still incomplete.

"Some published reports have estimated that as many as 10 million youngsters are served by educational television," he said.

Cohen's figures refer only to the students in schools officially participating in the instructional services of educational television stations.

Using Cohen's figures only, it appears that the educational television stations reached nearly 16 per cent of the total public school enrollment, kindergarten through grade 12, in the 1965-66 school year.

This is one student out of every six, compared to six per cent, or one student out of every 16, in 1961-62.

THE PRIMARY task of the National Center for School and College Television is the stimulation and procurement of high quality instructional television courses and then making them available to transmission stations throughout the United States.

The Center is a joint project of the Indiana University Foundation and the U.S. Office of Education. It uses some of Indiana University's facilities and call upon the expertise of its faculty.

The nation's first educational television station, KUHT in Houston, Tex., went on the air 15 years ago. In 1966 there were 115 ETV stations in the United States, and in spring of 1967 there were 124.

Virtually all of the nation's most populous centers are being served by instructional television stations, although vast areas of the country are still out of reach.

A one-week survey conducted last year by NCSCT showed that the 115 stations then in operation were on the air for a weekly average of 49 hours, 27 minutes, an increase of seven hours a week over 1964.

The survey showed that the primary target of ETV is, more than ever before, the general, evening audience, with 57 per cent of all broadcasting intended for this group.

WILBUR Schramm of Stanford University, one of the top experts in the field, has estimated that during weekday prime time between 700,000 and one million people are watching educational television (compared with 68 million watching the more numerous commercial TV stations).

The survey also showed that 33 per cent of the broadcast time was designed for use in the schools; the arts have replaced science as ETV's major program concern and most broadcast subject, although science and mathematics remained the most broadcast subject for the schools; and educational television is offering more programs on news and public affairs, and more programs for children.

A recent report by the Carnegie Commission on Educational Television noted that the 124 educational television stations then on the air had at least one thing in common: all are badly underfinanced.

The commission said that the $60 million now spent every year for capital investment and operating expenses is just about half what it ought to be for the stations to do properly what they are now trying to do.

THE MOST important source of programs for general viewing today is National Educational Television (NET), which produces or procures five hours of new programs a week, equally divided between public affairs and cultural programs, and two and one - half hours a week of children's programs.

The second largest source is locally-produced programs. The NCSCT survey showed that local production of programs dropped from 59 per cent of the total service in 1964 to 41 per cent in 1966.

Unlike commercial television, there are no vast factories in Hollywood or New York, turning out programs on an assembly line basis.

Which, in the long run, may be the best thing you can say about educational television.

Buses Transport School To Pupils

Through a program developed at the Pennsylvania State University, mobile units ranging in size from giant trailers to small coaches are fitted with audio-visual aids, and go trundling off to the Appalachia region in West Virginia, and parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee.

According to C. Herbert Wheeler, Jr., who researched the project, these units have infinite possibilities. Terming the areas so served as "pockets of poverty," the professor of architectural engineering feels educators must think big to solve the problems.

In the most elaborate phase, mobile units can include science and medical laboratories. In the simplest, a teacher can drive a school bus fitted out with mechanized materials and resources.

Federally - funded research and development projects on techniques to educate the deaf are being carried out at the Universities of Massachusetts, Nebraska, Tennessee, and New Mexico.

Physical Exams Needed For All Beginning Pupils

All parents should be sure to arrange a thorough medical examination for your child just starting to school. Your doctor's examination of him will cover all aspects of his health.

It will include hearing (to make certain he can hear the teacher) and vision (to make sure he can see the black board).

This physical and booster immunizations should be given before school starts. Some schools require such examinations for beginners so your doctor will know of the regulations in your area.

Physical checkups are recommended for children throughout their school years. Four or five thorough physicals during those years are sufficient: usually spaced at the start of the first school year, the fourth, seventh, and the ninth or tenth grades and upon graduation.

Parents can help a child's physical well - being, too, by giving him time to play — at things he selects, and not something you or a teacher selects for him. Don't line up a season of almost daily music or dancing lessons, after school athletics, etc.

Roommates Set At College Dorm By Questionnaire

A questionnaire has been developed there which helps sort out incoming class members on the basis largely of habits and personality quirks.

According to William D. Baker, dean of students, areas in which the students hold strong views are neatness, sleeping habits (early to bed, or late stay-up), and the need for fresh air for sleeping.

Checks on other statements also reveal a great deal about the freshman's personality. "I like novelty and change in the daily routine." "I like to be by myself part of the time." "I would rather not dress like everyone else."

The parental view of their daughters is weighed strongly too, says the dean. And if there's conflict in spite of the earlier testing, roommates can request re-assignments after only seven weeks of college life.
